HE MAY NOT PLAY

St. Louis Star Receives Messages From Bedside.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 29.—Mrs. M. D. Hornsby, mother of Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was in a critical condition at the home of her sister, Mrs. Knox Johnson, here today.

Mrs. Hornsby, who has been an invalid for several years, suffered a relapse Sunday and since then her condition has changed very little, according to attending physicians.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — Roger Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, here to engage the New York Yankees in the world series, today sat at the telephone receiving messages from the bedside of his mother, Mrs. M. D. Hornsby, critically ill at Austin, Tex. Hornsby spent a sleepless night and this morning in a conversation with his aunt in Austin, learned that his mother was not expected to live until nightfall. He was unable to say if he would play in the series, he told International News Service.

Early today Hornsby called his aunt at the bedside of Mrs. Hornsby, on the long distance telephone and his heart was heavy as he quit the line.

"She isn't expected to live through the day," he said a few minutes later. "She's sinking fast, but I have hopes that she may rally."

Then came the moment of tragedy for Hornsby, placed in a dilemma that would tax the courage of strong men anywhere, as he attempted to reach a decision on the possibility of playing in the forthcoming series.

"It was her greatest ambition in life," he said slowly, "to have me play in the world series. She used to pray that we would win and she gave be the encouragement to which I owe

Musical Selections and Dance are Program Features.

About 110 Rotarians and their wives, including a delegation of 35 from Steubenville, attended the "ladies' night" party given at the Country club last evening. The affair was a return party for the entertainment given local Rotarians at Steubenville a few months ago.

The speaker at the affair, which took the form of a dinner-dance, was Thurman "Dusty" Miller, editor and humorist of New Wilmington, whose subject was "Sportsmanship." The program was also featured by a musical program in which Mrs. Robert Weinhardt, contralto; Miss Mildred Weaver, soprano, and Miss Jessie Hall, accompanist, took part.

Attorney W. H. Vodrey, who, with R. G. Thomas and Lawrence W. Smith, formed the committee on arrangements, presided. Dr. Colin Kinsey led the chorus singing with Mrs. Danks Cochran as the accompanist.

Steubenville Chorus Number.

A chorus group of 10 Steubenville Rotarians rendered a musical selection of their own composition, after which Attorney Vodrey welcomed the visitors. Workers Risk Lives in Attempt to Reach Entombed.

By HOWARD G. MAYER

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 29.—"Possibly Friday."

This word predicting the time of rescue of the 43 men buried in the G. Pabst mine here was passed about today as 400 men fought their way through rock and ore in their dramatic race underground against death.

With all four rescue operations well under way those being conducted in the F. Aurora mine promised the most hope for rescue of the men who have been imprisoned on the eighth level of the G. Pabst mine since Friday noon.

Sweating shifts of husky miners poured out of the mouth of the mine every few hours. They reported that they had gone through what they believed was the most difficult cutting they would encounter. Since Monday afternoon they have drilled and blasted hard jasper rock for the most part, but by making a series of cross cuts yesterday a bore through softer ground has been started in the direction of the imprisoned men. This rescue crew, consisting of about 30 men, still was approximately 160 feet from their goal. They were working upward on a 45 degree incline.

Optimistic Reports.

DOZENS OF VILLAGES WIPED OUT; HUNDREDS OF PERSONS ARE DEAD

Principal Parts of Mexican City are Said to be Under Five Feet of Water, Which is Still Rising, as Result of Tropical Hurricane, Accompanied by Tidal Wave.

50 CENTERS OF POPULATION HIT; FOUR STEAMERS REPORTED SUNK

Weather Bureau Fears Second Disturbance, Possibly of Greater Intensity, May Now be Raging Between Vera Cruz, Jalapa and Cordoba —All Telegraph Wires are Down.

By JOHN PAGE.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 29.—With all lines of communication paralyzed and only ominous silence from a hundred square miles of territory in Vera Cruz state laid waste by the tropical hurricane which swept over the region yesterday, the outside world today could only guess at the extent of the damage and the loss of life in the isolated region.

Fragmentary wireless reports received here from Vera Cruz city stated the hurricane was accompanied by a tidal wave. The principal parts of the city were reported under five feet of water, and that still rising.

Fifty smaller centers of population, including Corboda and Jalapa, were struck by the fury of the storm, and dozens of the smaller villages were virtually wiped off the map.

Four steamers in Vera Cruz harbor were reported sunk and their crews lost.

Fear Second Storm.

Althought government officials say it will be impossible to accurately estimate the extent of the storm damage and the loss of life, it is feared that hundreds have perished. Efforts by the American embassy to communicate with the American consulate in Vera Cruz and ascertain whether any American lives were lost have been unsuccessful. The telegraph officer reports all messages to the storm region remain undelivered because all lines are down. Repairmen are at work endeavoring to reestablish contact with the stricken area.

The weather bureau fears that a second hurricane, possibly of greater intensity than that of yesterday, may now be raging between the cities of Vera Cruz, Jalapa and Cordoba.

The storm is the periodical equinoctial disturbance, but of unusually severe nature, known as "Cordonazo San Francisco."

Railroad Tracks Inundated.

A special train left Mexico City last night carrying government officials, engineers of the department of communications, army officers and American and Mexican newspaper correspondents. The train had orders to run eastward as far as possible, and to make every effort to reach the port of Vera Cruz.

The last message coming through over the Western Union lines from Vewa Cruz yesterday said: "A cyclone passed over the city at 11:05 o'clock

WIDOW OF CURT WELCH, WHO WON WORLD SERIES FOR ST. LOUIS IN 1886 BY STEALING HOME, PREDICTS CARDINALS WILL DEFEAT YANKEES

East Liverpool, talking baseball facts and figures along with the rest of the country on the eve of a great world's series between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals, has its National league fans and its American loop sympathizers, but among them all, there is none, perhaps, who is pulling stronger for a St. Louis victory than the widow of Curt Welch, one of the greatest outfielders of all tome and perhaps the nerviest player the game has developed.

As the Mississippi valley rocks in the throes of a celebration that has been unequalled there since 1886, Mrs. Anna Welch recalls the memorable day her husband, an East Liverpool sandlot product, "took a chance" against the advice of coaches and stole home with the run that gave the St. Louis Browns and the Mound City a 4 to 3 victory over the Chicago Nationals and their only world's series championship.

"Will St. Louis win? Well, if Curt were there, I feel sure there wouldn't be any doubt about it. As it is I think the Cardinals have a wonderful chance to beat New York and I certainly hope they do."

Mrs. Welch has had as much, possibly more, baseball experience, than any other woman in the country as a result of her associations during the years her husband devoted to the national pastime. She is now kept busy with the management of an East Sixth street rooming house but still has time to follow casually the fortunes of the various big time clubs.

Her interest in the game is whetted all the more this year as a result of St. Louis' entry into the world's series after a lapse of 38 years, or since 1888 when Curt played his last game with the Browns.

Learned Game Here.

Welch learned the rudiments of the game in this city and took his first step toward undying baseball fame when he signed with the Toledo club in 1883.

He played there for two years and he, together with Tony Mulane and Sam Bartley, obtained his release and Welch joined the St. Louis Browns of the American association.

Right off the reel, and Curt's playing possibly was a great factor, the Browns stepped into the world's series in 1885, playing seven games with the Chicago Nationals.

The Browns won three, Chicago won three and the seventh was tied, no championship being declared.

The next year, however, the Browns battered down all opposition to another American association pennant and again met the Chicago Nationals in the championship series in which Welch enacted the leading role.

The series approached a climax when the Browns had stowed away three conquests and the Chicago Nationals had won two. The Browns needed another one to end it, and the way Welch won that game for the Browns made baseball history.

The game went into the final frame and the score was 3 to 3. The wily Clarkson, shooting over the horsehide from the mound for Chicago that day, had retired two St. Louis batters when Welch grabbed a bat and strode to the plate.

For pure, unadulterated nerve, Curt possessed no equal. He had developed an uncanny knack of getting to first base in the pinches, and at other times as well, it seems, by dent of getting hit with the ball, or hitting the spheroid. To Welch results were everything, regardless of method. He kept opposition hurlers in a frenzy as a result of his ability to pull his elbow up in front of the ball, and, in consequence, operated as lead-off batter.

He was "Hit" by Clarkson.

Welch wanted to get to first base that day and so he was "hit" by Clarkson. A few minutes later he stole second on Clarkson and advanced to third on a scratch single by one of his team mates.

Arlie Latham, third baseman, was next to bat. Coachers at third warned Curt to "play it safe," the Browns' board of strategy apparently banking on Latham for a clean hit.

Welch never waited for that hit. Starting with the first move of Clarkson's arm, Curt was half way down the base line toward the plate as the White Stockings' pitcher let the ball fly and he "hit the dirt" for the winning run as Clarkson's heave went wide.

According to Mrs. Welch, who saw the game, scenes in St. Louis following the conquest, were indescribable, probably something on the order of the triumphant celebration that was staged there when the Cards breezed to the wire ahead of the Reds a few days ago, only on a larger scale.

The entire St. Louis club was placed "on exhibition," literally not figuratively, that night in Exposition hall, at St. Louis, and the only way they could get Curt there was with a policeman and the "wagon."

Welch was of a different nature and naturally avoided, in any way possible, accepting the adulations of admiring throngs with which he was constantly beset as a result of his baseball prowess. He was not a "grand stand' player in any sense of the word, and he certainly did object to taking part in the exhibition that night in Exposition hall.

Showered With Money.

As a means of getting away, Welch, together with Mike Kelly, of the Chicago club, went over the river that night to see a prize fight in East St. Louis. There would be no celebration as far as he was concerned.

But Curt's plans were foiled. Club officials hired a couple of policemen and sent after Welch. Protesting Curt returned to Exposition hall and lined up with the rest of the club.

"The amount of money that Curt received that night," declares Mrs.

DOZENS OF VILLAGES WIPED OUT; HUNDREDS OF PERSONS ARE DEAD

Principal Parts of Mexican City are Said to be Under Five Feet of Water, Which is Still Rising, as Result of Tropical Hurricane, Accompanied by Tidal Wave.

50 CENTERS OF POPULATION HIT; FOUR STEAMERS REPORTED SUNK

Weather Bureau Fears Second Disturbance, Possibly of Greater Intensity, May Now be Raging Between Vera Cruz, Jalapa and Cordoba —All Telegraph Wires are Down.

By JOHN PAGE.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 29.—With all lines of communication paralyzed and only ominous silence from a hundred square miles of territory in Vera Cruz state laid waste by the tropical hurricane which swept over the region yesterday, the outside world today could only guess at the extent of the damage and the loss of life in the isolated region.

Fragmentary wireless reports received here from Vera Cruz city stated the hurricane was accompanied by a tidal wave. The principal parts of the city were reported under five feet of water, and that still rising.

Fifty smaller centers of population, including Corboda and Jalapa, were struck by the fury of the storm, and dozens of the smaller villages were virtually wiped off the map.

Four steamers in Vera Cruz harbor were reported sunk and their crews lost.

Fear Second Storm.

Althought government officials say it will be impossible to accurately estimate the extent of the storm damage and the loss of life, it is feared that hundreds have perished. Efforts by the American embassy to communicate with the American consulate in Vera Cruz and ascertain whether any American lives were lost have been unsuccessful. The telegraph officer reports all messages to the storm region remain undelivered because all lines are down. Repairmen are at work endeavoring to reestablish contact with the stricken area.

The weather bureau fears that a second hurricane, possibly of greater intensity than that of yesterday, may now be raging between the cities of Vera Cruz, Jalapa and Cordoba.

The storm is the periodical equinoctial disturbance, but of unusually severe nature, known as "Cordonazo San Francisco."

Railroad Tracks Inundated.

A special train left Mexico City last night carrying government officials, engineers of the department of communications, army officers and American and Mexican newspaper correspondents. The train had orders to run eastward as far as possible, and to make every effort to reach the port of Vera Cruz.

The last message coming through over the Western Union lines from Vewa Cruz yesterday said: "A cyclone passed over the city at 11:05 o'clock

WIDOW OF CURT WELCH, WHO WON WORLD SERIES FOR ST. LOUIS IN 1886 BY STEALING HOME, PREDICTS CARDINALS WILL DEFEAT YANKEES

East Liverpool, talking baseball facts and figures along with the rest of the country on the eve of a great world's series between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals, has its National league fans and its American loop sympathizers, but among them all, there is none, perhaps, who is pulling stronger for a St. Louis victory than the widow of Curt Welch, one of the greatest outfielders of all tome and perhaps the nerviest player the game has developed.

As the Mississippi valley rocks in the throes of a celebration that has been unequalled there since 1886, Mrs. Anna Welch recalls the memorable day her husband, an East Liverpool sandlot product, "took a chance" against the advice of coaches and stole home with the run that gave the St. Louis Browns and the Mound City a 4 to 3 victory over the Chicago Nationals and their only world's series championship.

"Will St. Louis win? Well, if Curt were there, I feel sure there wouldn't be any doubt about it. As it is I think the Cardinals have a wonderful chance to beat New York and I certainly hope they do."

Mrs. Welch has had as much, possibly more, baseball experience, than any other woman in the country as a result of her associations during the years her husband devoted to the national pastime. She is now kept busy with the management of an East Sixth street rooming house but still has time to follow casually the fortunes of the various big time clubs.

Her interest in the game is whetted all the more this year as a result of St. Louis' entry into the world's series after a lapse of 38 years, or since 1888 when Curt played his last game with the Browns.

Learned Game Here.

Welch learned the rudiments of the game in this city and took his first step toward undying baseball fame when he signed with the Toledo club in 1883.

He played there for two years and he, together with Tony Mulane and Sam Bartley, obtained his release and Welch joined the St. Louis Browns of the American association.

Right off the reel, and Curt's playing possibly was a great factor, the Browns stepped into the world's series in 1885, playing seven games with the Chicago Nationals.

The Browns won three, Chicago won three and the seventh was tied, no championship being declared.

The next year, however, the Browns battered down all opposition to another American association pennant and again met the Chicago Nationals in the championship series in which Welch enacted the leading role.

The series approached a climax when the Browns had stowed away three conquests and the Chicago Nationals had won two. The Browns needed another one to end it, and the way Welch won that game for the Browns made baseball history.

The game went into the final frame and the score was 3 to 3. The wily Clarkson, shooting over the horsehide from the mound for Chicago that day, had retired two St. Louis batters when Welch grabbed a bat and strode to the plate.

For pure, unadulterated nerve, Curt possessed no equal. He had developed an uncanny knack of getting to first base in the pinches, and at other times as well, it seems, by dent of getting hit with the ball, or hitting the spheroid. To Welch results were everything, regardless of method. He kept opposition hurlers in a frenzy as a result of his ability to pull his elbow up in front of the ball, and, in consequence, operated as lead-off batter.

He was "Hit" by Clarkson.

Welch wanted to get to first base that day and so he was "hit" by Clarkson. A few minutes later he stole second on Clarkson and advanced to third on a scratch single by one of his team mates.

Arlie Latham, third baseman, was next to bat. Coachers at third warned Curt to "play it safe," the Browns' board of strategy apparently banking on Latham for a clean hit.

Welch never waited for that hit. Starting with the first move of Clarkson's arm, Curt was half way down the base line toward the plate as the White Stockings' pitcher let the ball fly and he "hit the dirt" for the winning run as Clarkson's heave went wide.

According to Mrs. Welch, who saw the game, scenes in St. Louis following the conquest, were indescribable, probably something on the order of the triumphant celebration that was staged there when the Cards breezed to the wire ahead of the Reds a few days ago, only on a larger scale.

The entire St. Louis club was placed "on exhibition," literally not figuratively, that night in Exposition hall, at St. Louis, and the only way they could get Curt there was with a policeman and the "wagon."

Welch was of a different nature and naturally avoided, in any way possible, accepting the adulations of admiring throngs with which he was constantly beset as a result of his baseball prowess. He was not a "grand stand' player in any sense of the word, and he certainly did object to taking part in the exhibition that night in Exposition hall.

Showered With Money.

As a means of getting away, Welch, together with Mike Kelly, of the Chicago club, went over the river that night to see a prize fight in East St. Louis. There would be no celebration as far as he was concerned.

But Curt's plans were foiled. Club officials hired a couple of policemen and sent after Welch. Protesting Curt returned to Exposition hall and lined up with the rest of the club.

"The amount of money that Curt received that night," declares Mrs.

CARDS' PILOT FACES TRAGEDY ON SERIES EVE IN NEW YORK

Austin, Texas, Reports End May Come Before Night.

HE MAY NOT PLAY

St. Louis Star Receives Messages From Bedside.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 29.—Mrs. M. D. Hornsby, mother of Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was in a critical condition at the home of her sister, Mrs. Knox Johnson, here today.

Mrs. Hornsby, who has been an invalid for several years, suffered a relapse Sunday and since then her condition has changed very little, according to attending physicians.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — Roger Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, here to engage the New York Yankees in the world series, today sat at the telephone receiving messages from the bedside of his mother, Mrs. M. D. Hornsby, critically ill at Austin, Tex. Hornsby spent a sleepless night and this morning in a conversation with his aunt in Austin, learned that his mother was not expected to live until nightfall. He was unable to say if he would play in the series, he told International News Service.

Early today Hornsby called his aunt at the bedside of Mrs. Hornsby, on the long distance telephone and his heart was heavy as he quit the line.

"She isn't expected to live through the day," he said a few minutes later. "She's sinking fast, but I have hopes that she may rally."

Then came the moment of tragedy for Hornsby, placed in a dilemma that would tax the courage of strong men anywhere, as he attempted to reach a decision on the possibility of playing in the forthcoming series.

"It was her greatest ambition in life," he said slowly, "to have me play in the world series. She used to pray that we would win and she gave be the encouragement to which I owe

110 ROTARIANS ATTEND LADIES' NIGHT PARTY

Steubenville Members Guests at Country Club Dinner.

EDITOR SPEAKS

Musical Selections and Dance are Program Features.

About 110 Rotarians and their wives, including a delegation of 35 from Steubenville, attended the "ladies' night" party given at the Country club last evening. The affair was a return party for the entertainment given local Rotarians at Steubenville a few months ago.

The Jefferson county party came to East Liverpool in one of the new Stream Line interurban cars, "Steubenville," arriving here about 6 o'clock. The car was routed over the Grandview tracks, running to the end of the line.

The speaker at the affair, which took the form of a dinner-dance, was Thurman "Dusty" Miller, editor and humorist of New Wilmington, whose subject was "Sportsmanship." The program was also featured by a musical program in which Mrs. Robert Weinhardt, contralto; Miss Mildred Weaver, soprano, and Miss Jessie Hall, accompanist, took part.

Attorney W. H. Vodrey, who, with R. G. Thomas and Lawrence W. Smith, formed the committee on arrangements, presided. Dr. Colin Kinsey led the chorus singing with Mrs. Danks Cochran as the accompanist.

Steubenville Chorus Number.

A chorus group of 10 Steubenville Rotarians rendered a musical selection of their own composition, after which Attorney Vodrey welcomed the visitors. John Peterson, president of the Steubenville club, responded. Attorney Blaine H. Cochran gave two vocal solos, the first being Joyce Killmer's poem, "Trees," and the encore number, "I'd Climb The Highest

Lisbon Also Seeks Funds for Storm Sufferers.

SURVEY DISTRICT

Property Damage in Rural Sections is $55,000.

The Red Cross today again appealed for financial contributions for the relief of the tornado-swept Stop 47 district, where one life was lost, four persons injured and thousands of dollars property damage caused on Sept. 23.

Approximately $160 has been received by Treasurer W. E. Dunlap, cashier of the First National bank, in local contributions.

In Lisbon, through Charles Costello, $140 has been collected. The Firestone National bank is the depository. Contributions from Salem and other northern towns are expected to increase this sum substantially.

Farm Bureau Survey.

Township farm bureaus and granges have been asked to contribute to the fund.

Property loss in the rural districts is estimated between $55,000 and $60,000 by the county farm bureau at Lisbon. A special committee, consisting of County Farm Agent Floyd Lower, Lisbon; Elva Thompson, Franklin township, and Clyde Freeman, Lisbon, made a thorough survey of Franklin, Wayne, Madison and St. Clair townships, itemizing the damage in each place.

The Columbiana county chapter of the American Red Cross is now engaged in a survey of the storm damage in an effort to determine the amount of relief work which is necessary. This survey is in charge of Lon Boring, of Lisbon, assisted by Sheriff George Wright.

EXPECT RESCUE OF 43 TRAPPED MINERS FRIDAY

Four Hundred Men Fight Way Through Michigan Rock.

BORE NEAR GOAL

Workers Risk Lives in Attempt to Reach Entombed.

By HOWARD G. MAYER

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 29.—"Possibly Friday."

This word predicting the time of rescue of the 43 men buried in the G. Pabst mine here was passed about today as 400 men fought their way through rock and ore in their dramatic race underground against death.

With all four rescue operations well under way those being conducted in the F. Aurora mine promised the most hope for rescue of the men who have been imprisoned on the eighth level of the G. Pabst mine since Friday noon.

Sweating shifts of husky miners poured out of the mouth of the mine every few hours. They reported that they had gone through what they believed was the most difficult cutting they would encounter. Since Monday afternoon they have drilled and blasted hard jasper rock for the most part, but by making a series of cross cuts yesterday a bore through softer ground has been started in the direction of the imprisoned men. This rescue crew, consisting of about 30 men, still was approximately 160 feet from their goal. They were working upward on a 45 degree incline.

The blaze broke out shortly before 9 o'clock during the absence of the family. Neighbors formed a bucket brigade but were unable to save the building or contents.

Members of the family said today that two oil lamps and a grate fire were burning when they left home. It is believed the flames started in the kitchen as this part of the structure was burning rapidly when the fire was discovered by neighbors.

GORE SPEAKS AT LABOR MEETING

Governor Howard Gore, addressing the annual convention of the West Virginia State Federation of Labor at Morgantown, declared that the greatest prosperity that can offer itself to American labor is a "prosperous and profitable American agriculture," which in turn would give labor's commodities a broader and more constant outlet. The farmers of America, he asserted, are the greatest purchasers of goods and labor's maintenance of good wages and steady employment is directly proportionate to the farmer's buying power.

The executive declared that the only effective leadership for American labor was that which understood the other business activities of the country and the factors and problems that entered into other lines of activity. He made a plea for closer co-operation between the farmers and labor for the development of that leadership.

Discussing executive problems affecting labor, Governor Gore told the delegates he was not satisfied with the present operation of the workmen's compensation law and declared he was doing all in his power to make relief for disabled workers and their dependents more adequate and more quickly available. He asked full support of the labor group for the program of good roads and declared that the economy of improved highways for motor vehicles alone would release several million dollars a year for better wages in industry.

Wind Mills' Passing Mourned.

Progress is causing some pangs in Holland, where for years the wind mills were closely tied up to the happiness and customs of the people. These mills are steadily passing out of the picture because they are either being electrified or torn down completely. The Dutch miller has always given his mill a name. It never has been just "the mill." With a happy event such as a marriage of his daughter, the mill was gaily decorated, which will not be likely under the new regime. If the owner died, twenty boards in the arm of the mill were removed.

Ivory Statuette of Venus of Glacial Period Discovered

VIENNA.—Professor Josef Bayer, director of the pre-historic department in the State Natural History Museum, has found an ivory statuette of Venus, dating back to the glacial period.

The find was made at Wullendorf in the Wachau (a sequested defile noted for its scenery and legends) on the Danube, where the Professor found a similar figure in limestone in 1908.

The new Venus is carved from the tuck of the lower jaw of a mammoth, whose remains were discovered close by. A massive chisel of jasper was discovered near the spot.

The new statuette, which is about 10 in., in believed to be the largest belonging to the glacial school yet found. It is probably between 20,000 and 25,000 years old, and is in good preservation owing to the protection afforded to it by the deposit of loam and quartz.

The famous Venus de Milo was found by a peasant in the island of Melos, or Milo, in 1820 and sold to the French Government for $1,200.

Ivory Statuette of Venus of Glacial Period Discovered

VIENNA.—Professor Josef Bayer, director of the pre-historic department in the State Natural History Museum, has found an ivory statuette of Venus, dating back to the glacial period.

The find was made at Wullendorf in the Wachau (a sequested defile noted for its scenery and legends) on the Danube, where the Professor found a similar figure in limestone in 1908.

The new Venus is carved from the tuck of the lower jaw of a mammoth, whose remains were discovered close by. A massive chisel of jasper was discovered near the spot.

The new statuette, which is about 10 in., in believed to be the largest belonging to the glacial school yet found. It is probably between 20,000 and 25,000 years old, and is in good preservation owing to the protection afforded to it by the deposit of loam and quartz.

The famous Venus de Milo was found by a peasant in the island of Melos, or Milo, in 1820 and sold to the French Government for $1,200.

RUSH SEWER REPAIR WORK

Rain Storm Damage is Worst in City's History.

Facing the most difficult and troublesome municipal repair job in the history of the city, a large crew of workmen, under the direction of Mayor W. L. Fogo and Safey-Service Director George P. Ashley is "carrying on" in the western, storm-swept section of the city that has been partially inundated, for days at a stretch, on at least three different occasions in the past two months.

"Without doubt, it is the worst repair job the city has had to tackle in its entire history," declared Mayor W. L. Fogo today as he outlined the tasks that must be completed before final evidences of the storms are erased from view.

There has been a large crew of men at work, chiefly in the district through which the McQueen's Run hollow sewer runs, for six weeks. Repairs had progressed rapidly and the end was in sight last week when the third, and probably, the worst of the rain storms, swept the city and six weeks' work went for naught.

The sewer from Eighteenth street to Crawford avenue, above Buckeye avenue, is in bad shape and in need of repair work.

A break also was discovered in the McQueen's Run Hollow sewer in Clark avenue, between Aten avenue and Henry avenue, beneath the Leyda property. The water broke through near the bottom of the sewer and drained out portions of the yard in the Leyda home. Three days were required there to clean up the rock and debris washed out over the street car tracks.

Fifteen feet of five-foot sewer were washed away at Twenty-second street, as well as portions of the street and curbing along Clark avenue.

There is also a bad condition in Tenth street at the "Y" connection from the Trotters' hill district sewer into the trunk sewer, the feeder line being clogged up.

Similar conditions exisit in the territory between Fourteenth and Fifteenth street, a large amount of dirt and gravel having been washed out on Fourteenth.

A slip in the Lisbon road, just within the city limits, looms as a possible menace to traffic. Warning lights are kept on the slip by the city until an opportunity is presented to clean it up.

The city is now building another breaker in McQueen's Run Hollow, rails having been donated for the purpose by the street car company.

"If rocks, logs and other debris can be kept out of the sewer, it will carry away water under practically any conditions," asserts Mayor Fogo.

This sewer, which presents the chief trouble at the present time, is packed tight in places by heavy rock and timber and in other places is open. It is in good condition at the river, says Mayor Fogo, the river's high stages having failed to hamper its operation to any extent.

Portions of Twentieth street have been washed down. Cellars have been flooded, foundations under porches washed away, and lawns washed out.

Repair work can't be completed before cold weather sets in in earnest, in Mayor Fogo's opinion, bceause of the great extent of work, but repairs, he said, will be rushed as rapidly as is physically possible. The crew worked yesterday in a drizzling rain and will get in every day possible from now on.

Oklahoma Man, 101, Visiting Best Girl In Kentucky, 104

WILLIAMS, Okla.—Gustavius H. Namon of this city is 101 years old—but not too old to retain an interest in his girl friends.

In fact, Mr. Namon is now on the way to Kentucky for a visit with his "best girl," who is 104. He sees and hears well, and claims the honor of being the second oldest Mason in the United States.

"Work hard and don't worry" is his answer to those who would live long.

"I've never seen a moving picture," he said. "It's a shame to pay for entertainment when there are so many good shows out on the street." And as a group of young girls passed by, dressed in ultra-modern fashion, the centenarian waved a languid hand.

"Just look," he said.

Panhandle division trains of the Pennsylvania railroad are being "detoured" over the Cleveland & Pittsburgh division today as Pennsylvania railroad workmen swing the last span of the new Ohio river bridge at Steubenville into place today. It is estimated that approximately 10 hours will be required to complete the operation.

The Panhandle trains are being switched on to the C. & P. division from Mingo Junction, going through Wellsville, East Liverpool and Rochester; thence to Pittsburgh.

RUSH SEWER REPAIR WORK

Rain Storm Damage is Worst in City's History.

Facing the most difficult and troublesome municipal repair job in the history of the city, a large crew of workmen, under the direction of Mayor W. L. Fogo and Safey-Service Director George P. Ashley is "carrying on" in the western, storm-swept section of the city that has been partially inundated, for days at a stretch, on at least three different occasions in the past two months.

"Without doubt, it is the worst repair job the city has had to tackle in its entire history," declared Mayor W. L. Fogo today as he outlined the tasks that must be completed before final evidences of the storms are erased from view.

There has been a large crew of men at work, chiefly in the district through which the McQueen's Run hollow sewer runs, for six weeks. Repairs had progressed rapidly and the end was in sight last week when the third, and probably, the worst of the rain storms, swept the city and six weeks' work went for naught.

The sewer from Eighteenth street to Crawford avenue, above Buckeye avenue, is in bad shape and in need of repair work.

A break also was discovered in the McQueen's Run Hollow sewer in Clark avenue, between Aten avenue and Henry avenue, beneath the Leyda property. The water broke through near the bottom of the sewer and drained out portions of the yard in the Leyda home. Three days were required there to clean up the rock and debris washed out over the street car tracks.

Fifteen feet of five-foot sewer were washed away at Twenty-second street, as well as portions of the street and curbing along Clark avenue.

There is also a bad condition in Tenth street at the "Y" connection from the Trotters' hill district sewer into the trunk sewer, the feeder line being clogged up.

Similar conditions exisit in the territory between Fourteenth and Fifteenth street, a large amount of dirt and gravel having been washed out on Fourteenth.

A slip in the Lisbon road, just within the city limits, looms as a possible menace to traffic. Warning lights are kept on the slip by the city until an opportunity is presented to clean it up.

The city is now building another breaker in McQueen's Run Hollow, rails having been donated for the purpose by the street car company.

"If rocks, logs and other debris can be kept out of the sewer, it will carry away water under practically any conditions," asserts Mayor Fogo.

This sewer, which presents the chief trouble at the present time, is packed tight in places by heavy rock and timber and in other places is open. It is in good condition at the river, says Mayor Fogo, the river's high stages having failed to hamper its operation to any extent.

Portions of Twentieth street have been washed down. Cellars have been flooded, foundations under porches washed away, and lawns washed out.

Repair work can't be completed before cold weather sets in in earnest, in Mayor Fogo's opinion, bceause of the great extent of work, but repairs, he said, will be rushed as rapidly as is physically possible. The crew worked yesterday in a drizzling rain and will get in every day possible from now on.

Oklahoma Man, 101, Visiting Best Girl In Kentucky, 104

WILLIAMS, Okla.—Gustavius H. Namon of this city is 101 years old—but not too old to retain an interest in his girl friends.

In fact, Mr. Namon is now on the way to Kentucky for a visit with his "best girl," who is 104. He sees and hears well, and claims the honor of being the second oldest Mason in the United States.

"Work hard and don't worry" is his answer to those who would live long.

"I've never seen a moving picture," he said. "It's a shame to pay for entertainment when there are so many good shows out on the street." And as a group of young girls passed by, dressed in ultra-modern fashion, the centenarian waved a languid hand.

"Just look," he said.

Buying On Time

Many have been the warnings of the dangers of buying on time. It is interesting to hear another view. Mr. E. G. Vogel of the Commercial Investment Trust Co., says in the Investment Review issued by Dillon Read and Co., that installment buying is helping to promote prosperity.

"The soundness of installment payment financing as an American institution is evidenced in the fact that a corporation such as the Commercial Investment Trust Co., has never had a losing year and that its profits in each of its eighteen years have shown an increase over the year previous. Even the financial public does not yet realize the service the soundly managed financing company is performing for American prosperity.

"The country might have gone into severe depression in -920-21 if it had not been for the great prosperity of the motor industry. The financing company helped make this possible. It kept the motor car manufacturer in cash through the financing of the dealer and brought the automobile within the reach of a huge new public. Therefore the financing company is constantly relieving what would otherwise be a great strain on the country's financial system, and, in eliminating loans of millions from banks to large industries, reduces risks to a few hundred dollars."

This is, of course, a professional view, coming from an agency which make a business of financing installment buying. The ordinary citizen, however, can see its reasonableness. He can see, also, the fact that the habit of installment buying to some extent stablizies purchases. It necessitates a certain amount of budgeting. The necessity of meeting payments often forces carefree young people to take thought about their finances as spread over a long period.

They adjust their living to meet the payments. When the washing machine is paid for, the same paying power is available for the ironer or the radio. Little by little the paying power increases, and is devoted to ever better and more lasting things. Buyers learn to discriminate, and soon stop paying for dead horses in favor of live houses.

The warnings are necessary no doubt. But installment buying is quite plainly here to stay, and its cheerful side is also important.

Northwestern Cold

Florida's troubles are very great, but at least she has reasonable weather in which to clear away her debris and begin her reconstruction. The great northwest must suffer its snows and frosts and the ruin of its crops and look on, helpless. This season's grain can have no reconstruction.

The whole country seems to be suffering, this year, from unusual weather of some sort.

Fortunate it is that America has never lost her pioneering courage.

Russia's Hydro

The fact that an American syndicate is willing to spend $55,000,000 on water-electric power on the Dnieper river is of almost untold importance not only to Russia and to America but to the whole world.

The powers of some of the eastern countries seem definitely on the wane, their best having come and gone ages ago, though they may see much new and good yet. But Russia is a child with its growth and life all before it.

When one considers what electric power has done for America, in the way of industrial and cultural development, the possibilities afforded by a great hydro development for Russia make one gasp. Light to work by, light to read by, power to make wheels go around, releasing human energy from sodden drudgery to skilled labor—that is the prospect in store for Russia. The old folks may resist the new things, may never understand what is going on. But their children will take the new power as a matter of course, build their lives on it, grow, think, find happiness.

Says the New York World: "To bring the Russian people into contact with the rest of the world through the medium of an expanding commerce will prove the most effective antidote to the fantastic teachings of the Bolshevist leaders." And as a matter of fact, the extreme teachings of bolshevism have already given way before the needs of commerce. The government is settling down into a surprising stability.

If this American hydro project goes through, it means an enormous gain in all directions for Russia. And it means that there will be more and more American engineering projects there with their accompanying benefits.

More than all else it means the awakening of the peasant to the modern world.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The Bowery continues to unroll its panorama of high lights and shadows. In the early morning are the blowzy groups that clot about the labor agencies where chalked bulletins herald jobs as track laborers, dish washers, porters and the like.

The restaurants with the fare frosted on windows offer such hardy breakfasts as steak, potatoes, coffee and pie for 20 cents. And there are the two-cent coffee and bun stands which draw the collection of matutinal misfits.

Near Duane street was a woman with bedraggled skirt and discolored eye in an alcoholic haze haranguing an imaginary foe while early workers merely glanced and walked on. The Bowery is used to early morning wrecks with bloodshot glares.

The cheap lodging houses disgorge their sluggish patrons who must make way for the day sleep of night workers. The hallways smell of gas and stale pipe smoke and lead up to grim catacombs where dispirited men try to banish reality in dreams.

But the Bowery is not all sordid and squalid. There are department stores as brisk and showy as those uptown. There are resplendent banks—one is among the richest in the world. There are beauty and manicure parlors and garish restaurants.

There is a pawn broker who rides to work in a carriage, carries a gold-headed cane and wears a silk hat. There are well dressed young ladies whose smile of indulgent disdain is not far removed from their sisters of Fifth avenue.

Yet the overtone of poverty is there—as pronounced as zebra stripes. The old men and old women, like decrepid alley cats, prowl about, hunting ferret-like for something they seem to know they will never find. It is old age penury at its worst.

Those vibrant young girls seen lunching daily with the foxy type of old men play difficult roles well. They hang on every word and put so much vitality into their glances and smiles that they are deserving of the rewards—whatever they may be.

Somehow the aging Romeos who have divorced their wives, moved to the club and tuned up for a new pace do not appear to get so much fun out of the adventure as they possibly imagined. They are conscious that most of their friendships are for a price. I once heard a Lorelei complain petulantly to her aged escort shortly after midnight: "I have spent the evening with you and all I got out of it is a wilted orchid and a hiccough.

These romantic attachments usually wind up with "you ain't done right by our Nell" climax and the antiquarian discoveres this baby talk has jolted him out of a sizeable check. But boys will be boys—and a new crop toddles along every season.

A theatrical producer tells of a time when he touched financial shoals and got backing from a 65-year-old gentleman. It was stipulated in the agreement that the most beautiful of the girls would be willing to lunch with him when he desired. He was a harmless duffer who merely enjoyed the reflected glory of a stage beauty.

A milliner intimates those scoopy hats were so popular this summer that next year they will get even larger. It should be a big year for the tent makers. And a bad year for revolving doors.

THE DIFFERENCE THAT MONEY MADE

In the old boom days at Virginia City James Fair, the famous Silver magnate, was sitting one day in a barroom. It will be recalled that Mr. Fair, despite his lack of book-learning, amassed a great many millions of dollars and became a leader in several lines of endeavor.

As he sat there the bar-keeper, who was writing a letter, called out to him, asking how to spell the word 'bird."

"B-U-R-D," answered Mr. Fair.

"That's the way I thought it was," said the letter-writer.

An educated gambler who had overheard this conversation bided his time. On the following day, finding Mr. Fair in company of a group of mining-men, the gambler offered to bet him a hundred dollars that he could not correctly spell the word bird.

"B-I-R-D," said Mr. Fair, reaching for the stakes.

"My Lord!" exclaimed the loser, "You didn't spell it that way yesterday."

"Son," answered Mr. Fair softly, 'there wasn't any money up on it yesterday."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Rabbit Industry.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—If a single city of the United States that had less than 600,000 population according to the last decennial census affords a market for more than $1,000,000 worth of dressed rabbit meat in a year; if the country imports more than 100,000,000 rabbit pelts a year, the supply of domestic pelts being only about two per cent of our requirements, and if rabbits begin to breed at the age of six or eight months and breed six or eight times a year, producing litters that average from six to ten, what are the possibilities of the rabbit-growing industry?

As a further factor in working out the answer to this problem it may be stated that it costs the grower 30 cents to bring a rabbit to a marketable weight of four pounds, and that he will receive for it 18 to 20 cents a pound, live weight. On this basis the grower's margin is from 45 to 50 cents a head over the cost of production.

Obviously the answer is that the industry has a great future and that it is certain to show an amazing expansion and development within the next few years.

At any rate, it is an industry of sufficient importance and promise to engage the attention of the United States department of agriculture, which has assigned biologists to keep track of its development and is issuing propaganda on how the rabbit propagates and what human beings may realize out of this animal's propensity to multiply more rapidly than an adding machine adds.

Rabbits have been bred for food and fur in this country for many years, says a recent departmental statement, and both wild and domestic varieties have had a place on the American table, but their importance has been minor and seasonal. In the last few years, however, on the Pacific Coast, particularly in southern California, the production of domestic rabbits has become an industry of consequence, and it is growing with such leaps and bounds that no one can say people have 100 to 200 breeders, some country over.

Demand Ahead of Supply.

In the Los Angeles and San Diego districts of California, rabbits are produced in very large numbers. Some people have 100 to 200 breders, some only half a dozen, and others keep from 500 to 5,000, according to this government authority. Almost everybody in the rural districts there has at least a few.

There are now three slaughter houses in the Los Angeles district that kill, dress, and market from 25,000 to 35,000 rabbits a month, and the demand still keeps ahead of the supply. Hotels and restaurants serve rabbits along with other meats, and the people use large quantities on the home table.

Los Angeles is the city with a population of less than 600,000 according to the last federal census that consumed more than a million dollars' worth of rabbit meat last year. However, the population of the city has increased rapidly since 1920—local enthusiasts claim that it has doubled—and this may in a degree explain the great growth in the demand for rabbit meat. But credit Los Angeles with a population of at least 1,000,000 and it is seen that there is a potential market in the United States for more than $100,000,000 worth of rabbit meat a year.

This is not taking into account the possibilities of rabbit fur. The pelts are a by-product, but very important, says the official bulletin. Felt hats are made out of rabbit fur. Gloves are lined with it. Garments are trimmed with it. The pelts are stretched, dried, and shipped to the raw-fur buyers in New York City. This country imports annually more than 100,000,000 rabbit pelts from Australia, New Zealand, France, Belgium and England. Most of them come from Australia and New Zealand, from wild rabbits. The supply of domestic pelts, it may be repeated, now amounts to but two percent of our requirements.

There are some 20 standard breeds of domestic rabbits, it is stated, but the western breeders now confine their operations mainly to four—New Zealand Reds, New Zealand Whites, American Blues, and Chinchillas. The first three mentioned are generally considered best from a meat standpoint, as they are prolific breeders, mature rapidly, and dress out economically. The Chinchilla yields a smaller carcass, but an extra-fine pelt.

The young rabbit is marketed as a fryer at eight weeks old, when it weighs on an average about four pounds. For the first four weeks it receives no other food than the doe's milk. Then for the last four weeks it is fed on a ration of whole oats, crushed barley, and alfalfa hay. Very little green food is fed. The producer sells direct to the slaughter houses which operate large trucks which call at the rabbitries regularly each week. The dressed rabbits are sold to meat markets, clubs, hotels and restaurants, and the retail price is from 45 to 50 cents a pound.

The Department's Activities.

The department of agriculture, through the bureau of Biological Survey, is doing what it can to promote this growing rabbit industry, says the departmental official record. Experiments in rabbit production are being conducted with various breeds on its experimental fur farm at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. The bureau is coopperating with the National Rabbit Federation in general extension and experimental work and with the Rabbit Breeders' Exchange in the grading and sale of rabbit skins in order

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The Bowery continues to unroll its panorama of high lights and shadows. In the early morning are the blowzy groups that clot about the labor agencies where chalked bulletins herald jobs as track laborers, dish washers, porters and the like.

The restaurants with the fare frosted on windows offer such hardy breakfasts as steak, potatoes, coffee and pie for 20 cents. And there are the two-cent coffee and bun stands which draw the collection of matutinal misfits.

Near Duane street was a woman with bedraggled skirt and discolored eye in an alcoholic haze haranguing an imaginary foe while early workers merely glanced and walked on. The Bowery is used to early morning wrecks with bloodshot glares.

The cheap lodging houses disgorge their sluggish patrons who must make way for the day sleep of night workers. The hallways smell of gas and stale pipe smoke and lead up to grim catacombs where dispirited men try to banish reality in dreams.

But the Bowery is not all sordid and squalid. There are department stores as brisk and showy as those uptown. There are resplendent banks—one is among the richest in the world. There are beauty and manicure parlors and garish restaurants.

There is a pawn broker who rides to work in a carriage, carries a gold-headed cane and wears a silk hat. There are well dressed young ladies whose smile of indulgent disdain is not far removed from their sisters of Fifth avenue.

Yet the overtone of poverty is there—as pronounced as zebra stripes. The old men and old women, like decrepid alley cats, prowl about, hunting ferret-like for something they seem to know they will never find. It is old age penury at its worst.

Those vibrant young girls seen lunching daily with the foxy type of old men play difficult roles well. They hang on every word and put so much vitality into their glances and smiles that they are deserving of the rewards—whatever they may be.

Somehow the aging Romeos who have divorced their wives, moved to the club and tuned up for a new pace do not appear to get so much fun out of the adventure as they possibly imagined. They are conscious that most of their friendships are for a price. I once heard a Lorelei complain petulantly to her aged escort shortly after midnight: "I have spent the evening with you and all I got out of it is a wilted orchid and a hiccough.

These romantic attachments usually wind up with "you ain't done right by our Nell" climax and the antiquarian discoveres this baby talk has jolted him out of a sizeable check. But boys will be boys—and a new crop toddles along every season.

A theatrical producer tells of a time when he touched financial shoals and got backing from a 65-year-old gentleman. It was stipulated in the agreement that the most beautiful of the girls would be willing to lunch with him when he desired. He was a harmless duffer who merely enjoyed the reflected glory of a stage beauty.

THE DIFFERENCE THAT MONEY MADE

In the old boom days at Virginia City James Fair, the famous Silver magnate, was sitting one day in a barroom. It will be recalled that Mr. Fair, despite his lack of book-learning, amassed a great many millions of dollars and became a leader in several lines of endeavor.

As he sat there the bar-keeper, who was writing a letter, called out to him, asking how to spell the word 'bird."

"B-U-R-D," answered Mr. Fair.

"That's the way I thought it was," said the letter-writer.

An educated gambler who had overheard this conversation bided his time. On the following day, finding Mr. Fair in company of a group of mining-men, the gambler offered to bet him a hundred dollars that he could not correctly spell the word bird.

"B-I-R-D," said Mr. Fair, reaching for the stakes.

"My Lord!" exclaimed the loser, "You didn't spell it that way yesterday."

"Son," answered Mr. Fair softly, 'there wasn't any money up on it yesterday."

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Rabbit Industry.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—If a single city of the United States that had less than 600,000 population according to the last decennial census affords a market for more than $1,000,000 worth of dressed rabbit meat in a year; if the country imports more than 100,000,000 rabbit pelts a year, the supply of domestic pelts being only about two per cent of our requirements, and if rabbits begin to breed at the age of six or eight months and breed six or eight times a year, producing litters that average from six to ten, what are the possibilities of the rabbit-growing industry?

As a further factor in working out the answer to this problem it may be stated that it costs the grower 30 cents to bring a rabbit to a marketable weight of four pounds, and that he will receive for it 18 to 20 cents a pound, live weight. On this basis the grower's margin is from 45 to 50 cents a head over the cost of production.

Obviously the answer is that the industry has a great future and that it is certain to show an amazing expansion and development within the next few years.

At any rate, it is an industry of sufficient importance and promise to engage the attention of the United States department of agriculture, which has assigned biologists to keep track of its development and is issuing propaganda on how the rabbit propagates and what human beings may realize out of this animal's propensity to multiply more rapidly than an adding machine adds.

Rabbits have been bred for food and fur in this country for many years, says a recent departmental statement, and both wild and domestic varieties have had a place on the American table, but their importance has been minor and seasonal. In the last few years, however, on the Pacific Coast, particularly in southern California, the production of domestic rabbits has become an industry of consequence, and it is growing with such leaps and bounds that no one can say people have 100 to 200 breeders, some country over.

Demand Ahead of Supply.

In the Los Angeles and San Diego districts of California, rabbits are produced in very large numbers. Some people have 100 to 200 breders, some only half a dozen, and others keep from 500 to 5,000, according to this government authority. Almost everybody in the rural districts there has at least a few.

There are now three slaughter houses in the Los Angeles district that kill, dress, and market from 25,000 to 35,000 rabbits a month, and the demand still keeps ahead of the supply. Hotels and restaurants serve rabbits along with other meats, and the people use large quantities on the home table.

Los Angeles is the city with a population of less than 600,000 according to the last federal census that consumed more than a million dollars' worth of rabbit meat last year. However, the population of the city has increased rapidly since 1920—local enthusiasts claim that it has doubled—and this may in a degree explain the great growth in the demand for rabbit meat. But credit Los Angeles with a population of at least 1,000,000 and it is seen that there is a potential market in the United States for more than $100,000,000 worth of rabbit meat a year.

This is not taking into account the possibilities of rabbit fur. The pelts are a by-product, but very important, says the official bulletin. Felt hats are made out of rabbit fur. Gloves are lined with it. Garments are trimmed with it. The pelts are stretched, dried, and shipped to the raw-fur buyers in New York City. This country imports annually more than 100,000,000 rabbit pelts from Australia, New Zealand, France, Belgium and England. Most of them come from Australia and New Zealand, from wild rabbits. The supply of domestic pelts, it may be repeated, now amounts to but two percent of our requirements.

There are some 20 standard breeds of domestic rabbits, it is stated, but the western breeders now confine their operations mainly to four—New Zealand Reds, New Zealand Whites, American Blues, and Chinchillas. The first three mentioned are generally considered best from a meat standpoint, as they are prolific breeders, mature rapidly, and dress out economically. The Chinchilla yields a smaller carcass, but an extra-fine pelt.

The young rabbit is marketed as a fryer at eight weeks old, when it weighs on an average about four pounds. For the first four weeks it receives no other food than the doe's milk. Then for the last four weeks it is fed on a ration of whole oats, crushed barley, and alfalfa hay. Very little green food is fed. The producer sells direct to the slaughter houses which operate large trucks which call at the rabbitries regularly each week. The dressed rabbits are sold to meat markets, clubs, hotels and restaurants, and the retail price is from 45 to 50 cents a pound.

The Department's Activities.

The department of agriculture, through the bureau of Biological Survey, is doing what it can to promote this growing rabbit industry, says the departmental official record. Experiments in rabbit production are being conducted with various breeds on its experimental fur farm at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. The bureau is coopperating with the National Rabbit Federation in general extension and experimental work and with the Rabbit Breeders' Exchange in the grading and sale of rabbit skins in order

From 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. and 5 to 10 P. M., registrars will be on duty in 21 precincts of East Liverpool, the only registration city in Columbiana county, to enroll electors who neglected to qualify for the presidential balloting in 1924, or a subsequent election. Transfers, too, will be issued.

Three other days of registration also have been designated. They are: Thursday, Oct. 7; Friday and Saturday, Oct. 15 and 16.

Don't wait until the last minute. Register tomorrow.

Buying On Time

Many have been the warnings of the dangers of buying on time. It is interesting to hear another view. Mr. E. G. Vogel of the Commercial Investment Trust Co., says in the Investment Review issued by Dillon Read and Co., that installment buying is helping to promote prosperity.

"The soundness of installment payment financing as an American institution is evidenced in the fact that a corporation such as the Commercial Investment Trust Co., has never had a losing year and that its profits in each of its eighteen years have shown an increase over the year previous. Even the financial public does not yet realize the service the soundly managed financing company is performing for American prosperity.

"The country might have gone into severe depression in -920-21 if it had not been for the great prosperity of the motor industry. The financing company helped make this possible. It kept the motor car manufacturer in cash through the financing of the dealer and brought the automobile within the reach of a huge new public. Therefore the financing company is constantly relieving what would otherwise be a great strain on the country's financial system, and, in eliminating loans of millions from banks to large industries, reduces risks to a few hundred dollars."

This is, of course, a professional view, coming from an agency which make a business of financing installment buying. The ordinary citizen, however, can see its reasonableness. He can see, also, the fact that the habit of installment buying to some extent stablizies purchases. It necessitates a certain amount of budgeting. The necessity of meeting payments often forces carefree young people to take thought about their finances as spread over a long period.

They adjust their living to meet the payments. When the washing machine is paid for, the same paying power is available for the ironer or the radio. Little by little the paying power increases, and is devoted to ever better and more lasting things. Buyers learn to discriminate, and soon stop paying for dead horses in favor of live houses.

The warnings are necessary no doubt. But installment buying is quite plainly here to stay, and its cheerful side is also important.

Northwestern Cold

Florida's troubles are very great, but at least she has reasonable weather in which to clear away her debris and begin her reconstruction. The great northwest must suffer its snows and frosts and the ruin of its crops and look on, helpless. This season's grain can have no reconstruction.

The whole country seems to be suffering, this year, from unusual weather of some sort.

Fortunate it is that America has never lost her pioneering courage.

Russia's Hydro

The fact that an American syndicate is willing to spend $55,000,000 on water-electric power on the Dnieper river is of almost untold importance not only to Russia and to America but to the whole world.

The powers of some of the eastern countries seem definitely on the wane, their best having come and gone ages ago, though they may see much new and good yet. But Russia is a child with its growth and life all before it.

When one considers what electric power has done for America, in the way of industrial and cultural development, the possibilities afforded by a great hydro development for Russia make one gasp. Light to work by, light to read by, power to make wheels go around, releasing human energy from sodden drudgery to skilled labor—that is the prospect in store for Russia. The old folks may resist the new things, may never understand what is going on. But their children will take the new power as a matter of course, build their lives on it, grow, think, find happiness.

Says the New York World: "To bring the Russian people into contact with the rest of the world through the medium of an expanding commerce will prove the most effective antidote to the fantastic teachings of the Bolshevist leaders." And as a matter of fact, the extreme teachings of bolshevism have already given way before the needs of commerce. The government is settling down into a surprising stability.

If this American hydro project goes through, it means an enormous gain in all directions for Russia. And it means that there will be more and more American engineering projects there with their accompanying benefits.

More than all else it means the awakening of the peasant to the modern world.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The Bowery continues to unroll its panorama of high lights and shadows. In the early morning are the blowzy groups that clot about the labor agencies where chalked bulletins herald jobs as track laborers, dish washers, porters and the like.

The restaurants with the fare frosted on windows offer such hardy breakfasts as steak, potatoes, coffee and pie for 20 cents. And there are the two-cent coffee and bun stands which draw the collection of matutinal misfits.

Near Duane street was a woman with bedraggled skirt and discolored eye in an alcoholic haze haranguing an imaginary foe while early workers merely glanced and walked on. The Bowery is used to early morning wrecks with bloodshot glares.

The cheap lodging houses disgorge their sluggish patrons who must make way for the day sleep of night workers. The hallways smell of gas and stale pipe smoke and lead up to grim catacombs where dispirited men try to banish reality in dreams.

But the Bowery is not all sordid and squalid. There are department stores as brisk and showy as those uptown. There are resplendent banks—one is among the richest in the world. There are beauty and manicure parlors and garish restaurants.

There is a pawn broker who rides to work in a carriage, carries a gold-headed cane and wears a silk hat. There are well dressed young ladies whose smile of indulgent disdain is not far removed from their sisters of Fifth avenue.

Yet the overtone of poverty is there—as pronounced as zebra stripes. The old men and old women, like decrepid alley cats, prowl about, hunting ferret-like for something they seem to know they will never find. It is old age penury at its worst.

BOOK THREE—VI.

His determination to shield Brad never wavered. But a little instinct for self-preservation made him say, "As for that, you can tell Ken Kennedy—or I'll tell him myself—that Eunice telephoned me that night to tell me Brad was missing, and to ask me to try to find him. He had said he'd be back at nine, and at one he hadn't come, and she was scared. That's why I went over there. I was going out to look for him, but he came in just a few minutes after I got there.

"Where had he been?" Bones interrogated.

This required a lie. "I don't know, he didn't say. He'd had engine trouble somewhere—that was what made him so late."

"Well," Bones said drearily, "you ought to talk to the boys about it. You ought to stick up for yourself. This damn talk that's going around—there's no sense to it—and it would only take a few words from you to set it straight, with the fraternity at least. They don't want to think the things they're thinking, Jock! If you only knew why Brad did it, some logical reason that would let you out—but you don't, do you?" His voice was pleading.

"No," said Jock, looking him straight in the eyes. "No, I haven't idea."

Following this conversation, he considered having a talk with Ken Kennedy and some of the boys. But in the end he decided against it. "I can't tell 'em the truth," he reflected, "and anything else wouldn't do any good. Hell, let 'em think what they want to."

Still, he felt somewhat bitter. "Brothers." There was irony in that term now. The pledges they took to stand by one another, and then when something like this happened they were as quick as any outsider to lose faith! . . . He assured himself he didn't care what they thought, but in reality he cared tremendously; he cared so much that at times he was sorely tempted to tell them the truth about Brad and show them the letter. An impish voice in his ear would whisper, "Brad's dead. It wouldn't hurt him. It can hurt you. It's hurting you now. You've got your life to live. Go ahead and tell them, you fool." . . .

But week succeeded dragging week, and he did not.

VII.

The Zeta Kappa staircase was so constructed that any one descending came into sight piece by piece, like a sectional postcard opened lengthwise. At noontime of a mild spring-like day in late February Jock Hamill's feet appeared at the top of these stairs and proceeded to bring the rest of him slowly down. Handsome legs in golf stockings of a blue-and-gray diamond pattern. Knickers, voluminous and drooping low. Coat that matched the knickers, bisected by an oblong of white linen shirt. Surmounting this oblong, a soft collar with a neat bow tie. And finally, the sculptured brunette head that made all young women and some old ones catch their breaths a little.

At the foot of the stairs the head ducked forward in an attitude of listening, and Jock stood still. A medley of excited voices drifted to him from the living room.

". . . . If that's not hot I'm crazy!" . . . Yes, and look at the bus, will you? She must be Mrs. Rolls Royce" . . . "Say, they're stopping here!" "Probably got the wrong place, no luck, boys, no luck" . . . "Well, don't tell her if she has. Let's kill the fatted calf and have her in" . . .

Upon entering the room whence emanated these peculiar comments, Jock perceived a group of his mates struggling for points of vantage at the front windows. He joined them.

A monstrous limousine, painted creamy white and agleam with polished nickel, was drawn up at the curb outside. A chauffeur in uniform presided at the wheel, and in the tonneau, like a glittering jewel in a showcase, sat Yvonne. She was leaning forward, looking inquiringly at the house, and she wore garments that matched her equipage . . . a white wrap of ermine, and a white toque against which her hair flamed conspicuous as blood on snow . . .

These things Jock noted in the fraction of a second. Another second, and he was yanking the front door open, taking the porch steps in one jump, crossing the sidewalk. "Yvonne!"

For a while that was all he could say; her name, over and over again. So many words beat at his lips at once, and impeded each other, and locked each other in. "Yvonne!" . . . He took both her white-gloved hands and held them in a grip that must have hurt her. He devoured her with his eyes. "Oh, Yvonne—"

She smiled at him, that remembered smile that carved a long, dreamy dimple deep in one cheek. "You didn't forget me, Jock Hamill?" And presently she laughed aloud and said, "Why don't you say something?"

"I can't," Jock told her. "I'm too crazy-happy. I just want to look at you—"

Then questions came in a swift stream. When had she returned to New York? Why hadn't she let him know? How did she happen to be here? . . .

"Day before yesterday," she retorted. "And I thought, instead of letting you know, I'd drive down here and see for myself whether or not you still cared about knowing—"

"You're finding out, all right!"

"Um-hum. You are glad to see me, aren't you?"

"Well—roughly speaking!" he almost shouted.

Her great gray eyes wandered past him then, to the Zeta Kappa facade. "I don't think I ever beheld quite so many heads," she observed.

Jock turned. The windows were indeed full of heads, still staring with unashamed interest. As he looked, the heads bobbed and grinned, and one youth lifted his right hand, clasped it with his left, and shook it vigorously in token of wholehearted approbation. It came to Jock that they had not shown him such friendly attention for weeks. "Look!" he said. "Right now I'm the most popular man in the fraternity, because I'm the only one who knows you." Pride swelled in him, and he tugged at Yvonne's little hand. "Come on, darling—come in a minute and let me introduce them."

"Mountain to Mohammed?" began Yvonne. But something about Jock's face made her yield. She got out of the limousine and stood, straight and slim and dazzling, on the pavement. "You just want to parade me," she accused, dimpling up at him, "like a little trick puppy on a leash!"

"You bet your sweet life I do!" he admitted joyously. "I want to walk in there with a 'yah-see-what-I-found' look in my eye, and watch you mow 'em down like—say, what are you laughing at, woman?"

"You. You're so adorably naive."

"You mean I'm so idiotically in love—"

BOOK THREE—VI.

His determination to shield Brad never wavered. But a little instinct for self-preservation made him say, "As for that, you can tell Ken Kennedy—or I'll tell him myself—that Eunice telephoned me that night to tell me Brad was missing, and to ask me to try to find him. He had said he'd be back at nine, and at one he hadn't come, and she was scared. That's why I went over there. I was going out to look for him, but he came in just a few minutes after I got there.

"Where had he been?" Bones interrogated.

This required a lie. "I don't know, he didn't say. He'd had engine trouble somewhere—that was what made him so late."

"Well," Bones said drearily, "you ought to talk to the boys about it. You ought to stick up for yourself. This damn talk that's going around—there's no sense to it—and it would only take a few words from you to set it straight, with the fraternity at least. They don't want to think the things they're thinking, Jock! If you only knew why Brad did it, some logical reason that would let you out—but you don't, do you?" His voice was pleading.

"No," said Jock, looking him straight in the eyes. "No, I haven't [illegible] idea."

Following this conversation, he considered having a talk with Ken Kennedy and some of the boys. But in the end he decided against it. "I can't tell 'em the truth," he reflected, "and anything else wouldn't do any good. Hell, let 'em think what they want to."

Still, he felt somewhat bitter. "Brothers." There was irony in that term now. The pledges they took to stand by one another, and then when something like this happened they were as quick as any outsider to lose faith! . . . He assured himself he didn't care what they thought, but in reality he cared tremendously; he cared so much that at times he was sorely tempted to tell them the truth about Brad and show them the letter. An impish voice in his ear would whisper, "Brad's dead. It wouldn't hurt him. It can hurt you. It's hurting you now. You've got your life to live. Go ahead and tell them, you fool." . . .

"THE ARABIAN" IS STAGE HIT

Walker Whiteside and Cast Delight Ceramic Audience,

Walker Whiteside, the inimitable portrayer of Grandee Oriental roles, came and conquered East Liverpool last night in the modern comedy romance, "The Arabian," in which he enacted the dominant character of Abd el Rey, famous bandit of the Egyptian desert.

Capably assisted by Miss Sydney Shields, whose delineation of the character of Diane won the plaudits of her audience, Whiteside was forced to respond to many curtain calls during the three act presentation at the Ceramic theatre.

A large crowd witnessed the production, and it is a safe wager that a sell-out would have resulted had "The Arabian" remained for a second day. Critics were a unit in declaring it the supreme dramatic event of the season, and it was evident why Whiteside's latest success ran for months at the Studebaker theatre in Chicago.

Coming from Pittsburgh, where "The Arabian" played a week's engagement to crowded houses at the Alvin, the company stopped here on a trans-continental tour that will keep them busy until next May. After a swing through Ohio, Kentucky and the west, Whiteside and his supporting cast will go to the Pacific coast, where engagements have been booked in Los Angeles, San Francisco and other cities.

"The Arabian" is a story of London, Cairo and the Egyptian desert. It is a thrilling one of high adventure, soul-stirring romance and scintillating wit and humor, dealing with the banditry of Abd el Rey, whose brigandage in the Egyptian desert so arouses the London war office that an armed expedition is sent into his lair to kill or capture him.

It is a play superbly handled by Whiteside and Miss Shields and co-workers, and is well worth seeing.

More Rain Forecast as Cards-Yanks, Try to Practice.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — With a steady drizzle falling this morning and "occasional rains" predicted by the weather bureau for this afternoon, early indications were that the Yankees and the Cardinals would be unable to practice today at Yankee stadium. The players were idle yesterday because of rain and cold.

The Cardinals are anxious to take as many workouts as possible before the world series opens here Saturday, as they realize the necessity of familiarizing themselves with the Yankees' playing field.

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cardinals, received a telegram from St. Louis that 150 Mound City rooters will arrive here Saturday on a special train. Meanwhile applications for series tickets continue to pour in at the Yankee offices here. Indications are that the games here will be a "sell-out."

Any chance to break attendance records on the coming series faded with the decision of Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, not to construct temporary bleachers on the playing field at Sportsman's park. This means that the capacity of the St. Louis park will be cut from a possible 40,000 to about 35,000.

FLAG RIVALS ARE KEPT IDLE

More Rain Forecast as Cards-Yanks, Try to Practice.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — With a steady drizzle falling this morning and "occasional rains" predicted by the weather bureau for this afternoon, early indications were that the Yankees and the Cardinals would be unable to practice today at Yankee stadium. The players were idle yesterday because of rain and cold.

The Cardinals are anxious to take as many workouts as possible before the world series opens here Saturday, as they realize the necessity of familiarizing themselves with the Yankees' playing field.

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cardinals, received a telegram from St. Louis that 150 Mound City rooters will arrive here Saturday on a special train. Meanwhile applications for series tickets continue to pour in at the Yankee offices here. Indications are that the games here will be a "sell-out."

Any chance to break attendance records on the coming series faded with the decision of Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, not to construct temporary bleachers on the playing field at Sportsman's park. This means that the capacity of the St. Louis park will be cut from a possible 40,000 to about 35,000.

Fabric from Thistledown.

Ostrich feathers plucked from the quills and treated by a secret process make a thistledown that is being used for one of the newer materials for women's apparel in Paris. The fabric is said to be softer than the finest crepe de chine.

"THE ARABIAN" IS STAGE HIT

Walker Whiteside and Cast Delight Ceramic Audience.

Walker Whiteside, the inimitable portrayer of Grandee Oriental roles, came and conquered East Liverpool last night in the modern comedy romance, "The Arabian," in which he enacted the dominant character of Abd el Rey, famous bandit of the Egyptian desert.

Capably assisted by Miss Sydney Shields, whose delineation of the character of Diane won the plaudits of her audience, Whiteside was forced to respond to many curtain calls during the three-act presentation at the Ceramic theatre.

A large crowd witnessed the production, and it is a safe wager that a sell-out would have resulted had "The Arabian" remained for a second day. Critics were a unit in declaring it the supreme dramatic event of the season, and it was evident why Whiteside's latest success ran for months at the Studebaker theatre in Chicago.

Coming from Pittsburgh, where "The Arabian" played a week's engagement to crowded houses at the Alvin, the company stopped here on a trans-continental tour that will keep them busy until next May. After a swing through Ohio, Kentucky and the west, Whiteside and his supporting cast will go to the Pacific coast, where engagements have been booked in Los Angeles, San Francisco and other cities.

"The Arabian" is a story of London, Cairo and the Egyptian desert. It is a thrilling one of high adventure, soul-stirring romance and scintillating wit and humor, dealing with the banditry of Abd el Rey, whose brigandage in the Egyptian desert so arouses the London war office that an armed expedition is sent into his lair to kill or capture him.

It is a play superbly handled by Whiteside and Miss Shields and coworkers, and is well worth seeing.

F. M. DAVIS DIES OF INJURIES

Physician's Son is Auto Accident Victim.

Injuries received in an automobile wreck Sunday afternoon caused the death of Frank M. Davis, 27 years old, New Sheffield, Pa., garage owner and a son of Dr. F. F. Davis, of Erie street, this city, in the Sewickley Valley General hospital. Davis' skull was fractured.

Davis and two companions were rounding a curve in the road near New Sheffield when their car crashed into a bride abutment and a telephone pole. Chester Springer, another occupant, sustained a shattered right leg, while William Gray, the third passenger, was unhurt.

Davis is survived by his father, his wife, Mrs. Elsie Johnson Davis, and three children, Ralph, Smith and Florence. He was a member of the Raccoon United Presbyterian church.

Funeral services will be conducted in the Raccoon church at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Burial will be made in the church cemetery.

SAFETY FIRST DRIVE OPENS

Railroad Representatives Speak in City Schools.

Co-operating with city and school officials, representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad have launched a safety first campaign among the East Liverpool school children.

A group of speakers includes Captain Worthington, Cleveland, head of the Pennsylvania railroad detective force; Douglas Leyda, Wellsville, railroad detective; Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, Superintendent of Schools C. S. McVay and Probation Officer John McShane.

The East End schools were visited yesterday and today the speakers are completing their rounds in the down town districts. The dangers of riding on freight trains and playing about the railroad right of way are being stressed.

A large poster in colors, entitled "Too Much to Pay for a Little Sport," is being left in each school room. The safety section of the American Railway association by this plan hopes to reduce railroad accidents by at least 35 percent by the end of 1930.

Robber Frustrated In Attempt to Rob Dr. Frost's Home

An unsuccessful attempt to rob the Dr. A. C. Frost home, St. Clair avenue, was made Monday night, it developed today.

Mrs. Frost, who had been on the second floor of the house, came down stairs about 8:30 o'clock, switching on the lights as she reached the bottom of the stairs. She opened the front door and as she did so an unidentified man leaped from the porch roof to the ground. He ran down St. Clair avenue in the direction of Gardendale.

Widow Favors St. Louis

Welch, "is almost unbelievable. Gifts from his friends and scores of others who had profited financially from the Browns' victory poured into Curt's hands and pockets. One sportsman, said Mrs. Welch who had won several thousand dollars on the series, "tipped" Curt to the extent of approximately $900.

Financial gifts from his well wishers in these halcyon days of baseball, however, were no novelty to the East Liverpool man. His daring and genuine ability won him countless purses and gifts of other nature throughout the season.

Curt was employed in those days by Chris Von Der Ahe, received an annual salary that might be considered substantial even in this era of baseball. But Von Der Ahe, says Mrs. Welch, was a considerate manager and always took care of his players.

Von Der Ahe, himself, had been making a living as a butcher before his entry into baseball. He saved his money and eventually bought his way into the ownership of the Browns and amassed a sizeable fortune.

Objected to "High Hat" Role.

It was a hobby of his to keep his team spic and span, whether in uniform or not, and to this end, he personally purchased two suits of civilian clothes each year for every member of his club, all of the suits being alike. To this outfit was added a high silk hat, and in this regalia the Browns usually made the principal streets of the town in which they played, before the game.

Curt was a handsome chap and could have enacted the "high hat" role with all the eclat of a Chesterfield, but an innate modesty and a nature that shrank from ostentatious show, made him rebel on every occasion that the silk chapeaus came into use.

Curt was a member of the St. Louis team until 1889, playing along with Tip O'Neill and Nichol in the outgarden, and covering most of the territory of the other two; Latham, third base; Bushong, catcher; Comiskey, first base; Gleason, shortstop; Barclay, second; Robinson, catcher, and Pitchers Foutz, Caruthers and McGinnis.

Leaving St. Louis he went to Philadelphia where he played for four years, going to Baltimore on a five-year contract. He became ill while playing at Baltimore and baseball ultimately lost one of its greatest heroes.

Curt's baseball days may have been shortened somewhat by his daring on the diamond, says Mrs. Welch, who frequently saw him risk life and limb in a slide down the base paths. Welch also was the victim of a "bean ball" in the closing days of his career. He was struck one afternoon in Baltimore below the jaw and he was carried off the field to Johns Hopkins hospital.

Curt lay on a hospital cot for two months or more. He was unable to speak for six weeks as a result of the blow.

But "Irish," as he was sometimes called, even though he was not Irish, left the game with a baseball reputation that probably has not been surpassed.

So Mrs. Welch, with a memory of other baseball days that cannot be erased by time, is pulling for St. Louis to beat those Yanks and win the championship.

Hornsby's Mother Dying

much of what I've done. Her interest in the series was real, not pretended because I am her son, but genuine.

Will Reach Decision Tonight.

After having spent the morning in touch by long distance with his mother's home, Hornsby, through Clarence Lloyd, secretary of the Cardinals, announced that he would reach a decision on his course by 5 o'clock this afternoon.

In the event he decides to go to his mother's bedside, he will take the 6 p. m. train for Austin, arriving there late Saturday. That will make it necessary for him to miss the two opening games of the series here, but in that event he expects to be able to rejoin the team in time for at least two of the games in St. Louis.

If Mrs. Hornsby should die and Hornsby remains for the series, as she has wished, the funeral will not be held until after the series is over and he can go to Austin, Lloyd announced.

The St. Louis club will work out this afternoon at the Yankee stadium, but Hornsby is not expected to take part in the practice. He is remaining close to his room.

Mother Wishes Him to Play.

"This morning my aunt told me that the last thing mother told her was that I must play in the series, come what may. She is five days away. If I thought I could reach her, it would be different. But I am afraid I can't. And even if I did, I know what her first words would be, if she could talk. She would want to know why I hadn't stayed here and played the game out."

The victory of the St. Louis club in that city. It was the climax of the sensational career of Hornsby, one was the first in 38 years of baseball of the greatest players of his time, and marked the culmination of two years of effort as a manager as well as the ambition of his lifetime. For that reason, he attempted to explain today, and because his mother's interest in recent years had been wholly wrapped up in his success, yet was left facing the problem of her wishes and the prompting of his own mind as he approached the apex of his baseball career.

Beaver Valley Pictorial Car Goes To Cleveland Exhibit

Passes Through City on Way to American Electric Railway Association Convention.

An specially painted car of the Beaver Valley Traction company, enroute to the American Electric Railway Association convention at Cleveland, passed through East Liverpool at 6:30 o'clock this morning. It was routed over the Y. & O. tracks at the Diamond, to Salem, thence by Stark Electric to Ravenna and the Northern Ohio Traction road to lines of the Cleveland City railway.

The car bears a number of paintings of reproduction of products made in the factories of the Beaver Valley and others symbolic of industry in general. It is to be exhibited next week at Cleveland.

It will be displayed at the city auditorium, and is being sent to the convention at the invitation of Col. J. H. Alexander, of the Cleveland railways and the invitation of Lucius Storrs, managing director of the American Electric Railway association.

The car left the Beaver Valley yesterday. Prior to its departure it was necessary to change the trucks to the local gauge of tracks and it was quartered in the car barns of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company, East End, last night. It is manned by its own crew, but a courtesy crew having the actual operation is to be furnished by each traction line over which it must pass on its way to Cleveland.

STREET, BRIDGE REPAIR VOTED

Gasoline Tax Will Pay for Gardendale Job.

An emergency ordinance authorizing Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore to repair a bridge on De Bee street leading to Gardendale, was enacted last night at a special meeting of council. The structure was weakened by recent heavy rains.

An ordinance calling for the transfer of $1,500 for the work was tabled after the service-safety director informed the solons that money from the gas tax fund would take care of the cost.

Delegation of property owners from the Oakland section of East End urged that some action be taken relative to the situation caused by water flooding their cellars.

It was pointed out that a sewer in the district was unable to take care of the water in the recent storm which flooded every cellar from Green's store to Dry Run.

Council as a whole will view the premises tonight.

Vera Cruz Storm

this morning. Our office was not damaged, but we lost our power."

An official railroad message said the tracks in the city along the water front were under five feet of water, and that those in the outskirts of the city were under two feet of water.

The hurricane was reported traveling in a northerly direction.

The storm raged about Vera Cruz City for two hours, the wind reaching a velocity of a hundred miles an hour. Then it swept westward through central Vera Cruz state to the border of the state of Puebla, destroying all buildings of lighter construction. It left the city of Vera Cruz without light or power.

Rotarians' Party

Mountain for You," Mrs. Danks Cochran was the accompanist.

Three solos were rendered by Mrs. Weinhardt, with Miss Weaver at the piano. Miss Weaver then gave three solos, Miss Hall being her accompanist.

"Mr. Miller entertained his audience for nearly an hour, his witty stories keeping the crowd in continuous laughter. At the close of his talk, Mrs. Weinhardt and Miss Weaver pleased with three duet numbers, with Miss Hall at the piano.

After the ball room had been cleared the dance program, with Sayre's Premier Syncopators playing, was featured.

The Steubenville party left on the homeward trip at 11:30 o'clock. Among the Steubenville Rotarians who attended the affair were:

Edgar C. Bower, J. Calvin Cope, George M. Crawford, J. R. Elkin, Emmett Edwin, Allen Fisher, G. A. Gescheilder, Guy Jacobs, Joseph Kline, William MacPherson, Earl McFadden, Charles B. McGowan, J. E. omens at present are unfavorable."

He fears the United States would not come to the aid of England in war, "unless Great Britain were invaded by a black army."

As for the "black army"—this country cannot guess where it would come from, or why the United States should be excited about it.

A few flying machines would take care of any army—black, white, yellow or red.

IN Oklahoma they complain that murderers are not convicted, because dead bodies cannot talk. The murderer is there to tell how many children he has, how excited and irresponsible he was when he did the killing. The corpse is silent.

THE real trouble is that the prosecuting attorneys, not the dead bodies, lack the right kind of speech. Caesar's dead body spoke loudly enough. Every wound was an eloquent mouth, with the right man for prosecutor.

COUNTY ATTORNEY KIRKPATRICK of Tulsa will try the Julius Caesar experience the next time there is a murder.

He will bring the dead body into court, make the jury look at it and give the dead man a hearing.

The lawyer for the defense will probably object that such conduct is calculated to injure his client. Murderers are very sensitive.

MR. SMITH, Republican candidate for the senate in Illinois, says the Volstead law has nothing to do with the campaign. And also Mr. Brennan, his Democratic opponent, couldn't do anything about prohibition, if he were elected.

Mr. Smith, who thinks the constitution, not the laws, must be changed, is mistaken. The prohibition amendment is as wide as several barn doors. Should congress decide to drive a light wine and beer wagon through the opening there would be room enough.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Stock prices moved within a narrow radius in early trading today. A better tone was exhibited by railroad and equipment stocks, as also by the coppers and the public utilities; but the prospect of a temporary tightening of the credit situation over the balance of the week put a damper on new forward moves in the market favorites.

Special weakness in Sinclair Oil, which dipped to the year's lowest price of 19⅛, followed announcement that the federal circuit court had reversed the lower courts in the famous Teapot Dome oil lease case. The stock has been under pressure for a week or more and its weakness has been conspicuous. Most of the independent oil shares sold lower on reports of pending slashes in prices of crude oil and gasoline.

A recovery of about a dollar a bale marked the early trading in the cotton market.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Rebecca Strawhecker.

Mrs. Rebecca Jane Strawhecker, 64, years old, Leetonia, died today in the Youngstown City hospital, after an operation which she underwent last week. Mrs. Strawhecker, who was born in New Castle, Pa., was a resident of Leetonia for 38 years. She was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

MIDLAND MILL WORKER SHOT

Dennis Cadoza in Rochester Hospital; Suspect Held.

Denis Cadoza, 25-year-old Midland mill worker, is in the Rochester General hospital at Rochester, Pa., suffering from wounds alleged by the police to have been received in a shooting affray in Midland yesterday morning. Tony Santos, Midland rooming house proprietor, who is alleged to have done the shooting, is being held upon charges of felonious shooting with intent to kill.

Cadoza and two companions, it is claimed, went to the Santos rooming house in Ohio avenue, where they became engaged in an argument. Santos, it is said, warned them to be quiet or leave the house. The noise, it is reported, continued and Santos, left the house, apparently in disgust.

Cadoza and John Lopez, one of the trio, it is asserted, later quarreled and, in the melee, Lopez was stabbed in the back of the neck with a pair of scissors. Cadoza attempted to flee from the house but when he reached the bottom of the stairs at the street he was met by Santos, who fired two shots, one entering his left breast and the other striking a rib and his left arm.

ed G. shaft and had succeeded in reaching the twentieth level.

During the day they reported that the G. shaft had a strong current of air passing through it, although there were obstructions overhead. This rescue party now is about 900 feet below the trapped miners.

Extraordinary selfless efforts have been demonstrated in the work being done in this section of the mine. One man, with a squared piece of wood strapped over his head, slowly works his way upward using a long iron poker to loosen the debris above him. As the loosened earth and rock fall about him fellow workers carry it away. For all this man who is leading the party knows he may loosen tons of debris at any moment and be buried in the shaft. The prospect of such a fate, however, does not stay his efforts.

TEAPOT DOME CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Sinclair Will Carry Fight to High Tribunal.

LEASE BATTLE

E. L. Doheny Already Granted Right to Appeal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The supreme court must now decide the famous naval oil reserve cases.

Attorneys for Harry F. Sinclair are expected to appeal at once to the supreme court for a reversal of the decision of the federal circuit court of appeals which ordered cancellation of the mammoth oil company's lease to Teapot dome. The court already has granted an appeal to E. L. Doheny, whose lease to the Elk Hills naval oil reserve was declared void by federal courts in California.

Besides these civil suits, appeals on criminal indictments against Sinclair, Doheny and ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall are now pending in the District of Columbia court of appeals.

Months, and perhaps years, may elapse before a final determination is made of all the oil cases which grew out of the senate's investigation during the winter and spring of 1923-24.

Arguments in the Doheny case are to be heard by the supreme court on next Monday or Tuesday. The decision in this case, an appeal for a writ of certiorari, is expected to have an important bearing on the final determining of the Sinclair appeal. Both cases are practically identical.

The Sinclair decision was an important victory for the government oil counsel, Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts. The decision went against them in the trial court at Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Pomerene is now the Democratic senatorial nominee in Ohio.

F. M. DAVIS DIES OF INJURIES

Physician's Son is Auto Accident Victim.

Injuries received in an automobile wreck Sunday afternoon caused the death of Frank M. Davis, 27 years old, New Sheffield, Pa., garage owner and a son of Dr. F. F. Davis, of Erie street, this city, in the Sewickley Valley General hospital. Davis' skull was fractured.

Davis and two companions were rounding a curve in the road near New Sheffield when their car crashed into a bride abutment and a telephone pole. Chester Springer, another occupant, sustained a shattered right leg, while William Gray, the third passenger, was unhurt.

Davis is survived by his father, his wife, Mrs. Elsie Johnson Davis, and three children, Ralph, Smith and Florence. He was a member of the Raccoon United Presbyterian church.

SAFETY FIRST DRIVE OPENS

Railroad Representatives Speak in City Schools.

Co-operating with city and school officials, representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad have launched a safety first campaign among the East Liverpool school children.

A group of speakers includes Captain Worthington, Cleveland, head of the Pennsylvania railroad detective force; Douglas Leyda, Wellsville, railroad detective; Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, Superintendent of Schools C. S. McVay and Probation Officer John McShane.

The East End schools were visited yesterday and today the speakers are completing their rounds in the down town districts. The dangers of riding on freight trains and playing about the railroad right of way are being stressed.

A large poster in colors, entitled "Too Much to Pay for a Little Sport," is being left in each school room. The safety section of the American Railway association by this plan hopes to reduce railroad accidents by at least 35 percent by the end of 1930.

Robber Frustrated In Attempt to Rob Dr. Frost's Home

An unsuccessful attempt to rob the Dr. A. C. Frost home, St. Clair avenue, was made Monday night, it developed today.

Mrs. Frost, who had been on the second floor of the house, came down stairs about 8:30 o'clock, switching on the lights as she reached the bottom of the stairs. She opened the front door and as she did so an unidentified man leaped from the porch roof to the ground. He ran down St. Clair avenue in the direction of Gardendale.

Welch, "is almost unbelievable. Gifts from his friends and scores of others who had profited financially from the Browns' victory poured into Curt's hands and pockets. One sportsman, said Mrs. Welch who had won several thousand dollars on the series, "tipped" Curt to the extent of approximately $900.

Financial gifts from his well wishers in these halcyon days of baseball, however, were no novelty to the East Liverpool man. His daring and genuine ability won him countless purses and gifts of other nature throughout the season.

Curt was employed in those days by Chris Von Der Ahe, received an annual salary that might be considered substantial even in this era of baseball. But Von Der Ahe, says Mrs. Welch, was a considerate manager and always took care of his players.

Von Der Ahe, himself, had been making a living as a butcher before his entry into baseball. He saved his money and eventually bought his way into the ownership of the Browns and amassed a sizeable fortune.

Objected to "High Hat" Role.

It was a hobby of his to keep his team spic and span, whether in uniform or not, and to this end, he personally purchased two suits of civilian clothes each year for every member of his club, all of the suits being alike. To this outfit was added a high silk hat, and in this regalia the Browns usually made the principal streets of the town in which they played, before the game.

Curt was a handsome chap and could have enacted the "high hat" role with all the eclat of a Chesterfield, but an innate modesty and a nature that shrank from ostentatious show, made him rebel on every occasion that the silk chapeaus came into use.

Curt was a member of the St. Louis team until 1889, playing along with Tip O'Neill and Nichol in the outgarden, and covering most of the territory of the other two; Latham, third base; Bushong, catcher; Comiskey, first base; Gleason, shortstop; Barclay, second; Robinson, catcher, and Pitchers Foutz, Caruthers and McGinnis.

Leaving St. Louis he went to Philadelphia where he played for four years, going to Baltimore on a five-year contract. He became ill while playing at Baltimore and baseball ultimately lost one of its greatest heroes.

Curt's baseball days may have been shortened somewhat by his daring on the diamond, says Mrs. Welch, who frequently saw him risk life and limb in a slide down the base paths. Welch also was the victim of a "bean ball" in the closing days of his career. He was struck one afternoon in Baltimore below the jaw and he was carried off the field to Johns Hopkins hospital.

Curt lay on a hospital cot for two months or more. He was unable to speak for six weeks as a result of the blow.

But "Irish," as he was sometimes called, even though he was not Irish, left the game with a baseball reputation that probably has not been surpassed.

So Mrs. Welch, with a memory of other baseball days that cannot be erased by time, is pulling for St. Louis to beat those Yanks and win the championship.

Hornsby's Mother Dying

much of what I've done. Her interest in the series was real, not pretended because I am her son, but genuine.

Will Reach Decision Tonight.

After having spent the morning in touch by long distance with his mother's home, Hornsby, through Clarence Lloyd, secretary of the Cardinals, announced that he would reach a decision on his course by 5 o'clock this afternoon.

In the event he decides to go to his mother's bedside, he will take the 6 p. m. train for Austin, arriving there late Saturday. That will make it necessary for him to miss the two opening games of the series here, but in that event he expects to be able to rejoin the team in time for at least two of the games in St. Louis.

If Mrs. Hornsby should die and Hornsby remains for the series, as she has wished, the funeral will not be held until after the series is over and he can go to Austin, Lloyd announced.

The St. Louis club will work out this afternoon at the Yankee stadium, but Hornsby is not expected to take part in the practice. He is remaining close to his room.

Mother Wishes Him to Play.

"This morning my aunt told me that the last thing mother told her was that I must play in the series, come what may. She is five days away. If I thought I could reach her, it would be different. But I am afraid I can't. And even if I did, I know what her first words would be, if she could talk. She would want to know why I hadn't stayed here and played the game out."

The victory of the St. Louis club in that city. It was the climax of the sensational career of Hornsby, one was the first in 38 years of baseball of the greatest players of his time, and marked the culmination of two years of effort as a manager as well as the ambition of his lifetime. For that reason, he attempted to explain today, and because his mother's interest in recent years had been wholly wrapped up in his success, yet was left facing the problem of her wishes and the prompting of his own mind as he approached the apex of his baseball career.

STREET, BRIDGE REPAIR VOTED

Gasoline Tax Will Pay for Gardendale Job.

An emergency ordinance authorizing Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore to repair a bridge on De Bee street leading to Gardendale, was enacted last night at a special meeting of council. The structure was weakened by recent heavy rains.

An ordinance calling for the transfer of $1,500 for the work was tabled after the service-safety director informed the solons that money from the gas tax fund would take care of the cost.

Delegation of property owners from the Oakland section of East End urged that some action be taken relative to the situation caused by water flooding their cellars.

It was pointed out that a sewer in the district was unable to take care of the water in the recent storm which flooded every cellar from Green's store to Dry Run.

Council as a whole will view the premises tonight.

this morning. Our office was not damaged, but we lost our power."

An official railroad message said the tracks in the city along the water front were under five feet of water, and that those in the outskirts of the city were under two feet of water.

The hurricane was reported traveling in a northerly direction.

The storm raged about Vera Cruz City for two hours, the wind reaching a velocity of a hundred miles an hour. Then it swept westward through central Vera Cruz state to the border of the state of Puebla, destroying all buildings of lighter construction. It left the city of Vera Cruz without light or power.

Three solos were rendered by Mrs. Weinhardt, with Miss Weaver at the piano. Miss Weaver then gave three solos, Miss Hall being her accompanist.

"Mr. Miller entertained his audience for nearly an hour, his witty stories keeping the crowd in continuous laughter. At the close of his talk, Mrs. Weinhardt and Miss Weaver pleased with three duet numbers, with Miss Hall at the piano.

After the ball room had been cleared the dance program, with Sayre's Premier Syncopators playing, was featured.

The Steubenville party left on the homeward trip at 11:30 o'clock. Among the Steubenville Rotarians who attended the affair were:

omens at present are unfavorable."

He fears the United States would not come to the aid of England in war, "unless Great Britain were invaded by a black army."

As for the "black army"—this country cannot guess where it would come from, or why the United States should be excited about it.

A few flying machines would take care of any army—black, white, yellow or red.

IN Oklahoma they complain that murderers are not convicted, because dead bodies cannot talk. The murderer is there to tell how many children he has, how excited and irresponsible he was when he did the killing. The corpse is silent.

THE real trouble is that the prosecuting attorneys, not the dead bodies, lack the right kind of speech. Caesar's dead body spoke loudly enough. Every wound was an eloquent mouth, with the right man for prosecutor.

COUNTY ATTORNEY KIRKPATRICK of Tulsa will try the Julius Caesar experience the next time there is a murder.

He will bring the dead body into court, make the jury look at it and give the dead man a hearing.

The lawyer for the defense will probably object that such conduct is calculated to injure his client. Murderers are very sensitive.

MR. SMITH, Republican candidate for the senate in Illinois, says the Volstead law has nothing to do with the campaign. And also Mr. Brennan, his Democratic opponent, couldn't do anything about prohibition, if he were elected.

Mr. Smith, who thinks the constitution, not the laws, must be changed, is mistaken. The prohibition amendment is as wide as several barn doors. Should congress decide to drive a light wine and beer wagon through the opening there would be room enough.

Beaver Valley Pictorial Car Goes To Cleveland Exhibit

Passes Through City on Way to American Electric Railway Association Convention.

An specially painted car of the Beaver Valley Traction company, enroute to the American Electric Railway Association convention at Cleveland, passed through East Liverpool at 6:30 o'clock this morning. It was routed over the Y. & O. tracks at the Diamond, to Salem, thence by Stark Electric to Ravenna and the Northern Ohio Traction road to lines of the Cleveland City railway.

The car bears a number of paintings of reproduction of products made in the factories of the Beaver Valley and others symbolic of industry in general. It is to be exhibited next week at Cleveland.

It will be displayed at the city auditorium, and is being sent to the convention at the invitation of Col. J. H. Alexander, of the Cleveland railways and the invitation of Lucius Storrs, managing director of the American Electric Railway association.

The car left the Beaver Valley yesterday. Prior to its departure it was necessary to change the trucks to the local gauge of tracks and it was quartered in the car barns of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company, East End, last night. It is manned by its own crew, but a courtesy crew having the actual operation is to be furnished by each traction line over which it must pass on its way to Cleveland.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Stock prices moved within a narrow radius in early trading today. A better tone was exhibited by railroad and equipment stocks, as also by the coppers and the public utilities; but the prospect of a temporary tightening of the credit situation over the balance of the week put a damper on new forward moves in the market favorites.

Special weakness in Sinclair Oil, which dipped to the year's lowest price of 19⅛, followed announcement that the federal circuit court had reversed the lower courts in the famous Teapot Dome oil lease case. The stock has been under pressure for a week or more and its weakness has been conspicuous. Most of the independent oil shares sold lower on reports of pending slashes in prices of crude oil and gasoline.

A recovery of about a dollar a bale marked the early trading in the cotton market.

MIDLAND MILL WORKER SHOT

Dennis Cadoza in Rochester Hospital; Suspect Held.

Denis Cadoza, 25-year-old Midland mill worker, is in the Rochester General hospital at Rochester, Pa., suffering from wounds alleged by the police to have been received in a shooting affray in Midland yesterday morning. Tony Santos, Midland rooming house proprietor, who is alleged to have done the shooting, is being held upon charges of felonious shooting with intent to kill.

Cadoza and two companions, it is claimed, went to the Santos rooming house in Ohio avenue, where they became engaged in an argument. Santos, it is said, warned them to be quiet or leave the house. The noise, it is reported, continued and Santos, left the house, apparently in disgust.

Cadoza and John Lopez, one of the trio, it is asserted, later quarreled and, in the melee, Lopez was stabbed in the back of the neck with a pair of scissors. Cadoza attempted to flee from the house but when he reached the bottom of the stairs at the street he was met by Santos, who fired two shots, one entering his left breast and the other striking a rib and his left arm.

ed G. shaft and had succeeded in reaching the twentieth level.

During the day they reported that the G. shaft had a strong current of air passing through it, although there were obstructions overhead. This rescue party now is about 900 feet below the trapped miners.

Extraordinary selfless efforts have been demonstrated in the work being done in this section of the mine. One man, with a squared piece of wood strapped over his head, slowly works his way upward using a long iron poker to loosen the debris above him. As the loosened earth and rock fall about him fellow workers carry it away. For all this man who is leading the party knows he may loosen tons of debris at any moment and be buried in the shaft. The prospect of such a fate, however, does not stay his efforts.

TEAPOT DOME CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Sinclair Will Carry Fight to High Tribunal.

LEASE BATTLE

E. L. Doheny Already Granted Right to Appeal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The supreme court must now decide the famous naval oil reserve cases.

Attorneys for Harry F. Sinclair are expected to appeal at once to the supreme court for a reversal of the decision of the federal circuit court of appeals which ordered cancellation of the mammoth oil company's lease to Teapot dome. The court already has granted an appeal to E. L. Doheny, whose lease to the Elk Hills naval oil reserve was declared void by federal courts in California.

Besides these civil suits, appeals on criminal indictments against Sinclair, Doheny and ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall are now pending in the District of Columbia court of appeals.

Months, and perhaps years, may elapse before a final determination is made of all the oil cases which grew out of the senate's investigation during the winter and spring of 1923-24.

Arguments in the Doheny case are to be heard by the supreme court on next Monday or Tuesday. The decision in this case, an appeal for a writ of certiorari, is expected to have an important bearing on the final determining of the Sinclair appeal. Both cases are practically identical.

The Sinclair decision was an important victory for the government oil counsel, Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts. The decision went against them in the trial court at Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Pomerene is now the Democratic senatorial nominee in Ohio.

F. M. DAVIS DIES OF INJURIES

Physician's Son is Auto Accident Victim.

Injuries received in an automobile wreck Sunday afternoon caused the death of Frank M. Davis, 27 years old, New Sheffield, Pa., garage owner and a son of Dr. F. F. Davis, of Erie street, this city, in the Sewickley Valley General hospital. Davis' skull was fractured.

Davis and two companions were rounding a curve in the road near New Sheffield when their car crashed into a bride abutment and a telephone pole. Chester Springer, another occupant, sustained a shattered right leg, while William Gray, the third passenger, was unhurt.

Davis is survived by his father, his wife, Mrs. Elsie Johnson Davis, and three children, Ralph, Smith and Florence. He was a member of the Raccoon United Presbyterian church.

Funeral services will be conducted in the Raccoon church at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Burial will be made in the church cemetery.

SAFETY FIRST DRIVE OPENS

Railroad Representatives Speak in City Schools.

Co-operating with city and school officials, representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad have launched a safety first campaign among the East Liverpool school children.

A group of speakers includes Captain Worthington, Cleveland, head of the Pennsylvania railroad detective force; Douglas Leyda, Wellsville, railroad detective; Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, Superintendent of Schools C. S. McVay and Probation Officer John McShane.

The East End schools were visited yesterday and today the speakers are completing their rounds in the down town districts. The dangers of riding on freight trains and playing about the railroad right of way are being stressed.

A large poster in colors, entitled "Too Much to Pay for a Little Sport," is being left in each school room. The safety section of the American Railway association by this plan hopes to reduce railroad accidents by at least 35 percent by the end of 1930.

Robber Frustrated In Attempt to Rob Dr. Frost's Home

An unsuccessful attempt to rob the Dr. A. C. Frost home, St. Clair avenue, was made Monday night, it developed today.

Mrs. Frost, who had been on the second floor of the house, came down stairs about 8:30 o'clock, switching on the lights as she reached the bottom of the stairs. She opened the front door and as she did so an unidentified man leaped from the porch roof to the ground. He ran down St. Clair avenue in the direction of Gardendale.

Welch, "is almost unbelievable. Gifts from his friends and scores of others who had profited financially from the Browns' victory poured into Curt's hands and pockets. One sportsman, said Mrs. Welch who had won several thousand dollars on the series, "tipped" Curt to the extent of approximately $900.

Financial gifts from his well wishers in these halcyon days of baseball, however, were no novelty to the East Liverpool man. His daring and genuine ability won him countless purses and gifts of other nature throughout the season.

Curt was employed in those days by Chris Von Der Ahe, received an annual salary that might be considered substantial even in this era of baseball. But Von Der Ahe, says Mrs. Welch, was a considerate manager and always took care of his players.

Von Der Ahe, himself, had been making a living as a butcher before his entry into baseball. He saved his money and eventually bought his way into the ownership of the Browns and amassed a sizeable fortune.

Objected to "High Hat" Role.

It was a hobby of his to keep his team spic and span, whether in uniform or not, and to this end, he personally purchased two suits of civilian clothes each year for every member of his club, all of the suits being alike. To this outfit was added a high silk hat, and in this regalia the Browns usually made the principal streets of the town in which they played, before the game.

Curt was a handsome chap and could have enacted the "high hat" role with all the eclat of a Chesterfield, but an innate modesty and a nature that shrank from ostentatious show, made him rebel on every occasion that the silk chapeaus came into use.

Curt was a member of the St. Louis team until 1889, playing along with Tip O'Neill and Nichol in the outgarden, and covering most of the territory of the other two; Latham, third base; Bushong, catcher; Comiskey, first base; Gleason, shortstop; Barclay, second; Robinson, catcher, and Pitchers Foutz, Caruthers and McGinnis.

Leaving St. Louis he went to Philadelphia where he played for four years, going to Baltimore on a five-year contract. He became ill while playing at Baltimore and baseball ultimately lost one of its greatest heroes.

Curt's baseball days may have been shortened somewhat by his daring on the diamond, says Mrs. Welch, who frequently saw him risk life and limb in a slide down the base paths. Welch also was the victim of a "bean ball" in the closing days of his career. He was struck one afternoon in Baltimore below the jaw and he was carried off the field to Johns Hopkins hospital.

Curt lay on a hospital cot for two months or more. He was unable to speak for six weeks as a result of the blow.

But "Irish," as he was sometimes called, even though he was not Irish, left the game with a baseball reputation that probably has not been surpassed.

So Mrs. Welch, with a memory of other baseball days that cannot be erased by time, is pulling for St. Louis to beat those Yanks and win the championship.

Hornsby's Mother Dying

much of what I've done. Her interest in the series was real, not pretended because I am her son, but genuine.

Will Reach Decision Tonight.

After having spent the morning in touch by long distance with his mother's home, Hornsby, through Clarence Lloyd, secretary of the Cardinals, announced that he would reach a decision on his course by 5 o'clock this afternoon.

In the event he decides to go to his mother's bedside, he will take the 6 p. m. train for Austin, arriving there late Saturday. That will make it necessary for him to miss the two opening games of the series here, but in that event he expects to be able to rejoin the team in time for at least two of the games in St. Louis.

If Mrs. Hornsby should die and Hornsby remains for the series, as she has wished, the funeral will not be held until after the series is over and he can go to Austin, Lloyd announced.

The St. Louis club will work out this afternoon at the Yankee stadium, but Hornsby is not expected to take part in the practice. He is remaining close to his room.

Mother Wishes Him to Play.

"This morning my aunt told me that the last thing mother told her was that I must play in the series, come what may. She is five days away. If I thought I could reach her, it would be different. But I am afraid I can't. And even if I did, I know what her first words would be, if she could talk. She would want to know why I hadn't stayed here and played the game out."

The victory of the St. Louis club in that city. It was the climax of the sensational career of Hornsby, one was the first in 38 years of baseball of the greatest players of his time, and marked the culmination of two years of effort as a manager as well as the ambition of his lifetime. For that reason, he attempted to explain today, and because his mother's interest in recent years had been wholly wrapped up in his success, yet was left facing the problem of her wishes and the prompting of his own mind as he approached the apex of his baseball career.

STREET, BRIDGE REPAIR VOTED

Gasoline Tax Will Pay for Gardendale Job.

An emergency ordinance authorizing Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore to repair a bridge on De Bee street leading to Gardendale, was enacted last night at a special meeting of council. The structure was weakened by recent heavy rains.

An ordinance calling for the transfer of $1,500 for the work was tabled after the service-safety director informed the solons that money from the gas tax fund would take care of the cost.

Delegation of property owners from the Oakland section of East End urged that some action be taken relative to the situation caused by water flooding their cellars.

It was pointed out that a sewer in the district was unable to take care of the water in the recent storm which flooded every cellar from Green's store to Dry Run.

Council as a whole will view the premises tonight.

this morning. Our office was not damaged, but we lost our power."

An official railroad message said the tracks in the city along the water front were under five feet of water, and that those in the outskirts of the city were under two feet of water.

The hurricane was reported traveling in a northerly direction.

The storm raged about Vera Cruz City for two hours, the wind reaching a velocity of a hundred miles an hour. Then it swept westward through central Vera Cruz state to the border of the state of Puebla, destroying all buildings of lighter construction. It left the city of Vera Cruz without light or power.

omens at present are unfavorable."

He fears the United States would not come to the aid of England in war, "unless Great Britain were invaded by a black army."

As for the "black army"—this country cannot guess where it would come from, or why the United States should be excited about it.

A few flying machines would take care of any army—black, white, yellow or red.

IN Oklahoma they complain that murderers are not convicted, because dead bodies cannot talk. The murderer is there to tell how many children he has, how excited and irresponsible he was when he did the killing. The corpse is silent.

THE real trouble is that the prosecuting attorneys, not the dead bodies, lack the right kind of speech. Caesar's dead body spoke loudly enough. Every wound was an eloquent mouth, with the right man for prosecutor.

COUNTY ATTORNEY KIRKPATRICK of Tulsa will try the Julius Caesar experience the next time there is a murder.

He will bring the dead body into court, make the jury look at it and give the dead man a hearing.

The lawyer for the defense will probably object that such conduct is calculated to injure his client. Murderers are very sensitive.

MR. SMITH, Republican candidate for the senate in Illinois, says the Volstead law has nothing to do with the campaign. And also Mr. Brennan, his Democratic opponent, couldn't do anything about prohibition, if he were elected.

Mr. Smith, who thinks the constitution, not the laws, must be changed, is mistaken. The prohibition amendment is as wide as several barn doors. Should congress decide to drive a light wine and beer wagon through the opening there would be room enough.

Passes Through City on Way to American Electric Railway Association Convention.

An specially painted car of the Beaver Valley Traction company, enroute to the American Electric Railway Association convention at Cleveland, passed through East Liverpool at 6:30 o'clock this morning. It was routed over the Y. & O. tracks at the Diamond, to Salem, thence by Stark Electric to Ravenna and the Northern Ohio Traction road to lines of the Cleveland City railway.

The car bears a number of paintings of reproduction of products made in the factories of the Beaver Valley and others symbolic of industry in general. It is to be exhibited next week at Cleveland.

It will be displayed at the city auditorium, and is being sent to the convention at the invitation of Col. J. H. Alexander, of the Cleveland railways and the invitation of Lucius Storrs, managing director of the American Electric Railway association.

The car left the Beaver Valley yesterday. Prior to its departure it was necessary to change the trucks to the local gauge of tracks and it was quartered in the car barns of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company, East End, last night. It is manned by its own crew, but a courtesy crew having the actual operation is to be furnished by each traction line over which it must pass on its way to Cleveland.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Stock prices moved within a narrow radius in early trading today. A better tone was exhibited by railroad and equipment stocks, as also by the coppers and the public utilities; but the prospect of a temporary tightening of the credit situation over the balance of the week put a damper on new forward moves in the market favorites.

Special weakness in Sinclair Oil, which dipped to the year's lowest price of 19⅛, followed announcement that the federal circuit court had reversed the lower courts in the famous Teapot Dome oil lease case. The stock has been under pressure for a week or more and its weakness has been conspicuous. Most of the independent oil shares sold lower on reports of pending slashes in prices of crude oil and gasoline.

A recovery of about a dollar a bale marked the early trading in the cotton market.

MIDLAND MILL WORKER SHOT

Dennis Cadoza in Rochester Hospital; Suspect Held.

Denis Cadoza, 25-year-old Midland mill worker, is in the Rochester General hospital at Rochester, Pa., suffering from wounds alleged by the police to have been received in a shooting affray in Midland yesterday morning. Tony Santos, Midland rooming house proprietor, who is alleged to have done the shooting, is being held upon charges of felonious shooting with intent to kill.

Cadoza and two companions, it is claimed, went to the Santos rooming house in Ohio avenue, where they became engaged in an argument. Santos, it is said, warned them to be quiet or leave the house. The noise, it is reported, continued and Santos, left the house, apparently in disgust.

Cadoza and John Lopez, one of the trio, it is asserted, later quarreled and, in the melee, Lopez was stabbed in the back of the neck with a pair of scissors. Cadoza attempted to flee from the house but when he reached the bottom of the stairs at the street he was met by Santos, who fired two shots, one entering his left breast and the other striking a rib and his left arm.

ed G. shaft and had succeeded in reaching the twentieth level.

During the day they reported that the G. shaft had a strong current of air passing through it, although there were obstructions overhead. This rescue party now is about 900 feet below the trapped miners.

Extraordinary selfless efforts have been demonstrated in the work being done in this section of the mine. One man, with a squared piece of wood strapped over his head, slowly works his way upward using a long iron poker to loosen the debris above him. As the loosened earth and rock fall about him fellow workers carry it away. For all this man who is leading the party knows he may loosen tons of debris at any moment and be buried in the shaft. The prospect of such a fate, however, does not stay his efforts.

TEAPOT DOME CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Sinclair Will Carry Fight to High Tribunal.

LEASE BATTLE

E. L. Doheny Already Granted Right to Appeal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The supreme court must now decide the famous naval oil reserve cases.

Attorneys for Harry F. Sinclair are expected to appeal at once to the supreme court for a reversal of the decision of the federal circuit court of appeals which ordered cancellation of the mammoth oil company's lease to Teapot dome. The court already has granted an appeal to E. L. Doheny, whose lease to the Elk Hills naval oil reserve was declared void by federal courts in California.

Besides these civil suits, appeals on criminal indictments against Sinclair, Doheny and ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall are now pending in the District of Columbia court of appeals.

Months, and perhaps years, may elapse before a final determination is made of all the oil cases which grew out of the senate's investigation during the winter and spring of 1923-24.

Arguments in the Doheny case are to be heard by the supreme court on next Monday or Tuesday. The decision in this case, an appeal for a writ of certiorari, is expected to have an important bearing on the final determining of the Sinclair appeal. Both cases are practically identical.

The Sinclair decision was an important victory for the government oil counsel, Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts. The decision went against them in the trial court at Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Pomerene is now the Democratic senatorial nominee in Ohio.

Modern Solomon Contrives Test for Love of Juvenile Newly-Weds

The Kansas City, Mo., juvenile court is hard hearted about young —or "puppy"—love. Two months ago Clifton Humphrey, 17, met Mabel Ousley, 15. And in less than two months they were married. But the Court says that for a year bride and groom must be separated and must not even see each other. If, after that time, the bridegroom makes good in business and his bride still loves him—the court will bless their marriage.

Moses Called an Inventor.

Jens Juergens, a German engineer, has written a book in which he produces Biblical refrences to prove his assertion that Moses was a "powder, nitro-glycerine and dynamite merchant." He maintains that Moses held back the Egyptians by laying land mines which he exploded by well-timed fuses. The writer says the tabernacle was a well-equipped laboratory.

Germany Tries Skyscraper.

Germany's first skyscraper built on American lines is being erected at Aachen (Aix la Chapelle). It will be 12 stories high, a startling height in Germany, and will house a large motion picture theatre and a number of business offices.

REPORT FILED BY PROSECUTOR

Sentences Suspended in Only Two Cases During Past Year.

That the former rule of the county courts in giving suspended sentences is past, is indicated by the annual report of Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes filed with the county commissioners. More than 95 percent of the sentences in criminal cases handled by this office during the last fiscal year have been put into execution, the report disclosed. In reality only two suspended sentences were announced by the court during the year from Sept. 1, 1925, to Sept. 1, 1926, and bonds were given in two other cases wherein support of children was involved in the charges.

In 42 other cases all sentences pronounced were placed in execution.

The report also shows that out of 76 indictments, there was acquital by juries on only seven cases and giving a record of 69 convictions in criminal court work.

Assistant Prosecutor John E. Bauknecht who handled all work in the court of Judge Lodge Riddle, secured 46 convictions and two acquitals.

The report concludes by saying:

"During the last fiscal year there were 39 convictions by plea to indictments and seven convictions by jury, wherein nine defendants were involved. Ten indictments were nolled in cases where other prosecutions and convictions was had. One indictment was nolled and two other prosecution had, and four defendants were acquitted by jury.

"The case of Michael Payne against the county commissioners was settled out of court.

"Tax foreclosures involving 44 properties were completed, and the property sold for delinquent taxes.

"The following cases are pending against the county commissioners:

"Wallace L. Fogo against the county commissioners; Vincent Miller against the county commissioners; Alex Riley and others against the county commissioners; Griffith against the county commissioners and Fryfogle against the county commissioners.

"The grand jury met in three regular sessions, September, January and April and one special session in October, and were convened for a total of 12 days. They examined more than 275 witnesses, covering 129 cases; returned 52 true bills, ignored 35 and continued five cases."

An analysis of the report shows that the office of the prosecuting attorney has sustained practically every case that was returned by the grand jury, and in the case of pleas of guilty and conviction by jury the court has practically eliminated the "suspended sentence" rule that had prevailed for many years.

Livestock Shipments Declined in August; Report Submitted

The Ohio Live Stock Co-Operative association affiliated with the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation in its monthly report for August shows total volume of 8,426,544 pounds of live stock shipped from 35 counties. This is a decrease in volume from the July reports in hogs, cattle and calves, but a material increase in the number of sheep marketed. The loss covered by insurance decreased 40 per cent from the previous month.

Phillip E. Helm, county service manager of Columbiana county reports business for the month, consisting of 1 straight and 2 mixed decks, the same as in July. These shipments represented 17 shippers and were made up of 17 hogs, 33 cattle and 3 calves. The total volume marketed from this county netted $1,260.88. The average expense per hundredweight for all counties reporting was .497 cents.

The association is just closing a pool for bringing in feeder lambs from Montana and Wyoming. Altogether 120,000 of these western lambs were brought into the corn belt. The feeder cattle pool is now under way. The association has its buyers on the range and calves and yearlings will be brought from the Highland Hereford territory in Texas, the hand hills of Nebraska and Colorado.

Heavy feeders from the best range territory of West Virginia are being moved into Ohio. These cattle are coming in good and feeders are well satisfied. County service managers are handling these orders through the County service company and the Livestock association.

158 Cities in Iowa have concrete streets

Sioux City Heads This Procession

Not many cities in the Union have more concrete street pavement than Sioux City. And in Iowa, Sioux City heads the list.

Sioux City began paving with concrete in 1911. There are now over 2,000,000 square yards in the City, all of which is in excellent condition.

This has been a fine investment. Costly street maintenance has been done away with. Concrete streets have dressed up the whole city.

Sioux City's concrete streets are directly linked with the concrete roads of Woodbury County.

Over these permanently paved highways, no matter what weather conditions may be, farmers truck their stock to market regularly. They come to sell. They come to buy and to trade. They come to put more money in Sioux City banks.

And everybody is more prosperous as a result.

Concrete roads and streets always pave the way to prosperity.

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

REPORT FILED BY PROSECUTOR

Sentences Suspended in Only Two Cases During Past Year.

That the former rule of the county courts in giving suspended sentences is past, is indicated by the annual report of Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes filed with the county commissioners. More than 95 percent of the sentences in criminal cases handled by this office during the last fiscal year have been put into execution, the report disclosed. In reality only two suspended sentences were announced by the court during the year from Sept. 1, 1925, to Sept. 1, 1926, and bonds were given in two other cases wherein support of children was involved in the charges.

In 42 other cases all sentences pronounced were placed in execution.

The report also shows that out of 76 indictments, there was acquital by juries on only seven cases and giving a record of 69 convictions in criminal court work.

Assistant Prosecutor John E. Bauknecht who handled all work in the court of Judge Lodge Riddle, secured 46 convictions and two acquitals.

The report concludes by saying:

"During the last fiscal year there were 39 convictions by plea to indictments and seven convictions by jury, wherein nine defendants were involved. Ten indictments were nolled in cases where other prosecutions and convictions was had. One indictment was nolled and two other prosecution had, and four defendants were acquitted by jury.

"The case of Michael Payne against the county commissioners was settled out of court.

"Tax foreclosures involving 44 properties were completed, and the property sold for delinquent taxes.

"The following cases are pending against the county commissioners:

"Wallace L. Fogo against the county commissioners; Vincent Miller against the county commissioners; Alex Riley and others against the county commissioners; Griffith against the county commissioners and Fryfogle against the county commissioners.

"The grand jury met in three regular sessions, September, January and April and one special session in October, and were convened for a total of 12 days. They examined more than 275 witnesses, covering 139 cases; returned 52 true bills, ignored 35 and continued five cases."

An analysis of the report shows that the office of the prosecuting attorney has sustained practically every case that was returned by the grand jury, and in the case of pleas of guilty and conviction by jury the court has practically eliminated the "suspended sentence" rule that had prevailed for many years.

Motion Sustained.

A motion to secure the costs has been sustained in common pleas court in the case of Della and Joseph Greno against Ray and Jane A. Moore. This action has been pending since Oct. 12th last.

Livestock Shipments Declined in August; Report Submitted

The Ohio Live Stock Co-Operative association affiliated with the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation in its monthly report for August shows total volume of 8,426,544 pounds of live stock shipped from 35 counties. This is a decrease in volume from the July reports in hogs, cattle and calves, but a material increase in the number of sheep marketed. The loss covered by insurance decreased 40 per cent from the previous month.

Phillip E. Helm, county service manager of Columbiana county reports business for the month, consisting of 1 straight and 2 mixed decks, the same as in July. These shipments represented 17 shippers and were made up of 17 hogs, 33 cattle and 3 calves. The total volume marketed from this county netted $1,260.88. The average expense per hundredweight for all counties reporting was .497 cents.

The association is just closing a pool for bringing in feeder lambs from Montana and Wyoming. Altogether 120,000 of these western lambs were brought into the corn belt. The feeder cattle pool is now under way. The association has its buyers on the range and calves and yearlings will be brought from the Highland Hereford territory in Texas, the hand hills of Nebraska and Colorado.

Heavy feeders from the best range territory of West Virginia are being moved into Ohio. These cattle are coming in good and feeders are well satisfied. County service managers are handling these orders through the County service company and the Livestock association.

WEST POINT COAL MINE RESUMES

Pumps have been started and the production of coal at the mines of the Seger Fuel company at West Point is scheduled to begin not later than Friday, it was announced at West Point today. First crews were put to work Monday evening, and pumps were started Tuesday.

This property has been idle since early in the year, and at the time operations ceased it was announced by the management that no time could be then set for resumption. The mine is capable of producing about 1,000 tons daily.

"State road work is being held up all over the state on account of wet weather," Mr. Fawcett declared, "and the slow progress being made in Columbiana county is not confined to this county alone.

158 Cities in Iowa have concrete streets

Sioux City Heads This Procession

Not many cities in the Union have more concrete street pavement than Sioux City. And in Iowa, Sioux City heads the list.

Sioux City began paving with concrete in 1911. There are now over 2,000,000 square yards in the City, all of which is in excellent condition.

This has been a fine investment. Costly street maintenance has been done away with. Concrete streets have dressed up the whole city.

Sioux City's concrete streets are directly linked with the concrete roads of Woodbury County.

Over these permanently paved highways, no matter what weather conditions may be, farmers truck their stock to market regularly. They come to sell. They come to buy and to trade. They come to put more money in Sioux City banks.

And everybody is more prosperous as a result.

Concrete roads and streets always pave the way to prosperity.

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

REPORT FILED BY PROSECUTOR

Sentences Suspended in Only Two Cases During Past Year.

That the former rule of the county courts in giving suspended sentences is past, is indicated by the annual report of Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes filed with the county commissioners. More than 95 percent of the sentences in criminal cases handled by this office during the last fiscal year have been put into execution, the report disclosed. In reality only two suspended sentences were announced by the court during the year from Sept. 1, 1925, to Sept. 1, 1926, and bonds were given in two other cases wherein support of children was involved in the charges.

In 42 other cases all sentences pronounced were placed in execution.

The report also shows that out of 76 indictments, there was acquital by juries on only seven cases and giving a record of 69 convictions in criminal court work.

Assistant Prosecutor John E. Bauknecht who handled all work in the court of Judge Lodge Riddle, secured 46 convictions and two acquitals.

The report concludes by saying:

"During the last fiscal year there were 39 convictions by plea to indictments and seven convictions by jury, wherein nine defendants were involved. Ten indictments were nolled in cases where other prosecutions and convictions was had. One indictment was nolled and two other prosecution had, and four defendants were acquitted by jury.

"The case of Michael Payne against the county commissioners was settled out of court.

"Tax foreclosures involving 44 properties were completed, and the property sold for delinquent taxes.

"The following cases are pending against the county commissioners:

"Wallace L. Fogo against the county commissioners; Vincent Miller against the county commissioners; Alex Riley and others against the county commissioners; Griffith against the county commissioners and Fryfogle against the county commissioners.

"The grand jury met in three regular sessions, September, January and April and one special session in October, and were convened for a total of 12 days. They examined more than 275 witnesses, covering 129 cases; returned 52 true bills, ignored 35 and continued five cases."

An analysis of the report shows that the office of the prosecuting attorney has sustained practically every case that was returned by the grand jury, and in the case of pleas of guilty and conviction by jury the court has practically eliminated the "suspended sentence" rule that had prevalled for many years.

Motion Sustained.

A motion to secure the costs has been sustained in common pleas court in the case of Della and Joseph Greno against Ray and Jane A. Moore. This action has been pending since Oct. 12th last.

Livestock Shipments Declined in August; Report Submitted

The Ohio Live Stock Co-Operative association affiliated with the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation in its monthly report for August shows total volume of 8,426,544 pounds of live stock shipped from 35 counties. This is a decrease in volume from the July reports in hogs, cattle and calves, but a material increase in the number of sheep marketed. The loss covered by insurance decreased 40 per cent from the previous month.

Phillip E. Helm, county service manager of Columbiana county reports business for the month, consisting of 1 straight and 2 mixed decks, the same as in July. These shipments represented 17 shippers and were made up of 17 hogs, 33 cattle and 3 calves. The total volume marketed from this county netted $1,260.88. The average expense per hundredweight for all counties reporting was .497 cents.

The association is just closing a pool for bringing in feeder lambs from Montana and Wyoming. Altogether 120,000 of these western lambs were brought into the corn belt. The feeder cattle pool is now under way. The association has its buyers on the range and calves and yearlings will be brought from the Highland Hereford territory in Texas, the hand hills of Nebraska and Colorado.

Heavy feeders from the best range territory of West Virginia are being moved into Ohio. These cattle are coming in good and feeders are well satisfied. County service managers are handling these orders through the County service company and the Livestock association.

WEST POINT COAL MINE RESUMES

Pumps have been started and the production of coal at the mines of the Seger Fuel company at West Point is scheduled to begin not later than Friday, it was announced at West Point today. First crews were put to work Monday evening, and pumps were started Tuesday.

For the present the production of the mine will be on a basis of approximately 500 tons per day, or equal to about 10 cars. This property has been idle since early in the year, and at the time operations ceased it was announced by the management that no time could be then set for resumption. The mine is capable of producing about 1,000 tons daily.

Zimerman at Lisbon Tuesday evening. He also admitted taking $175 from the home of Samuel Ruhl of the Churchill road. He was in this county for the purpose of going over locations of new state highways now under construction, and routes of other state roads that have been proposed under the recent bond issue program.

"State road work is being held up all over the state on account of wet weather," Mr. Fawcett declared, "and the slow progress being made in Columbiana county is not confined to this county alone.

Mr. Fawcett was of the opinion that it may be possible to travel over the "Narrows" at Yellow Creek next year, although he did not believe that sufficient finances could be obtained in Jefferson county next year to surface this job.

A request from Superintendent D. H. Pollock and the school board was read in city council, asking for one of the free phones to be placed in either the Ohio avenue building or the South Side building. A committee was appointed to check over the free phones now in use and see if it would be possible to discontinue one of the phones and give it to the school board to be placed in one of the buildings.

Officers of the Amethyst club were elected at a meeting Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. John McGowan, Maryland avenue. Mrs. McGowan was elected president and Mrs. Sadie Hughes vice-president. The next meeting will be Thursday, October 7, at the home of Mrs. C. P. Coulter, Pennsylvania avenue.

158 Cities in Iowa have concrete streets

Sioux City Heads This Procession

Not many cities in the Union have more concrete street pavement than Sioux City. And in Iowa, Sioux City heads the list.

Sioux City began paving with concrete in 1911. There are now over 2,000,000 square yards in the City, all of which is in excellent condition.

This has been a fine investment. Costly street maintenance has been done away with. Concrete streets have dressed up the whole city.

Sioux City's concrete streets are directly linked with the concrete roads of Woodbury County.

Over these permanently paved highways, no matter what weather conditions may be, farmers truck their stock to market regularly. They come to sell. They come to buy and to trade. They come to put more money in Sioux City banks.

And everybody is more prosperous as a result.

Concrete roads and streets always pave the way to prosperity.

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

TURF CLASSIC AT AMERICAN

Conway Tearle Has Star Role in "Sporting Lover."

With all its thrills, gayety and colorfulness the famous English Derby comes to the screen of the American theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. "The Sporting Lover," starring Conway Tearle. This is an E. M. Asher picture for First National release. Barbara Bedford is featured opposite Tearle.

No horse racing event in Europe—or in the world, for that matter—is so widely known and honored as the historic English Derby, held each year at Epsom Downs, not far from London.

The cream of European and frequently of American turfs are gathered for this racing classic. Even the King and Queen of England usually enter a horse from their private stables in the event. Originally the main racing event was a one miler, but in recent years the race has been run over a course measuring exactly 1 mile, 4 furlongs and 29 yards.

Although the monetary prizes offered to winners of the Derby are modest fortunes, the principal interest in the event is principally because it is considered the grand sweepstakes of Europe and the outstanding social event of the season. The usual time for the running of the Derby is 2 minutes 34 seconds. Only a few horses have eclipsed this time.

In "The Sporting Lover" an unusual situation is brought about by the entrance of twin three-year-olds in the Derby by rivals owners, also because the horses are so alike in appearance that the only difference is that "Bad Luck" has a small white star on the forehead and "Good Luck" none. The competition of the twins is said to add zest to a spirited battle of the turf and to provide some of the most exciting race scenes ever shown on the screen.

Population of Iraq now is estimated at 2,750,000.

Hupmobile Six Built to same High Standards as Costliest Cars

Hupmobile Six a Leader, Also, in Complete, Modern Equipment

What goes into a motor car is vastly more important than what goes on it. You will not buy, of course, on mere externals and non-essentials, but on proven performance, dependability, long life, and low cost of maintenance. To superiority in these fundamentals, however, the Hupmobile Six also joins the latest and most complete equipment to be found on any car in its price-class.

1. Oil filter
2. Gasoline filter—low gasoline consumption
3. Thermostatic heat control
4. Snubbers
5. Vision-ventilating windshield
6. Dash gasoline gauge
7. Clear vision bodies
8. Color options—Mohair upholstery in latest mode
9. Walnut grained panels on instrument board and window ledges
10. 4-wheel brakes
11. Special vibration damper
12. Headlights with tilting beam lenses and double filament bulbs

Sedan, five-passenger, four-door, $1385. Coupe, two-passenger, with rumble seat, $1385. Touring, five-passenger, $1325. Equipment includes 30 x 5.25 balloon tires, four-wheel brakes. All prices f. o. b. Detroit, plus revenue tax.

Certainly no car at its price — or within five hundred dollars of its price — compares with the Hupmobile Six in brilliant, delightful performance.

Its ability to perform and to out-perform, however, is not the most remarkable feature of this great car.

Underlying the public's admiration for this big, beautiful, full-size Hupmobile Six, is the deep seated respect of the average American for Hupmobile's traditional dependability.

Hupmobile pays millions of dollars more each year to make its Six one of the most dependable of all six-cylinder cars.

Owners, however, reap the benefit. The Hupmobile Six owner will tell you that his cost of maintenance is so low as to be almost negligible.

He will tell you that he can set out on a tour of a hundred, or a thousand or ten thousand miles, with the complete assurance that his journey will be unmarred by mechanical trouble or annoyance.

For you can drive this Hupmobile Six at express train speed, from sunrise to sunset, in the comforting knowledge that it is engineered and constructed to give such service easily, smoothly, and without straining.

TURF CLASSIC AT AMERICAN

Conway Tearle Has Star Role in "Sporting Lover."

With all its thrills, gayety and colorfulness the famous English Derby comes to the screen of the American theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. "The Sporting Lover," starring Conway Tearle. This is an E. M. Asher picture for First National release. Barbara Bedford is featured opposite Tearle.

No horse racing event in Europe—or in the world, for that matter—is so widely known and honored as the historic English Derby, held each year at Epsom Downs, not far from London.

The cream of European and frequently of American turfs are gathered for this racing classic. Even the King and Queen of England usually enter a horse from their private stables in the event. Originally the main racing event was a one miler, but in recent years the race has been run over a course measuring exactly 1 mile, 4 furlongs and 29 yards.

Although the monetary prizes offered to winners of the Derby are modest fortunes, the principal interest in the event is principally because it is considered the grand sweepstakes of Europe and the outstanding social event of the season. The usual time for the running of the Derby is 2 minutes 34 seconds. Only a few horses have eclipsed this time.

In "The Sporting Lover" an unusual situation is brought about by the entrance of twin three-year-olds in the Derby by rivals owners, also because the horses are so alike in appearance that the only difference is that "Bad Luck" has a small white star on the forehead and "Good Luck" none. The competition of the twins is said to add zest to a spirited battle of the turf and to provide some of the most exciting race scenes ever shown on the screen.

Population of Iraq now is estimated at 2,750,000.

GOOD NATURED? FEEL CHEERFUL?

It's Easy If You Use Old Reliable "VINCO" Herb Tablets

If you are sick, bilious, have indigestion, constipation, or a bad liver, "VINCO" may prove to be just what you need to make you healthy and happy again.

Although never advertised till now, millions of boxes have been sold and druggists are amazed at the quick success of "VINCO."

No man or woman can enjoy life with a sour, sick or bloated stomach, a torpid liver or constipation of the bowels. If constipated—if you need a stomach tonic and bowel regulator—if you don't sleep well, feel "wornout," listless and hate to get up mornings, by all means try "VINCO."

"VINCO" is especially recommended for elderly people and in chronic obstinate constipation where ordinary laxatives fail. "VINCO" Herb Tablets may be just what you need to put your stomach, liver and bowels to work.

Not a drop of dope in "VINCO." Made of herbs, roots, barks—a pleasant chocolate coated tablet. No griping, no nausea. Costs only 25c per box at druggists. Take "VINCO" tonight! Feel fine tomorrow! Do a double day's work! Keep looking and feeling young!

Its ability to perform and to out-perform, however, is not the most remarkable feature of this great car.

Underlying the public's admiration for this big, beautiful, full-size Hupmobile Six, is the deep seated respect of the average American for Hupmobile's traditional dependability.

Hupmobile pays millions of dollars more each year to make its Six one of the most dependable of all six-cylinder cars.

Owners, however, reap the benefit. The Hupmobile Six owner will tell you that his cost of maintenance is so low as to be almost negligible.

TAX COMMISSION DELAYS REPORT

It has been definitely determined that the state tax commission, which has made an exhaustive study of the many features of the West Virginia tax system, will make no preliminary report prior to the November election. It has been stated by D. Allan Burt, chairman of the commission.

The tax commission, Chairman Burt said, would meet in October and November to formulate a report for submission to the next session of the state legislature.

Recommendations of the commission for a revision of West Virginia's tax system, will depend in a large degree on the action of the voters in the coming election when they are asked to ratify two constitutional amendments that propose changes in the collection of taxes and the expenditures of the state's revenue, says Robert S. Archer, Huntington banker.

SQUIRREL SEASON OPENED IN STATE

The squirrel season was officially opened yesterday in West Virginia and a number of local hunters took advantage of the opportunity and spent the day in the country districts.

The open season on squirrels continues until November 30, inclusive. Open season for quail will open November 30. It will run for 30 days. No quail can be killed in Roane and Marshall counties at any time.

Cooperative investigation work is also being carried on between the Biological Survey and the Bureau of Soil to ascertain the value of rabbit manure and offal for fertilizer purposes. Rabbit manure has proved particularly valuable for fruit growing and is being used extensively by the large citrus growers of California. Chemical analysis show that rabbit offal—heads, feet, and intestines—is potentially valuable as a source of commercial oil or grease and fertilizer material. The fats extracted from the heads and feet are a mixture of light colored grease and fat. Indications are that an oil similar to neat's foot oil may be derived from the feet alone.

D. Monroe Green, one of the experts of the Biological Survey, says that from the scale on which rabbit production is being undertaken in Florida and other states there is reason to believe that it will soon spread throughout the East. In proximity to the big eastern markets, he says, there should be a profitable outlet for domestic rabbit meat, once eastern people become acquainted with its fine qualities.

The prejudice that some housewives of the East have to rabbit is probably due to the unattractive appearance in which wild rabbits are often placed on the market, with head, feet and pelt on, and often stained with blood.

The western dressers slaughter and skin the animal, cut off the feet and head, remove the entrails, and then put the carcass in ice water over night, which draws out all blood and stains, making the meat firm and white like the breast of chicken.

High Football Squad Loses Services of Fullback Holmes

"Out for Season" Is Edict of Physician As Akron Tilt Looms

Old Injury to Knee is Renewed as Star Pounds Sebring Line on Way to Touchdown Saturday; Absence From Lineup Will Weaken Team's Offense, Temporarily, at Least.

"'Ducky' Holmes is out for the rest of the season."

This announcement, made this morning by Coach George Kidder, of the Blue and White football squad, marks the loss of high school's outstanding backfield performer and casts a pall of gloom over the local scholastic camp on the eve of the contest with Akron East here, one of the important engagements on the local schedule.

Holmes' loss is caused by a physical injury sustained in last Saturday's contest with Sebring here and, in accordance with orders of his physicians, he must nurse the injury the remainder of the season.

Holmes had reeled off two runs, one for approximately 25 yards and the other for 78 yards and the East Liverpool backfield was pounding the Sebring line for what certainly looked like a third score when the players piled up and Holmes failed to arise.

When they took him off the field, he was unable to walk.

According to Coach Kidder, Holmes had hurt a knee, receiving an injury somewhat in the nature of the one which had kept Schaeffer out of the game, early last fall, and a twist in Saturday's game brought it back again.

Although there was a possibility of Holmes getting into action before the close of the season, it was thought best to permit him to rest in order that he may be right for basketball.

Kidder will have a tough task filling Holmes' shoes, on the face of things, but he has a lot of backfield boys who certainly possess the nerve to try it.

There's Jack Bromby, who played a whale of a game Saturday against Sebring, and who made possible Holmes' long run by breaking up the Sebring secondary defense; Fullerton, a halfback; "Little Joe" Lincoln; "Heimie" Davis, "Franner" McConville, Walt Smith, Van Dyne and possibly several others who have not yet had an opportunity to show their wares.

Kidder had another good fullback in prospect this season, but knee injuries also have kept him out of the game. This is Kirkham, who could have been depended upon as a real asset to the Blue and White.

The Akron East game will be played at Columbian park. Patterson Field still is half-covered with water.

"Don't Sympathize With Me," Plea Of Ex-Champion; "I Don't Need It"

Dempsey Asked About His Plans; One Fan Even Inquires as to Whether He is Expecting to Commit Suicide.

JACK DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Jack Dempsey today related how he lost the heavyweight championship and Gene Tunney told how he won it.

"I just wasn't there" said Dempsey.

"I won the fight in the first round with a short straight right I had been practicing a year," said Tunney.

Both Dempsey and Tunney, furnishing a striking contrast, are in New York today—not a mile apart. The victor and the vanquished; the new champ and the old champ. Tunney, debonair and polished, happy and proud in the possession of the title, and Dempsey, his face swollen and discolored, trying gamely to be his old jaunty, carefree self, and pretending he isn't completely crushed over the loss of his crown.

"Don't sympathize with me," pleaded Dempsey. "I'm still a big strong man and don't need it."

"What was the matter, Jack—were you sick that night?" he was asked.

Hasn't Any Alibi.

"No," he snapped. "I wasn't. I haven't any alibi. Tunney just beat me. He was the best man. The rain didn't hamper me nor did anything else. I just couldn't deliver—that's all."

Tunney, meanwhile, was graciously yielding verbal tributes to the man he conquered.

"Treat him kindly, boys," he said to newspapermen, "he is a fine sportsman. Think of what Dempsey lost—not only two million dollars, but his title and the acclamation, the glory and the lustre that goes with it."

Dempsey is stopping at a hotel with his wife, the former Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress. He will remain here about a month, attending to business and devoting some of his time to court battles which confront him in connection with suits filed by his former manager, Jack Kearns. He will take in the world series and, if he can, will get a good rest.

The ex-champion indicated he had no thought of retiring from the ring. He said he would confer with Tex Rickard, the promoter, in a day or so regarding his future activities. He did not mention a return match with Tunney, nor did he discuss Harry Wills, the negro contender.

Recovers Cheerful Mood.

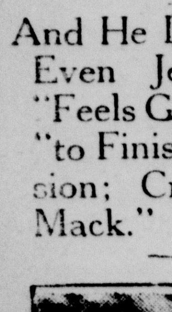
Dempsey has somewhat recovered his cheerful mood despite the battered condition of his face. His dark features are still lumpy and discolored in spots. His face looked worse than it ordinarily would because his chin and cheek were covered with zinc ointment for an itch he contracted from one of his sparring partners. The infection has spread, causing him annoyance. He said he might send for a specialist. The cut over his left eye, in which four stitches were taken, is healing, but the flesh under the left eye is swollen and tender. A black line under the left eye testifies to the efficacy of Tunney's right.

Messages galore are coming to Dempsey, all of them wishing him luck and offering sympathy. Apropos of his frame of mind, which is getting better with the passing of each hour, Dempsey said some one called him on the phone at the Ambassador hotel in Atlantic City and asked him if he was going to commit suicide.

"I said," remarked Dempsey, with a smile, "that I was a little bit crazy, but not as crazy as that."

McCarthy Is Greatest Manager In Baseball, Says Owner Bill Wrigley

And He Doesn't Except Even John McGraw; "Feels Good", He Says, "to Finish in First Division; Credit Goes to Mack."



McCARTHY

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—"I'll stand for anything good you say about Joe McCarthy," said William Wrigley, Jr., today in discussing the manager of the Chicago Cubs, Mr. Wrigley's baseball club.

"McCarthy is one of the best men I know and the greatest manager in baseball — not except John McGraw," said Mr. Wrigley, adding:

"I can't tell you how good it makes me feel to find the Cubs in a first division berth after most of the alleged experts picked them to finish far down the list. And most of the credit goes to Mack.

"What are we going to do next year? Ask McCarthy. All I hope is that the experts pick us to finish last. Then we will be pretty sure to win the pennant."

LET CLUB PULL YOUR WRISTS— DON'T USE THEM INITIALLY

A peculiar feature of these mechanical contrivances that should impress the golf player is that they have no wrists at all — the thing is merely a post and a steel arm. The expert golfer becomes much the same thing. He is a driving machine, or wants to be. The goal is to approach as nearly as possible the mechanical reliability of the machine. It does not follow that you make the swing without wrist action, because you do use the wrists. But the back swing action of the mechanical device is a mighty good pattern for the average golfer to follow. That is, take the club back as if you had no wrists. That way your club will pull up your wrists at the right place, near the top, and will take up your slack.

Announce Pairings for Golf Championship Matches.

HANDICAPPED by the excess of rainfall during the last week or so, match play in the Country club's annual championship tournament gets under way this week with only one division of 16 contenders operating instead of the customary two.

Pairings for the first match which will be played off before Saturday night, were announced by the sports committee today as follows, together with qualifying scores:

J. M. Wells, 79, vs. A. C. Frost, 103.
R. J. Bernard, 90, vs. M. W. Thompson, 97.
A. A. Wells, 92, vs. D. D. Irwin, 96.
J. D. Thompson, 83, vs. G. R. Thomas, 101.
F. F. Groglode, 84, vs. L. Wasbutzky, 102.
R. G. Smith, 91, vs. G. W. Durkee, 96.
C. W. Ashbaugh, 94, vs. R. W. Harker, 95.
T. E. Lewis 89, vs. H. A. Smith, 99.

The qualifying round was played without handicap, the rule that will be followed throughout the tournament.

As a result of rains and weather conditions which made playing difficult, qualifying scores were unusually large, and, in some instances, were not turned in at all. With several prospective contenders away, the field, as a result, was cut to such an extent that only one division, instead of two, was possible.

Two matches will be played next week and the final match the following week.

GEORGETOWN NEXT FOR PITT

Meet on Gridiron for First Time Since 1914.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 29. — Georgetown university is the University of Pittsburgh's football opponent in the Pitt stadium here Saturday. Georgetown has not been played by the locals since 1914, the Panthers winning by a score of 21-0. They are one of the outstanding teams of the east and the game will be one of the big attractions of the year in Pittsburgh. Ed Thorp will be referee, Dean Watkeys, umpire; A. W. Palmer, linesman, and G. N. Bankart, field judge.

Coach John B. Sutherland found many problems to solve after the Allegheny game Saturday, when the Panthers nosed out a 9-7 victory. It is agreed that some miracles will have to be performed this week if Georgetown is to be defeated. With seven regulars missing from last year's great machine, it is to be expected that the varsity would not perform at its best against Allegheny, but few expected the close game and the margin of victory by a mere safety. Many changes are expected in the varsity this week, and the lineup will be in doubt until game time. Georgetown is said to be confident of victory, and a big crowd of supporters will come from Washington and eastern points to see the game.

Invite Gene to Grid Game.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 29.—St Xavier college issued invitation today to Gene Tunney to attend the St. X'-Quantico (Va.) Marine school football battle here Oct. 9 as guest of both teams.

Long times coming comes at last as the saying goes, and now that pennant time has come for St. Louis again, Mound City fans are wasting none of the precious moments in celebrating the end of St. Louis' world's series famine.

St. Louis has not won a pennant since 1888—38 years ago— when Curt Welch and the Browns of the American Association turned in their last flag for Owner Chris Von Der Ahe, and captured its only world's championship in 1886 in a series with the Chicago White Stockings by copping four to the National League entry's two.

The final game of the series was decided when Curt Welch, who started on the road to baseball fame in East Liverpool, stole home on the pitcher's windup with the winning run, contrary to advices of coaches, who had warned him to play it safe with the count 3 an 3.

Curt Welch played four years with the St. Louis Browns and in each year the Browns won the American Association pennant—there was no American League in those days.

In 1885 the Browns played a six game tie with the Chicago White Stockings, the seventh contest going to a draw; the following year the Browns won a four to two series and the world's championship; in 1887, Von Der Ahe's club won the association bunting again, but lost to Detroit in the series playoff; and in 1888, Welch's final year in St. Louis, the Browns again lost the series, this time to the New York Nationals.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—The ban on heavyweights has been lifted by the state boxing commission, it was learned today. The commission took this action, it was said, because so many heavyweights have volunteered their services in the benefit boxing show to be staged here Oct. 15 for the Florida Relief fund.

O. W. Huncke, chairman of the commission, sought the services of Gene Tunney for the benefit show, but to date the new heavyweight king has remained silent about the invitation.

Georges Carpentier and Jimmy Delaney, of St. Paul, will clash in the feature bout, it was announced. Several other all-star matches will support the main event.

Can't Tell How Mark Koenig Will Play It

Erratic Work of Shortfielder Reason Why Yanks Can't be Given Even Chance With Cards in Coming Series, Say Experts; Does Wrong Thing at the Right Time.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—"When you hit one toward shortstop—be it liner, ground ball or pop fly—start running and never stop; for neither you nor the man at the position will know what he is going to do with it."

This, declared members of the St. Louis Cardinals today, was the advice given them by American leaguers who have watched Mark Koenig through a season of catch-as-can-miss performances and this, according to the writer, is probably the abiding reason why the New York Yankees can not be granted an even chance with the Cardinals in the world series.

A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, according to idle gossip, and by the same token a team is no stronger than its shortstop. Mark Koenig, shortstop of the New York Yankees, always is a great help to somebody but seldom to the Yanks. He may handle nine chances perfectly but when he kicks away the tenth the ball games goes with it. That's his complex; he is a ball player who does the wrong thing at the right time.

Lacks Sureness.

It is a distinct tribute, in fact, to the hitting of the club and to Miller Huggins that the outfit was able to win a pennant in spite of Koenig's indiosyncrasies. The young man is game, he hits fairly well and most of the time he can go and get them. But he is unfortunate in that he apparently neglects to let his left hand know what his right is doing. That is a mistake; hands should have no secrets between them, for if anything demands steadiness and reliability it is the postion of shortstop and Koenig has very little of either.

It would seem that he can get anything and he can miss anything.

Only two other pennant winners have been able to laugh off a man like that and neither won the world's title. Reference is made to the Brooklyn Dodgers of 1915 and 1920 and to Ivan Olson, the terrible Swede. Ivan was game, too, but he was a five thumbed wonder for your life.

All of the others were good. Some of them, indeed, were great. The list, dating back to the stars of the modern series in 1903, includes the only Wagner, Joe Tinker, Bill Dahlen, Art Fletcher, Fred Parent, Monte Cross, George Davis, Charley O'Leary, Donie Bush, Heinie Wagner, Jack Barry, Rabbit Maranville, Dave Bancroft, Everett Scott, Buck Weaver, Charley Hollocher, Swede Risberg, Larry Kopf, Joe Sewell, Roger Peckinpaugh, Travis Jackson and Glenn Wright.

Thevenow May Be Star.

The only doubtful one in that array is Kopf and he had a very good year when the Reds won in 1919. The rest are fool-proof.

Perhaps, you ask, one cannot say the same of the Cards' shortstop. Maybe not, but the writer has a hunch that Tommy Thevenow will be one of the stars of the series. A fine, aggressive fighting fielder. He has helped to hold the pitchers up all season and he is one of the best pinch hitters on the club. I don't think it will be necessary to worry about Thevenow; in fact, no one is. Everybody knows pretty well what he is going to do. They can't say the same for Koenig.

Knowing so little of his inclinations and intentions, at that, it might be that he is due to be the hero of the series. But the odds are dead against him.

CIGARETTES

Three Extras

To describe the costly extra process which lifts Luckies out of the ordinary would take a volume of technical description.

But you can get the results instantly because in a Lucky Strike you'll find the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos properly aged, perfectly blended —and something more.

You'll realize that there is something about them which gives them distinction.

All because of an extra process—toasting.

When you smoke Luckies, you'll find:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

Thus the toasting process is an addition. It adds a unique and distinct improvement to a cigarette that has already been made from the finest Turkish and domestic tobacco. It is the reason millions prefer Lucky Strikes.

As a result of rains and weather conditions which made playing difficult, qualifying scores were unusually large, and, in some instances, were not turned in at all. With several prospective contenders away, the field, as a result, was cut to such an extent that only one division, instead of two, was possible.

Two matches will be played next week and the final match the following week.

GEORGETOWN NEXT FOR PITT

Meet on Gridiron for First Time Since 1914.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 29. — Georgetown university is the University of Pittsburgh's football opponent in the Pitt stadium here Saturday. Georgetown has not been played by the locals since 1914, the Panthers winning by a score of 21-0. They are one of the outstanding teams of the east and the game will be one of the big attractions of the year in Pittsburgh. Ed Thorp will be referee, Dean Watkeys, umpire; A. W. Palmer, linesman, and G. N. Bankart, field judge.

Coach John B. Sutherland found many problems to solve after the Allegheny game Saturday, when the Panthers nosed out a 9-7 victory. It is agreed that some miracles will have to be performed this week if Georgetown is to be defeated. With seven regulars missing from last year's great machine, it is to be expected that the varsity would not perform at its best against Allegheny, but few expected the close game and the margin of victory by a mere safety. Many changes are expected in the varsity this week, and the lineup will be in doubt until game time. Georgetown is said to be confident of victory, and a big crowd of supporters will come from Washington and eastern points to see the game.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—The ban on heavyweights has been lifted by the state boxing commission, it was learned today. The commission took this action, it was said, because so many heavyweights have volunteered their services in the benefit boxing show to be staged here Oct. 15 for the Florida Relief fund.

O. W. Huncke, chairman of the commission, sought the services of Gene Tunney for the benefit show, but to date the new heavyweight king has remained silent about the invitation.

Can't Tell How Mark Koenig Will Play It

Erratic Work of Shortfielder Reason Why Yanks Can't be Given Even Chance With Cards in Coming Series, Say Experts; Does Wrong Thing at the Right Time.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—"When you hit one toward shortstop—be it liner, ground ball or pop fly—start running and never stop; for neither you nor the man at the position will know what he is going to do with it."

This, declared members of the St. Louis Cardinals today, was the advice given them by American leaguers who have watched Mark Koenig through a season of catch-as-can-miss performances and this, according to the writer, is probably the abiding reason why the New York Yankees can not be granted an even chance with the Cardinals in the world series.

A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, according to idle gossip, and by the same token a team is no stronger than its shortstop. Mark Koenig, shortstop of the New York Yankees, always is a great help to somebody but seldom to the Yanks. He may handle nine chances perfectly but when he kicks away the tenth the ball games goes with it. That's his complex; he is a ball player who does the wrong thing at the right time.

Lacks Sureness.

It is a distinct tribute, in fact, to the hitting of the club and to Miller Huggins that the outfit was able to win a pennant in spite of Koenig's indiosyncrasies. The young man is game, he hits fairly well and most of the time he can go and get them. But he is unfortunate in that he apparently neglects to let his left hand know what his right is doing. That is a mistake; hands should have no secrets between them, for if anything demands steadiness and reliability it is the postion of shortstop and Koenig has very little of either.

It would seem that he can get anything and he can miss anything.

Only two other pennant winners have been able to laugh off a man like that and neither won the world's title. Reference is made to the Brooklyn Dodgers of 1915 and 1920 and to Ivan Olson, the terrible Swede. Ivan was game, too, but he was a five thumbed wonder for your life.

All of the others were good. Some of them, indeed, were great. The list, dating back to the stars of the modern series in 1903, includes the only Wagner, Joe Tinker, Bill Dahlen, Art Fletcher, Fred Parent, Monte Cross, George Davis, Charley O'Leary, Donie Bush, Heinie Wagner, Jack Barry, Rabbit Maranville, Dave Bancroft, Everett Scott, Buck Weaver, Charley Hollocher, Swede Risberg, Larry Kopf, Joe Sewell, Roger Peckinpaugh, Travis Jackson and Glenn Wright.

Thevenow May Be Star.

The only doubtful one in that array is Kopf and he had a very good year when the Reds won in 1919. The rest are fool-proof.

Perhaps, you ask, one cannot say the same of the Cards' shortstop. Maybe not, but the writer has a hunch that Tommy Thevenow will be one of the stars of the series. A fine, aggressive fighting fielder. He has helped to hold the pitchers up all season and he is one of the best pinch hitters on the club. I don't think it will be necessary to worry about Thevenow; in fact, no one is. Everybody knows pretty well what he is going to do. They can't say the same for Koenig.

Knowing so little of his inclinations and intentions, at that, it might be that he is due to be the hero of the series. But the odds are dead against him.

High Football Squad Loses Services of Fullback Holmes

"Out for Season" Is Edict of Physician As Akron Tilt Looms

Old Injury to Knee is Renewed as Star Pounds Sebring Line on Way to Touchdown Saturday; Absence From Lineup Will Weaken Team's Offense, Temporarily, at Least.

"'Ducky' Holmes is out for the rest of the season."

This announcement, made this morning by Coach George Kidder, of the Blue and White football squad, marks the loss of high school's outstanding backfield performer and casts a pall of gloom over the local scholastic camp on the eve of the contest with Akron East here, one of the important engagements on the local schedule.

Holmes' loss is caused by a physical injury sustained in last Saturday's contest with Sebring here and, in accordance with orders of his physicians, he must nurse the injury the remainder of the season.

Holmes had reeled off two runs, one for approximately 25 yards and the other for 78 yards and the East Liverpool backfield was pounding the Sebring line for what certainly looked like a third score when the players piled up and Holmes failed to arise.

When they took him off the field, he was unable to walk.

According to Coach Kidder, Holmes had hurt a knee, receiving an injury somewhat in the nature of the one which had kept Schaeffer out of the game, early last fall, and a twist in Saturday's game brought it back again.

Although there was a possibility of Holmes getting into action before the close of the season, it was thought best to permit him to rest in order that he may be right for basketball.

Kidder will have a tough task filling Holmes' shoes, on the face of things, but he has a lot of backfield boys who certainly possess the nerve to try it.

There's Jack Bromby, who played a whale of a game Saturday against Sebring, and who made possible Holmes' long run by breaking up the Sebring secondary defense; Fullerton, a halfback; "Little Joe" Lincoln; "Heinie" Davis, "Franner" McConville, Walt Smith, Van Dyne and possibly several others who have not yet had an opportunity to show their wares.

Kidder had another good fullback in prospect this season, but knee injuries also have kept him out of the game. This is Kirkham, who could have been depended upon as a real asset to the Blue and White.

The Akron East game will be played at Columbian park. Patterson Field still is half-covered with water.

"Don't Sympathize With Me," Plea Ot Ex-Champion; "I Don't Need It"

Dempsey Asked About His Plans; One Fan Even Inquires as to Whether He is Expecting to Commit Suicide.

JACK DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Jack Dempsey today related how he lost the heavyweight championship and Gene Tunney told how he won it.

"I just wasn't there" said Dempsey.

"I won the fight in the first round with a short straight right I had been practicing a year," said Tunney.

Both Dempsey and Tunney, furnishing a striking contrast, are in New York today—not a mile apart. The victor and the vanquished; the new champ and the old champ. Tunney, debonair and polished, happy and proud in the possession of the title, and Dempsey, his face swollen and discolored, trying gamely to be his old jaunty, carefree self, and pretending he isn't completely crushed over the loss of his crown.

"Don't sympathize with me," pleaded Dempsey. "I'm still a big strong man and don't need it."

"What was the matter, Jack—were you sick that night?" he was asked.

Hasn't Any Alibi.

"No," he snapped. "I wasn't. I haven't any alibi. Tunney just beat me. He was the best man. The rain didn't hamper me nor did anything else. I just couldn't deliver—that's all."

Tunney, meanwhile, was graciously yielding verbal tributes to the man he conquered.

"Treat him kindly, boys," he said to newspapermen, "he is a fine sportsman. Think of what Dempsey lost—not only two million dollars, but his title and the acclamation, the glory and the lustre that goes with it."

Dempsey is stopping at a hotel with his wife, the former Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress. He will remain here about a month, attending to business and devoting some of his time to court battles which confront him in connection with suits filed by his former manager, Jack Kearns. He will take in the world series and, if he can, will get a good rest.

The ex-champion indicated he had no thought of retiring from the ring. He said he would confer with Tex Rickard, the promoter, in a day or so regarding his future activities. He did not mention a return match with Tunney, nor did he discuss Harry Wills, the negro contender.

Recovers Cheerful Mood.

Dempsey has somewhat recovered his cheerful mood despite the battered condition of his face. His dark features are still lumpy and discolored in spots. His face looked worse than it ordinarily would because his chin and cheek were covered with zinc ointment for an itch he contracted from one of his sparring partners. The infection has spread, causing him annoyance. He said he might send for a specialist. The cut over his left eye, in which four stitches were taken, is healing, but the flesh under the left eye is swollen and tender. A black line under the left eye testifies to the efficacy of Tunney's right.

Messages galore are coming to Dempsey, all of them wishing him luck and offering sympathy. Apropos of his frame of mind, which is getting better with the passing of each hour, Dempsey said some one called him on the phone at the Ambassador hotel in Atlantic City and asked him if he was going to commit suicide.

"I said," remarked Dempsey, with a smile, "that I was a little bit crazy, but not as crazy as that."

McCarthy Is Greatest Manager In Baseball, Says Owner Bill Wrigley

McCARTHY

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—"I'll stand for anything good you say about Joe McCarthy," said William Wrigley, Jr., today in discussing the manager of the Chicago Cubs, Mr. Wrigley's baseball club.

"McCarthy is one of the best men I know and the greatest manager in baseball — not except John McGraw," said Mr. Wrigley, adding:

"I can't tell you how good it makes me feel to find the Cubs in a first division berth after most of the alleged experts picked them to finish far down the list. And most of the credit goes to Mack.

"What are we going to do next year? Ask McCarthy. All I hope is that the experts pick us to finish last. Then we will be pretty sure to win the pennant."

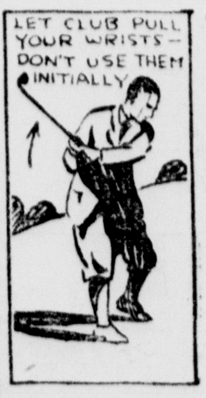
INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Around golf club factories one may see mechanical driving machines, with which golf balls and clubs are tested.



LET CLUB PULL YOUR WRISTS—DON'T USE THEM INITIALLY

A peculiar feature of these mechanical contrivances that should impress the golf player is that they have no wrists at all — the thing is merely a post and a steel arm. The expert golfer becomes much the same thing. He is a driving machine, or wants to be. The goal is to approach as nearly as possible the mechanical reliability of the machine. It does not follow that you make the swing without wrist action, because you do use the wrists. But the back swing action of the mechanical device is a mighty good pattern for the average golfer to follow. That is, take the club back as if you had no wrists. That way your club will pull up your wrists at the right place, near the top, and will take up your slack.

START PLAY IN TITLE TOURNEY

Announce Pairings for Golf Championship Matches.

HANDICAPPED by the excess of rainfall during the last week or so, match play in the Country club's annual championship tournament gets under way this week with only one division of 16 contenders operating instead of the customary two.

Pairings for the first match which will be played off before Saturday night, were announced by the sports committee today as follows, together with qualifying scores:

J. M. Wells, 79, vs. A. C. Frost, 103.
R. J. Bernard, 90, vs. M. W. Thompson, 97.
A. A. Wells, 92, vs. D. D. Irwin, 96.
J. D. Thompson, 83, vs. G. R. Thomas, 101.
F. F. Grogleda, 84, vs. L. Wasbutzky, 102.
R. G. Smith, 91, vs. G. W. Durkee, 96.
C. W. Ashbaugh, 94, vs. R. W. Harker, 95.
T. E. Lewis, 89, vs. H. A. Smith, 99.

The qualifying round was played without handicap, the rule that will be followed throughout the tournament.

As a result of rains and weather conditions which made playing difficult, qualifying scores were unusually large, and, in some instances, were not turned in at all. With several prospective contenders away, the field, as a result, was cut to such an extent that only one division, instead of two, was possible.

Two matches will be played next week and the final match the following week.

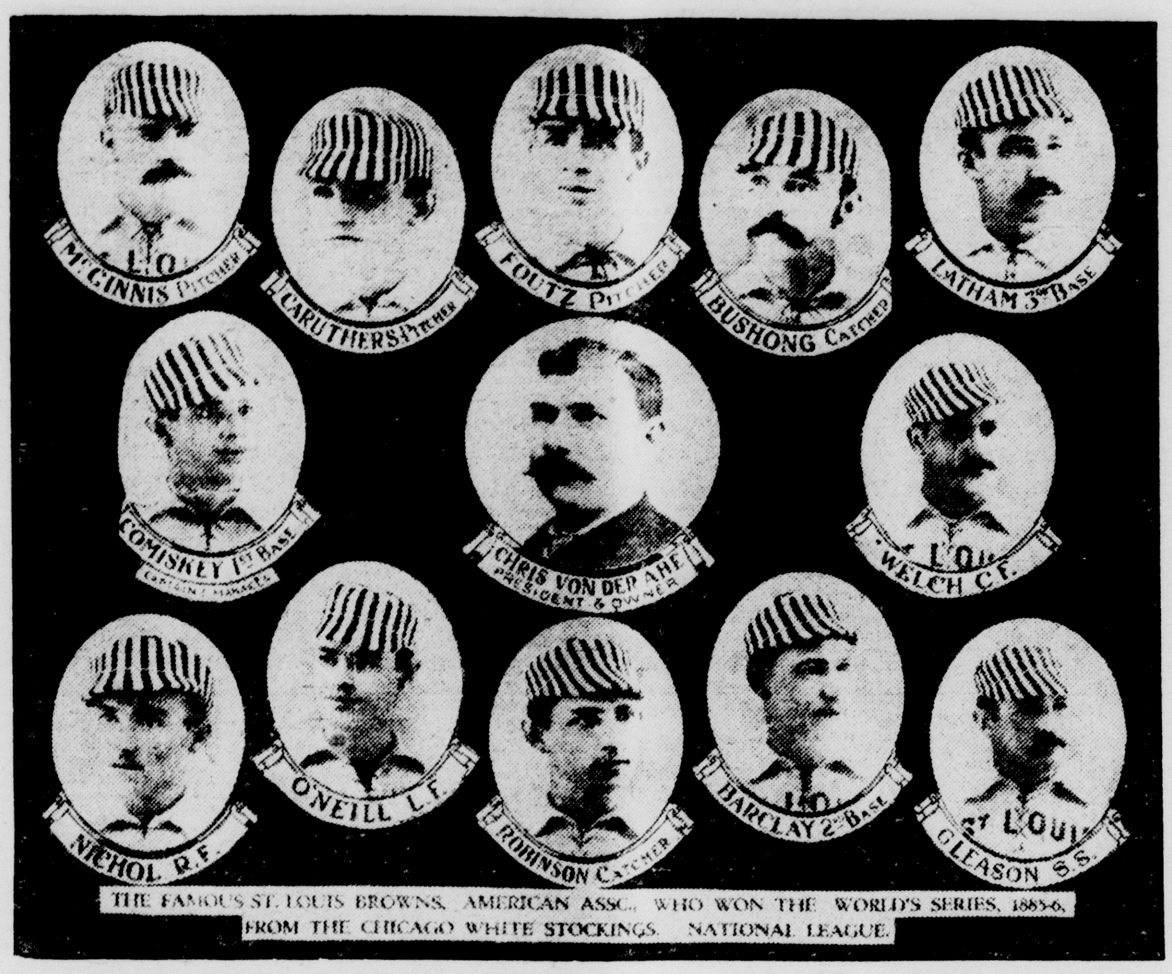
HIT 'EM TO SHORT, CARDS ARE ADVISED

1886-1926 Is Long Span Between Pennants; This Club Won St. Louis' Only World Title



THE FAMOUS ST. LOUIS BROWNS, AMERICAN ASSC., WHO WON THE WORLD'S SERIES, 1885-6, FROM THE CHICAGO WHITE STOCKINGS, NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Long times coming comes at last as the saying goes, and now that pennant time has come for St. Louis again, Mound City fans are wasting none of the precious moments in celebrating the end of St. Louis' world's series famine.

St. Louis has not won a pennant since 1888—38 years ago— when Curt Welch and the Browns of the American Association turned in their last flag for Owner Chris Von Der Ahe, and captured its only world's championship in 1886 in a series with the Chicago White Stockings by copping four to the National League entry's two.

The final game of the series was decided when Curt Welch, who started on the road to baseball fame in East Liverpool, stole home on the pitcher's windup with the winning run, contrary to advices of coaches, who had warned him to play it safe with the count 3 an 3.

Curt Welch played four years with the St. Louis Browns and in each year the Browns won the American Association pennant—there was no American League in those days.

In 1885 the Browns played a six game tie with the Chicago White Stockings, the seventh contest going to a draw; the following year the Browns won a four to two series and the world's championship; in 1887, Von Der Ahe's club won the association bunting again, but lost to Detroit in the series playoff; and in 1888, Welch's final year in St. Louis, the Browns again lost the series, this time to the New York Nationals.

Can't Tell How Mark Koenig Will Play It

Erratic Work of Shortfielder Reason Why Yanks Can't be Given Even Chance With Cards in Coming Series, Say Experts; Does Wrong Thing at the Right Time.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—"When you hit one toward shortstop—be it liner, ground ball or pop fly—start running and never stop; for neither you nor the man at the position will know what he is going to do with it."

400 Akron Juvenile Police Make Good In Traffic Work

AKRON, O.—The juvenile police force has made good here.

During the past week Chief of Police L. D. Carter has sworn in nearly 400 schoolboys as traffic policemen. His action is the result of a year's trial of the scheme which has resulted in a report that not one child was killed last year near a public school building.

The new "coppers" are all picked "men" who have undergone training and been given a probationary term of duty. They leave their classes a few minutes before recesses and take up their stations at the traffic semaphores.

The youths are trained by a motorcycle sergeant assigned to their command. Great rivalry exists among the boys for heavy posts and the sergeant yet has to receive any report of dereliction of duty.

Only three cases of refusing to obey orders were reported last year. One man slapped a juvenile policeman, spent five days in jail here he could mull over his faux pas. Another "sassed back" and was smeared with a $50 fine by the judge.

Greeks' Philosophy Idealistic.

Greeks as a people have a philosophy of life that is quite different from that of Americans. Their desire is to be rounded out human beings, and having an interest more in beauty and life itself than in material successes. Harshness in personal relations is exceptional and as a rule their habits are temperate. They show a liking for the mere process of thinking.

400 Akron Juvenile Police Make Good In Traffic Work

AKRON, O.—The juvenile police force has made good here.

During the past week Chief of Police L. D. Carter has sworn in nearly 400 schoolboys as traffic policemen. His action is the result of a year's trial of the scheme which has resulted in a report that not one child was killed last year near a public school building.

The new "coppers" are all picked "men" who have undergone training and been given a probationary term of duty. They leave their classes a few minutes before recesses and take up their stations at the traffic semaphores.

The youths are trained by a motorcycle sergeant assigned to their command. Great rivalry exists among the boys for heavy posts and the sergeant yet has to receive any report of dereliction of duty.

Only three cases of refusing to obey orders were reported last year. One man slapped a juvenile policeman, spent five days in jail here he could mull over his faux pas. Another "sassed back" and was smeared with a $50 fine by the judge.

Greeks' Philosophy Idealistic.

Greeks as a people have a philosophy of life that is quite different from that of Americans. Their desire is to be rounded out human beings, and having an interest more in beau[illegible] and life itself than in material successes. Harshness in personal relations is exceptional and as a rule their habits are temperate. They show a liking for the mere process of thinking.

HEATROLA*

was a success the minute it appeared. And its popularity has grown so fast that today, in its sixth successful year, Heatrola owners are numbered high in the tens of thousands. Because Heatrola* is so attractive, so efficient, so economical—because its exclusive design prevents any imitation from being anywhere near as good!

*Heatrola is not the name of a KIND of heating plant—it is the name of the original and foremost small-home warm-air heating plant. Made only by The Estate Stove Company, Hamilton, Ohio, and sold locally only by us.

400 Akron Juvenile Police Make Good In Traffic Work

AKRON, O.—The juvenile police force has made good here.

During the past week Chief of Police L. D. Carter has sworn in nearly 400 schoolboys as traffic policemen. His action is the result of a year's trial of the scheme which has resulted in a report that not one child was killed last year near a public school building.

The new "coppers" are all picked "men" who have undergone training and been given a probationary term of duty. They leave their classes a few minutes before recesses and take up their stations at the traffic semaphores.

The youths are trained by a motorcycle sergeant assigned to their command. Great rivalry exists among the boys for heavy posts and the sergeant yet has to receive any report of dereliction of duty.

Only three cases of refusing to obey orders were reported last year. One man slapped a juvenile policeman, spent five days in jail here he could mull over his faux pas. Another "sassed back" and was smeared with a $50 fine by the judge.

Greeks' Philosophy Idealistic.

Greeks as a people have a philosophy of life that is quite different from that of Americans. Their desire is to be rounded out human beings, and having an interest more in beauty and life itself than in material successes. Harshness in personal relations is exceptional and as a rule their habits are temperate. They show a liking for the mere process of thinking.

Wm. Erlanger Company Predicts A Colorful Season This Fall

NOTES

Distinctively Interesting

THE WARDROBE of the late Rudolph Valentino was said to include 40 Suits—Young Count Franz Esterhazy, Jr. is reported to have 3000 Suits. The most of us feel that we could get along very well with three or four suits but usually must be satisfied with less—and far between. The fewer we have the more particular we must be in their selection if we expect them to give us the maximum of service for our hard earned money.

ERLANGER'S New Fall Suits offer ample variety for choosing one or many—fit for kings, yet priced within reach of every man.

INFORMATION gained from reliable sources points to a season in which the turned down brim in men's new Fall Hats will share honors of the season on a fifty-fifty basis with the Fedora or Alpine shape. As for colors, browns, light greys and light tans will be in the foreground.

ERLANGER'S Hat Department is displaying such widely popular makes as the John B. Stetson, Mallory and others—Autumn's most approved shapes and colors—Stetson's at $8.00 and up; Mallory's at $6.00 up; others at $3.45 and up.

HOSIERY for men this Fall is a bit loud. While there is plenty of modest hosiery worn most of the young men go in for gay effects. The young fellows nowadays wear low shoes the year round and want noticeable hosiery.

Erlanger's are showing an unusually large and varied stock of gay patterned hosiery this season as well as the more conservative colors—Beautiful fibre silk plaids at only 50c. Fine quality silk hosiery at $1.00.

PATTERNED SHIRTS are the vogue this season and these as a rule have collars attached or collars to match. Formerly the patterns were usually fine stripes or dots, but this season finds very elaborate stipple treatments of bold stripes with conventional designs or else all-over floral, or geometrical figures — Color arrangements are very beautiful. Of course there's the plain white and plain color tints that are always popular.

Distinctive patterns are being shown at Erlanger's in Manhattan made shirts and others — Priced very moderately at $2.50 and up for Manhattans, others $1.49 and up.

GIRLS' FALL COATS this year are mostly fur trimmed—beautiful fabrics that are lovely in their various shades and rich plain colors or smart sport patterns—Buttons and fancy stitching are noticeable embellishments. The prices are exceptionally low for their quality. They can be bought at Erlanger's as low as $4.98 and upward.

WOMEN AND MISSES will be surprised at the excellent new Silk Dresses that Erlanger's have just received and priced specially at only $4.95—well worth $8.00.

NEW SHIPMENTS of Felt Hats for Women and Misses' that should sell for $4.00 and $5.00 are being featured at Erlanger's at $2.79. Women should see them before purchasing their new Fall hats. They have others at $3.79 to $6.79.

East Liverpool Men Fortunate

In having at their service a store of the Wm. Erlanger calibre to collect vast assortments of clothing and haberdashery for their consideration.

Months ahead this store is carefully selecting clothing for its patrons — Style, quality and workmanship in every garment is painstakingly inspected that they may come up to the Erlanger standard—Every garment must be of good quality regardless of its proposed selling price. Every Suit, Topcoat or Overcoat that goes out of the Erlanger Store carries a guarantee of perfect satisfaction to the customer — Every man should see them.

New Fall Suits and Overcoats

Now on display at Erlanger's at

$29.50 $34.50 $39.50 $49.50

Perhaps the best known make they carry is "Hart Schaffner & Marx," however, "Cortley," "Clothcraft" and others may be just as familiar to most men. One and two pants models are both shown in a great variety of Fall's approved fabrics, in patterns and shadings that men and young fellows so much desire. Diversified styles, patterns and colorings are shown also in the Overcoats. Other Suits shown at $16.50 and $19.75.

Topcoats Mostly Box and Tube Styles

With prices ranging at Erlanger's from $19.75 up to $34.50

There is not so much difference in the styles of the topcoats and overcoats—The Topcoat as every one knows is of much lighter weight and provides comfort and style when an overcoat is too heavy and bundlesome. Plain backs, tubes and box effects are the most popular models. "Heidknit" Topcoats tailored of a serviceable stylish knit fabric will be more popular than ever in the new Autumn shades.

"Good morning, Mrs. O'Connor, and is Pat at home?"

"Sure, and where are your eyes, Dinty Murphy? Isn't that his shirt hangin' in front o' ye on the line?"—Yale Record.

Customer: "Can I change these pants at this counter?"

Clerk: "Well, I'll tell you, Mister, we have quite a few women shoppers, so maybe you'd better go to the dressing room in the rear."—Lehigh Burr.

• • •

"I simply can't understand the combination of my wife's clothes."

"What puzzles you?"

"Well, when she wants to hide anything, she pokes it down her neck, but when she want to get it again, it's always in her stocking."

WHAT HAPPENED 20 YEARS AGO

From the East Liverpool Morning Tribune

Wheat No. 1 was quoted at 70c per bushel. New potatoes at 20c per peck. Dairy butter at 20c and 25c a pound. Fresh country eggs, per dozen, 24c.

The Pittsburgh Nationals broke even on a double header with Brooklyn. Batteries—Brady, Leever and Reitz; Scanlon and Berger.

Preparations are going steadily on in the Laughlin potteries making shapes and designs for the new Wells-Clark Company pottery to be started soon at Newell.

Secretary Taft issued a proclamation declaring Cuba under the control of a provisional United States government.

Men were wearing wide shouldered padded coats and narrow bottom trousers. Women were using two and more hat pins to keep their high, feathered millinery creations balanced on top of their heads. Long hair cleverly done up in a neat knot on top helped to anchor the hats.

Adolph Marks, of Chicago, is credited with being the directing influence in the Thaw case.

The Charles I. Evans trophy at the Country Club links was won by E. M. Knowles by one stroke—E. J. State was runner up.

A timely occasion for the Public to view and inspect the great stocks of new Fall merchandise WM. ERLANGER COMPANY now have on display

Few cities the size of East Liverpool can boast of a merchandising institution that can compare with the Erlanger Store. Its dependable merchandise, its great variety of stocks and its value giving policies have given it the leadership in merchandising that forty-six years of community service well deserves.

Catering to the clothing and merchandising wants of the "Pottery Center of America" for nearly half a century has given this institution a keen insight into the wants and preferences of the community. This knowledge has again served them well in selecting their vast Fall and Winter stocks. It has been a big factor in their great success—knowing what the public wants and having it when they want it—at the lowest possible price.

Boys' Clothing Styles On a Par With Dad's

Never has boys clothing received so much attention from style designers than the last year or so. Boys are getting as particular as "Dad" about the style of their Suits and Overcoats. Erlanger's have foreseen this development and have immense stocks on display to meet the preference of boys, and parents as well.

Their displays show long pants suits that even "Dad" may envy—Mannish vests seem to be one of the important details with the youngsters—many suits have both a short and a long pair of trousers to match while others have two pair of the long pants. There's single and double breasted styles too—patterns and colors just as beautiful as these offered in the men's models.

Wm. Erlanger Company Predicts A Colorful Season This Fall

NOTES Distinctively Interesting

THE WARDROBE of the late Rudolph Valentino was said to include 40 Suits—Young Count Franz Esterhazy, Jr. is reported to have 3000 Suits. The most of us feel that we could get along very well with three or four suits but usually must be satisfied with less—and far between. The fewer we have the more particular we must be in their selection if we expect them to give us the maximum of service for our hard earned money.

ERLANGER'S New Fall Suits offer ample variety for choosing one or many—fit for kings, yet priced within reach of every man.

INFORMATION gained from reliable sources points to a season in which the turned down brim in men's new Fall Hats will share honors of the season on a fifty-fifty basis with the Fedora or Alpine shape. As for colors, browns, light greys and light tans will be in the foreground.

ERLANGER'S Hat Department is displaying such widely popular makes as the John B. Stetson, Mallory and others—Autumn's most approved shapes and colors—Stetson's at $8.00 and up; Mallory's at $6.00 up; others at $3.45 and up.

HOSIERY for men this Fall is a bit loud. While there is plenty of modest hosiery worn most of the young men go in for gay effects. The young fellows nowadays wear low shoes the year round and want noticeable hosiery.

Erlanger's are showing an unusually large and varied stock of gay patterned hosiery this season as well as the more conservative colors—Beautiful fibre silk plaids at only 50c. Fine quality silk hosiery at $1.00.

PATTERNED SHIRTS are the vogue this season and these as a rule have collars attached or collars to match. Formerly the patterns were usually fine stripes or dots, but this season finds very elaborate stipple treatments of bold stripes with conventional designs or else all-over floral, or geometrical figures — Color arrangements are very beautiful. Of course there's the plain white and plain color tints that are always popular.

Distinctive patterns are being shown at Erlanger's in Manhattan made shirts and others — Priced very moderately at $2.50 and up for Manhattans, others $1.49 and up.

GIRLS' FALL COATS this year are mostly fur trimmed—beautiful fabrics that are lovely in their various shades and rich plain colors or smart sport patterns—Buttons and fancy stitching are noticeable embellishments. The prices are exceptionally low for their quality. They can be bought at Erlanger's as low as $4.98 and upward.

WOMEN AND MISSES will be surprised at the excellent new Silk Dresses that Erlanger's have just received and priced specially at only $4.95—well worth $8.00.

NEW SHIPMENTS of Felt Hats for Women and Misses' that should sell for $4.00 and $5.00 are being featured at Erlanger's at $2.79. Women should see them before purchasing their new Fall hats. They have others at $3.79 to $6.79.

East Liverpool Men Fortunate

In having at their service a store of the Wm. Erlanger calibre to collect vast assortments of clothing and haberdashery for their consideration.

Months ahead this store is carefully selecting clothing for its patrons — Style, quality and workmanship in every garment is painstakingly inspected that they may come up to the Erlanger standard—Every garment must be of good quality regardless of its proposed selling price. Every Suit, Topcoat or Overcoat that goes out of the Erlanger Store carries a guarantee of perfect satisfaction to the customer — Every man should see them.

New Fall Suits and Overcoats

Now on display at Erlanger's at

Perhaps the best known make they carry is "Hart Schaffner & Marx," however, "Cortley," "Clothcraft" and others may be just as familiar to most men. One and two pants models are both shown in a great variety of Fall's approved fabrics, in patterns and shadings that men and young fellows so much desire. Diversified styles, patterns and colorings are shown also in the Overcoats. Other Suits shown at $16.50 and $19.75.

Topcoats Mostly Box and Tube Styles

With prices ranging at Erlanger's from $19.75 up to $34.50

There is not so much difference in the styles of the topcoats and overcoats—The Topcoat as every one knows is of much lighter weight and provides comfort and style when an overcoat is too heavy and bundlesome. Plain backs, tubes and box effects are the most popular models. "Heidknit" Topcoats tailored of a serviceable stylish knit fabric will be more popular than ever in the new Autumn shades.

"Good morning, Mrs. O'Connor, and is Pat at home?"

"I simply can't understand the combination of my wife's clothes."

"What puzzles you?"

"Well, when she wants to hide anything, she pokes it down her neck, but when she want to get it again, it's always in her stocking."

Men were wearing wide shouldered padded coats and narrow bottom trousers. Women were using two and more hat pins to keep their high, feathered millinery creations balanced on top of their heads. Long hair cleverly done up in a neat knot on top helped to anchor the hats.

Adolph Marks, of Chicago, is credited with being the directing influence in the Thaw case.

The Charles I. Evans trophy at the Country Club links was won by E. M. Knowles by one stroke—E. J. State was runner up.

YOU remember the old camera obscura in which children saw reflected on a central table everything happening within a radius of a quarter of a mile.

The improved camera obscura is the front and inside pages of a modern newspaper. Looking into the mirror today you see:

Several killed, many wounded, accidentally, on the railroad at Bethlehem, Pa.

More killed, purposely, as Moros and Filipinos fight in the Philippines. The Moros are Mohammedans, Filipinos are Christians. Your sympathy should be with the Moros, for Christians are told to turn the other cheek. Mohammed gave no such order.

CARDS' PILOT FACES TRAGEDY ON SERIES EVE IN NEW YORK

St. Louis Star Receives Messages From Bedside.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 29.—Mrs. M. D. Hornsby, mother of Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was in a critical condition at the home of her sister, Mrs. Knox Johnson, here today.

Mrs. Hornsby, who has been an invalid for several years, suffered a relapse Sunday and since then her condition has changed very little, according to attending physicians.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — Roger Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, here to engage the New York Yankees in the world series, today sat at the telephone receiving messages from the bedside of his mother, Mrs. M. D. Hornsby, critically ill at Austin, Tex. Hornsby spent a sleepless night and this morning in a conversation with his aunt in Austin, learned that his mother was not expected to live until nightfall. He was unable to say if he would play in the series, he told International News Service.

Early today Hornsby called his aunt at the bedside of Mrs. Hornsby, on the long distance telephone and his heart was heavy as he quit the line.

"She isn't expected to live through the day," he said a few minutes later. "She's sinking fast, but I have hopes that she may rally."

Then came the moment of tragedy for Hornsby, placed in a dilemma that would tax the courage of strong men anywhere, as he attempted to reach a decision on the possibility of playing in the forthcoming series.

"It was her greatest ambition in life," he said slowly, "to have me play in the world series. She used to pray that we would win and she gave be the encouragement to which I owe

Police today were asked to search for Freeman B. Taylor, 26, potter, formerly of Akron, who has been missing for a year or more.

The request was made by Mrs. W. V. Taylor, his mother, who resides at 1912 West A street, Tampa, Florida, in a letter to Chief McDermott. Mrs. Taylor believes that her son is working in an Ohio pottery.

A brother of Taylor died recently, and the young man is wanted at home, she said. His father is ill at 93 Fulton street, Akron, but hopes to leave for Florida not later than October 20, Mrs. Taylor said in her letter.

110 ROTARIANS ATTEND LADIES' NIGHT PARTY

Steubenville Members Guests at Country Club Dinner.

EDITOR SPEAKS

Musical Selections and Dance are Program Features.

About 110 Rotarians and their wives, including a delegation of 35 from Steubenville, attended the "ladies' night" party given at the Country club last evening. The affair was a return party for the entertainment given local Rotarians at Steubenville a few months ago.

The Jefferson county party came to East Liverpool in one of the new Stream Line interurban cars, "Steubenville," arriving here about 6 o'clock. The car was routed over the Grandview tracks, running to the end of the line.

The speaker at the affair, which took the form of a dinner-dance, was Thurman "Dusty" Miller, editor and humorist of New Wilmington, whose subject was "Sportsmanship." The program was also featured by a musical program in which Mrs. Robert Weinhardt, contralto; Miss Mildred Weaver, soprano, and Miss Jessie Hall, accompanist, took part.

Attorney W. H. Vodrey, who, with R. G. Thomas and Lawrence W. Smith, formed the committee on arrangements, presided. Dr. Colin Kinsey led the chorus singing with Mrs. Danks Cochran as the accompanist.

Steubenville Chorus Number.

A chorus group of 10 Steubenville Rotarians rendered a musical selection of their own composition, after which Attorney Vodrey welcomed the visitors. John Peterson, president of the Steubenville club, responded. Attorney Blaine H. Cochran gave two vocal solos, the first being Joyce Killmer's poem, "Trees," and the encore number, "I'd Climb The Highest

MERCY ANGEL AGAIN APPEALS FOR RELIEF IN TORNADO ZONE

Lisbon Also Seeks Funds for Storm Sufferers.

SURVEY DISTRICT

Property Damage in Rural Sections is $55,000.

The Red Cross today again appealed for financial contributions for the relief of the tornado-swept Stop 47 district, where one life was lost, four persons injured and thousands of dollars property damage caused on Sept. 23.

Approximately $160 has been received by Treasurer W. E. Dunlap, cashier of the First National bank, in local contributions.

In Lisbon, through Charles Costello, $140 has been collected. The Firestone National bank is the depository. Contributions from Salem and other northern towns are expected to increase this sum substantially.

Farm Bureau Survey.

Township farm bureaus and granges have been asked to contribute to the fund.

Property loss in the rural districts is estimated between $55,000 and $60,000 by the county farm bureau at Lisbon. A special committee, consisting of County Farm Agent Floyd Lower, Lisbon; Elva Thompson, Franklin township, and Clyde Freeman, Lisbon, made a thorough survey of Franklin, Wayne, Madison and St. Clair townships, itemizing the damage in each place.

The Columbiana county chapter of the American Red Cross is now engaged in a survey of the storm damage in an effort to determine the amount of relief work which is necessary. This survey is in charge of Lon Boring, of Lisbon, assisted by Sheriff George Wright.

According to the Farm Bureau report, the storm entered Columbiana

Four Hundred Men Fight Way Through Michigan Rock.

BORE NEAR GOAL

Workers Risk Lives in Attempt to Reach Entombed.

By HOWARD G. MAYER

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 29.—"Possibly Friday."

This word predicting the time of rescue of the 43 men buried in the G. Pabst mine here was passed about today as 400 men fought their way through rock and ore in their dramatic race underground against death.

With all four rescue operations well under way those being conducted in the F. Aurora mine promised the most hope for rescue of the men who have been imprisoned on the eighth level of the G. Pabst mine since Friday noon.

Sweating shifts of husky miners poured out of the mouth of the mine every few hours. They reported that they had gone through what they believed was the most difficult cutting they would encounter. Since Monday afternoon they have drilled and blasted hard jasper rock for the most part, but by making a series of cross cuts yesterday a bore through softer ground has been started in the direction of the imprisoned men. This rescue crew, consisting of about 30 men, still was approximately 160 feet from their goal. They were working upward on a 45 degree incline.

Optimistic Reports.

DOZENS OF VILLAGES WIPED OUT; HUNDREDS OF PERSONS ARE DEAD

Principal Parts of Mexican City are Said to be Under Five Feet of Water, Which is Still Rising, as Result of Tropical Hurricane, Accompanied by Tidal Wave.

50 CENTERS OF POPULATION HIT; FOUR STEAMERS REPORTED SUNK

Weather Bureau Fears Second Disturbance, Possibly of Greater Intensity, May Now be Raging Between Vera Cruz, Jalapa and Cordoba —All Telegraph Wires are Down.

By JOHN PAGE.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 29.—With all lines of communication paralyzed and only ominous silence from a hundred square miles of territory in Vera Cruz state laid waste by the tropical hurricane which swept over the region yesterday, the outside world today could only guess at the extent of the damage and the loss of life in the isolated region.

Fragmentary wireless reports received here from Vera Cruz city stated the hurricane was accompanied by a tidal wave. The principal parts of the city were reported under five feet of water, and that still rising.

Fifty smaller centers of population, including Corboda and Jalapa, were struck by the fury of the storm, and dozens of the smaller villages were virtually wiped off the map.

Four steamers in Vera Cruz harbor were reported sunk and their crews lost.

Fear Second Storm.

Althought government officials say it will be impossible to accurately estimate the extent of the storm damage and the loss of life, it is feared that hundreds have perished. Efforts by the American embassy to communicate with the American consulate in Vera Cruz and ascertain whether any American lives were lost have been unsuccessful. The telegraph officer reports all messages to the storm region remain undelivered because all lines are down. Repairmen are at work endeavoring to reestablish contact with the stricken area.

The weather bureau fears that a second hurricane, possibly of greater intensity than that of yesterday, may now be raging between the cities of Vera Cruz, Jalapa and Cordoba.

The storm is the periodical equinoctial disturbance, but of unusually severe nature, known as "Cordonazo San Francisco."

Railroad Tracks Inundated.

A special train left Mexico City last night carrying government officials, engineers of the department of communications, army officers and American and Mexican newspaper correspondents. The train had orders to run eastward as far as possible, and to make every effort to reach the port of Vera Cruz.

The last message coming through over the Western Union lines from Vewa Cruz yesterday said: "A cyclone passed over the city at 11:05 o'clock

WIDOW OF CURT WELCH, WHO WON WORLD SERIES FOR ST. LOUIS IN 1886 BY STEALING HOME, PREDICTS CARDINALS WILL DEFEAT YANKEES

East Liverpool, talking baseball facts and figures along with the rest of the country on the eve of a great world's series between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals, has its National league fans and its American loop sympathizers, but among them all, there is none, perhaps, who is pulling stronger for a St. Louis victory than the widow of Curt Welch, one of the greatest outfielders of all tome and perhaps the nerviest player the game has developed.

As the Mississippi valley rocks in the throes of a celebration that has been unequalled there since 1886, Mrs. Anna Welch recalls the memorable day her husband, an East Liverpool sandlot product, "took a chance" against the advice of coaches and stole home with the run that gave the St. Louis Browns and the Mound City a 4 to 3 victory over the Chicago Nationals and their only world's series championship.

"Will St. Louis win? Well, if Curt were there, I feel sure there wouldn't be any doubt about it. As it is I think the Cardinals have a wonderful chance to beat New York and I certainly hope they do."

Mrs. Welch has had as much, possibly more, baseball experience, than any other woman in the country as a result of her associations during the years her husband devoted to the national pastime. She is now kept busy with the management of an East Sixth street rooming house but still has time to follow casually the fortunes of the various big time clubs.

Her interest in the game is whetted all the more this year as a result of St. Louis' entry into the world's series after a lapse of 38 years, or since 1888 when Curt played his last game with the Browns.

Learned Game Here.

Welch learned the rudiments of the game in this city and took his first step toward undying baseball fame when he signed with the Toledo club in 1883.

He played there for two years and he, together with Tony Mulane and Sam Bartley, obtained his release and Welch joined the St. Louis Browns of the American association.

Right off the reel, and Curt's playing possibly was a great factor, the Browns stepped into the world's series in 1885, playing seven games with the Chicago Nationals.

The Browns won three, Chicago won three and the seventh was tied, no championship being declared.

The next year, however, the Browns battered down all opposition to another American association pennant and again met the Chicago Nationals in the championship series in which Welch enacted the leading role.

The series approached a climax when the Browns had stowed away three conquests and the Chicago Nationals had won two. The Browns needed another one to end it, and the way Welch won that game for the Browns made baseball history.

The game went into the final frame and the score was 3 to 3. The wily Clarkson, shooting over the horsehide from the mound for Chicago that day, had retired two St. Louis batters when Welch grabbed a bat and strode to the plate.

For pure, unadulterated nerve, Curt possessed no equal. He had developed an uncanny knack of getting to first base in the pinches, and at other times as well, it seems, by dent of getting hit with the ball, or hitting the spheroid. To Welch results were everything, regardless of method. He kept opposition hurlers in a frenzy as a result of his ability to pull his elbow up in front of the ball, and, in consequence, operated as lead-off batter.

He was "Hit" by Clarkson.

Welch wanted to get to first base that day and so he was "hit" by Clarkson. A few minutes later he stole second on Clarkson and advanced to third on a scratch single by one of his team mates.

Arlie Latham, third baseman, was next to bat. Coachers at third warned Curt to "play it safe," the Browns' board of strategy apparently banking on Latham for a clean hit.

Welch never waited for that hit. Starting with the first move of Clarkson's arm, Curt was half way down the base line toward the plate as the White Stockings' pitcher let the ball fly and he "hit the dirt" for the winning run as Clarkson's heave went wide.

According to Mrs. Welch, who saw the game, scenes in St. Louis following the conquest, were indescribable, probably something on the order of the triumphant celebration that was staged there when the Cards breezed to the wire ahead of the Reds a few days ago, only on a larger scale.

The entire St. Louis club was placed "on exhibition," literally not figuratively, that night in Exposition hall, at St. Louis, and the only way they could get Curt there was with a policeman and the "wagon."

Welch was of a different nature and naturally avoided, in any way possible, accepting the adulations of admiring throngs with which he was constantly beset as a result of his baseball prowess. He was not a "grand stand' player in any sense of the word, and he certainly did object to taking part in the exhibition that night in Exposition hall.

Showered With Money.

As a means of getting away, Welch, together with Mike Kelly, of the Chicago club, went over the river that night to see a prize fight in East St. Louis. There would be no celebration as far as he was concerned.

But Curt's plans were foiled. Club officials hired a couple of policemen and sent after Welch. Protesting Curt returned to Exposition hall and lined up with the rest of the club.

"The amount of money that Curt received that night," declares Mrs.

GORE SPEAKS AT LABOR MEETING

Governor Howard Gore, addressing the annual convention of the West Virginia State Federation of Labor at Morgantown, declared that the greatest prosperity that can offer itself to American labor is a "prosperous and profitable American agriculture," which in turn would give labor's commodities a broader and more constant outlet. The farmers of America, he asserted, are the greatest purchasers of goods and labor's maintenance of good wages and steady employment is directly proportionate to the farmer's buying power.

The executive declared that the only effective leadership for American labor was that which understood the other business activities of the country and the factors and problems that entered into other lines of activity. He made a plea for closer co-operation between the farmers and labor for the development of that leadership.

Discussing executive problems affecting labor, Governor Gore told the delegates he was not satisfied with the present operation of the workmen's compensation law and declared he was doing all in his power to make relief for disabled workers and their dependents more adequate and more quickly available. He asked full support of the labor group for the program of good roads and declared that the economy of improved highways for motor vehicles alone would release several million dollars a year for better wages in industry.

Wind Mills' Passing Mourned.

Progress is causing some pangs in Holland, where for years the wind mills were closely tied up to the happiness and customs of the people. These mills are steadily passing out of the picture because they are either being electrified or torn down completely. The Dutch miller has always given his mill a name. It never has been just "the mill." With a happy event such as a marriage of his daughter, the mill was gaily decorated, which will not be likely under the new regime. If the owner died, twenty boards in the arm of the mill were removed.

Ivory Statuette of Venus of Glacial Period Discovered

VIENNA.—Professor Josef Bayer, director of the pre-historic department in the State Natural History Museum, has found an ivory statuette of Venus, dating back to the glacial period.

The find was made at Wullendorf in the Wachau (a sequested defile noted for its scenery and legends) on the Danube, where the Professor found a similar figure in limestone in 1908.

The new Venus is carved from the tuck of the lower jaw of a mammoth, whose remains were discovered close by. A massive chisel of jasper was discovered near the spot.

The new statuette, which is about 10 in., in believed to be the largest belonging to the glacial school yet found. It is probably between 20,000 and 25,000 years old, and is in good preservation owing to the protection afforded to it by the deposit of loam and quartz.

The famous Venus de Milo was found by a peasant in the island of Melos, or Milo, in 1820 and sold to the French Government for $1,200.

PENNSY TRAINS ARE RE-ROUTED

Panhandle division trains of the Pennsylvania railroad are being "detoured" over the Cleveland & Pittsburgh division today as Pennsylvania railroad workmen swing the last span of the new Ohio river bridge at Steubenville into place today. It is estimated that approximately 10 hours will be required to complete the operation.

The Panhandle trains are being switched on to the C. & P. division from Mingo Junction, going through Wellsville, East Liverpool and Rochester; thence to Pittsburgh.

RUSH SEWER REPAIR WORK

Rain Storm Damage is Worst in City's History.

Facing the most difficult and troublesome municipal repair job in the history of the city, a large crew of workmen, under the direction of Mayor W. L. Fogo and Safey-Service Director George P. Ashley is "carrying on" in the western, storm-swept section of the city that has been partially inundated, for days at a stretch, on at least three different occasions in the past two months.

"Without doubt, it is the worst repair job the city has had to tackle in its entire history," declared Mayor W. L. Fogo today as he outlined the tasks that must be completed before final evidences of the storms are erased from view.

There has been a large crew of men at work, chiefly in the district through which the McQueen's Run hollow sewer runs, for six weeks. Repairs had progressed rapidly and the end was in sight last week when the third, and probably, the worst of the rain storms, swept the city and six weeks' work went for naught.

The sewer from Eighteenth street to Crawford avenue, above Buckeye avenue, is in bad shape and in need of repair work.

A break also was discovered in the McQueen's Run Hollow sewer in Clark avenue, between Aten avenue and Henry avenue, beneath the Leyda property. The water broke through near the bottom of the sewer and drained out portions of the yard in the Leyda home. Three days were required there to clean up the rock and debris washed out over the street car tracks.

Fifteen feet of five-foot sewer were washed away at Twenty-second street, as well as portions of the street and curbing along Clark avenue.

There is also a bad condition in Tenth street at the "Y" connection from the Trotters' hill district sewer into the trunk sewer, the feeder line being clogged up.

Similar conditions exisit in the territory between Fourteenth and Fifteenth street, a large amount of dirt and gravel having been washed out on Fourteenth.

A slip in the Lisbon road, just within the city limits, looms as a possible menace to traffic. Warning lights are kept on the slip by the city until an opportunity is presented to clean it up.

The city is now building another breaker in McQueen's Run Hollow, rails having been donated for the purpose by the street car company.

"If rocks, logs and other debris can be kept out of the sewer, it will carry away water under practically any conditions," asserts Mayor Fogo.

This sewer, which presents the chief trouble at the present time, is packed tight in places by heavy rock and timber and in other places is open. It is in good condition at the river, says Mayor Fogo, the river's high stages having failed to hamper its operation to any extent.

Portions of Twentieth street have been washed down. Cellars have been flooded, foundations under porches washed away, and lawns washed out.

Repair work can't be completed before cold weather sets in in earnest, in Mayor Fogo's opinion, bceause of the great extent of work, but repairs, he said, will be rushed as rapidly as is physically possible. The crew worked yesterday in a drizzling rain and will get in every day possible from now on.

Oklahoma Man, 101, Visiting Best Girl In Kentucky, 104

WILLIAMS, Okla.—Gustavius H. Namon of this city is 101 years old—but not too old to retain an interest in his girl friends.

In fact, Mr. Namon is now on the way to Kentucky for a visit with his "best girl," who is 104. He sees and hears well, and claims the honor of being the second oldest Mason in the United States.

"Work hard and don't worry" is his answer to those who would live long.

"I've never seen a moving picture," he said. "It's a shame to pay for entertainment when there are so many good shows out on the street." And as a group of young girls passed by, dressed in ultra-modern fashion, the centenarian waved a languid hand.

"Just look," he said.

Buying On Time

Many have been the warnings of the dangers of buying on time. It is interesting to hear another view. Mr. E. G. Vogel of the Commercial Investment Trust Co., says in the Investment Review issued by Dillon Read and Co., that installment buying is helping to promote prosperity.

"The soundness of installment payment financing as an American institution is evidenced in the fact that a corporation such as the Commercial Investment Trust Co., has never had a losing year and that its profits in each of its eighteen years have shown an increase over the year previous. Even the financial public does not yet realize the service the soundly managed financing company is performing for American prosperity.

"The country might have gone into severe depression in -920-21 if it had not been for the great prosperity of the motor industry. The financing company helped make this possible. It kept the motor car manufacturer in cash through the financing of the dealer and brought the automobile within the reach of a huge new public. Therefore the financing company is constantly relieving what would otherwise be a great strain on the country's financial system, and, in eliminating loans of millions from banks to large industries, reduces risks to a few hundred dollars."

This is, of course, a professional view, coming from an agency which make a business of financing installment buying. The ordinary citizen, however, can see its reasonableness. He can see, also, the fact that the habit of installment buying to some extent stablizies purchases. It necessitates a certain amount of budgeting. The necessity of meeting payments often forces carefree young people to take thought about their finances as spread over a long period.

They adjust their living to meet the payments. When the washing machine is paid for, the same paying power is available for the ironer or the radio. Little by little the paying power increases, and is devoted to ever better and more lasting things. Buyers learn to discriminate, and soon stop paying for dead horses in favor of live houses.

The warnings are necessary no doubt. But installment buying is quite plainly here to stay, and its cheerful side is also important.

Northwestern Cold

Florida's troubles are very great, but at least she has reasonable weather in which to clear away her debris and begin her reconstruction. The great northwest must suffer its snows and frosts and the ruin of its crops and look on, helpless. This season's grain can have no reconstruction.

The whole country seems to be suffering, this year, from unusual weather of some sort.

Fortunate it is that America has never lost her pioneering courage.

Russia's Hydro

The fact that an American syndicate is willing to spend $55,000,000 on water-electric power on the Dnieper river is of almost untold importance not only to Russia and to America but to the whole world.

The powers of some of the eastern countries seem definitely on the wane, their best having come and gone ages ago, though they may see much new and good yet. But Russia is a child with its growth and life all before it.

When one considers what electric power has done for America, in the way of industrial and cultural development, the possibilities afforded by a great hydro development for Russia make one gasp. Light to work by, light to read by, power to make wheels go around, releasing human energy from sodden drudgery to skilled labor—that is the prospect in store for Russia. The old folks may resist the new things, may never understand what is going on. But their children will take the new power as a matter of course, build their lives on it, grow, think, find happiness.

Says the New York World: "To bring the Russian people into contact with the rest of the world through the medium of an expanding commerce will prove the most effective antidote to the fantastic teachings of the Bolshevist leaders." And as a matter of fact, the extreme teachings of bolshevism have already given way before the needs of commerce. The government is settling down into a surprising stability.

If this American hydro project goes through, it means an enormous gain in all directions for Russia. And it means that there will be more and more American engineering projects there with their accompanying benefits.

More than all else it means the awakening of the peasant to the modern world.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The Bowery continues to unroll its panorama of high lights and shadows. In the early morning are the blowzy groups that clot about the labor agencies where chalked bulletins herald jobs as track laborers, dish washers, porters and the like.

The restaurants with the fare frosted on windows offer such hardy breakfasts as steak, potatoes, coffee and pie for 20 cents. And there are the two-cent coffee and bun stands which draw the collection of matutinal misfits.

Near Dunne street was a woman with bedraggled skirt and discolored eye in an alcoholic haze haranguing an imaginary foe while early workers merely glanced and walked on. The Bowery is used to early morning wrecks with bloodshot glares.

The cheap lodging houses disgorge their sluggish patrons who must make way for the day sleep of night workers. The hallways smell of gas and stale pipe smoke and lead up to grim catacombs where dispirited men try to banish reality in dreams.

But the Bowery is not all sordid and squalid. There are department stores as brisk and showy as those uptown. There are resplendent banks—one is among the richest in the world. There are beauty and manicure parlors and garish restaurants.

There is a pawn broker who rides to work in a carriage, carries a gold-headed cane and wears a silk hat. There are well dressed young ladies whose smile of indulgent disdain is not far removed from their sisters of Fifth avenue.

Yet the overtone of poverty is there—as pronounced as zebra stripes. The old men and old women, like decrepid alley cats, prowl about, hunting ferret-like for something they seem to know they will never find. It is old age penury at its worst..

Those vibrant young girls seen lunching daily with the foxy type of old men play difficult roles well. They hang on every word and put so much vitality into their glances and smiles that they are deserving of the rewards—whatever they may be.

Somehow the aging Romeos who have divorced their wives, moved to the club and tuned up for a new pace do not appear to get so much fun out of the adventure as they possibly imagined. They are conscious that most of their friendships are for a price. I once heard a Lorelei complain petulantly to her aged escort shortly after midnight: "I have spent the evening with you and all I got out of it is a wilted orchid and a hiccough.

These romantic attachments usually wind up with "you ain't done right by our Nell" climax and the antiquarian discoveres this baby talk has jolted him out of a sizeable check. But boys will be boys—and a new crop toddles along every season.

A theatrical producer tells of a time when he touched financial shoals and got backing from a 65-year-old gentleman. It was stipulated in the agreement that the most beautiful of the girls would be willing to lunch with him when he desired. He was a harmless duffer who merely enjoyed the reflected glory of a stage beauty.

A milliner intimates those scoopy hats were so popular this summer that next year they will get even larger. It should be a big year for the tent makers. And a bad year for revolving doors.

THE DIFFERENCE THAT MONEY MADE

In the old boom days at Virginia City James Fair, the famous Silver magnate, was sitting one day in a barroom. It will be recalled that Mr. Fair, despite his lack of book-learning, amassed a great many millions of dollars and became a leader in several lines of endeavor.

As he sat there the bar-keeper, who was writing a letter, called out to him, asking how to spell the word 'bird."

"B-U-R-D," answered Mr. Fair.

"That's the way I thought it was," said the letter-writer.

An educated gambler who had overheard this conversation bided his time. On the following day, finding Mr. Fair in company of a group of mining-men, the gambler offered to bet him a hundred dollars that he could not correctly spell the word bird.

"B-I-R-D," said Mr. Fair, reaching for the stakes.

"My Lord!" exclaimed the loser, "You didn't spell it that way yesterday."

"Son," answered Mr. Fair softly, 'there wasn't any money up on it yesterday."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Rabbit Industry.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—If a single city of the United States that had less than 600,000 population according to the last decennial census affords a market for more than $1,000,000 worth of dressed rabbit meat in a year; if the country imports more than 100,000,000 rabbit pelts a year, the supply of domestic pelts being only about two per cent of our requirements, and if rabbits begin to breed at the age of six or eight months and breed six or eight times a year, producing litters that average from six to ten, what are the possibilities of the rabbit-growing industry?

As a further factor in working out the answer to this problem it may be stated that it costs the grower 30 cents to bring a rabbit to a marketable weight of four pounds, and that he will receive for it 18 to 20 cents a pound, live weight. On this basis the grower's margin is from 45 to 50 cents a head over the cost of production.

Obviously the answer is that the industry has a great future and that it is certain to show an amazing expansion and development within the next few years.

At any rate, it is an industry of sufficient importance and promise to engage the attention of the United States department of agriculture, which has assigned biologists to keep track of its development and is issuing propaganda on how the rabbit propagates and what human beings may realize out of this animal's propensity to multiply more rapidly than an adding machine adds.

Rabbits have been bred for food and fur in this country for many years, says a recent departmental statement, and both wild and domestic varieties have had a place on the American table, but their importance has been minor and seasonal. In the last few years, however, on the Pacific Coast, particularly in southern California, the production of domestic rabbits has become an industry of consequence, and it is growing with such leaps and bounds that no one can say people have 100 to 200 breeders, some country over.

Demand Ahead of Supply.

In the Los Angeles and San Diego districts of California, rabbits are produced in very large numbers. Some people have 100 to 200 breders, some only half a dozen, and others keep from 500 to 5,000, according to this government authority. Almost everybody in the rural districts there has at least a few.

There are now three slaughter houses in the Los Angeles district that kill, dress, and market from 25,000 to 35,000 rabbits a month, and the demand still keeps ahead of the supply. Hotels and restaurants serve rabbits along with other meats, and the people use large quantities on the home table.

Los Angeles is the city with a population of less than 600,000 according to the last federal census that consumed more than a million dollars' worth of rabbit meat last year. However, the population of the city has increased rapidly since 1920—local enthusiasts claim that it has doubled—and this may in a degree explain the great growth in the demand for rabbit meat. But credit Los Angeles with a population of at least 1,000,000 and it is seen that there is a potential market in the United States for more than $100,000,000 worth of rabbit meat a year.

This is not taking into account the possibilities of rabbit fur. The pelts are a by-product, but very important, says the official bulletin. Felt hats are made out of rabbit fur. Gloves are lined with it. Garments are trimmed with it. The pelts are stretched, dried, and shipped to the raw-fur buyers in New York City. This country imports annually more than 100,000,000 rabbit pelts from Australia, New Zealand, France, Belgium and England. Most of them come from Australia and New Zealand, from wild rabbits. The supply of domestic pelts, it may be repeated, now amounts to but two percent of our requirements.

There are some 20 standard breeds of domestic rabbits, it is stated, but the western breeders now confine their operations mainly to four—New Zealand Reds, New Zealand Whites, American Blues, and Chinchillas. The first three mentioned are generally considered best from a meat standpoint, as they are prolific breeders, mature rapidly, and dress out economically. The Chinchilla yields a smaller carcass, but an extra-fine pelt.

The young rabbit is marketed as a fryer at eight weeks old, when it weighs on an average about four pounds. For the first four weeks it receives no other food than the doe's milk. Then for the last four weeks it is fed on a ration of whole oats, crushed barley, and alfalfa hay. Very little green food is fed. The producer sells direct to the slaughter houses which operate large trucks which call at the rabbitries regularly each week. The dressed rabbits are sold to meat markets, clubs, hotels and restaurants, and the retail price is from 45 to 50 cents a pound.

The Department's Activities.

The department of agriculture, through the bureau of Biological Survey, is doing what it can to promote this growing rabbit industry, says the departmental official record. Experiments in rabbit production are being conducted with various breeds on its experimental fur farm at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. The bureau is coopperating with the National Rabbit Federation in general extension and experimental work and with the Rabbit Breeders' Exchange in the grading and sale of rabbit skins in order

BOOK THREE—VI.

His determination to shield Brad never wavered. But a little instinct for self-preservation made him say, "As for that, you can tell Ken Kennedy—or I'll tell him myself—that Eunice telephoned me that night to tell me Brad was missing, and to ask me to try to find him. He had said he'd be back at nine, and at one he hadn't come, and she was scared. That's why I went over there. I was going out to look for him, but he came in just a few minutes after I got there.

"Where had he been?" Bones interrogated.

This required a lie. "I don't know, he didn't say. He'd had engine trouble somewhere—that was what made him so late."

"Well," Bones said drearily, "you ought to talk to the boys about it. You ought to stick up for yourself. This damn talk that's going around—there's no sense to it—and it would only take a few words from you to set it straight, with the fraternity at least. They don't want to think the things they're thinking, Jock! If you only knew why Brad did it, some logical reason that would let you out—but you don't, do you?" His voice was pleading.

"No," said Jock, looking him straight in the eyes. "No, I haven't [illegible] idea."

Following this conversation, he considered having a talk with Ken Kennedy and some of the boys. But in the end he decided against it. "I can't tell 'em the truth," he reflected, "and anything else wouldn't do any good. Hell, let 'em think what they want to."

Still, he felt somewhat bitter. "Brothers." There was irony in that term now. The pledges they took to stand by one another, and then when something like this happened they were as quick as any outsider to lose faith! . . . He assured himself he didn't care what they thought, but in reality he cared tremendously; he cared so much that at times he was sorely tempted to tell them the truth about Brad and show them the letter. An impish voice in his ear would whisper, "Brad's dead. It wouldn't hurt him. It can hurt you. It's hurting you now. You've got your life to live. Go ahead and tell them, you fool." . . .

But week succeeded dragging week, and he did not.

VII.

The Zeta Kappa staircase was so constructed that any one descending came into sight piece by piece, like a sectional postcard opened lengthwise. At noontime of a mild spring-like day in late February Jock Hamill's feet appeared at the top of these stairs and proceeded to bring the rest of him slowly down. Handsome legs in golf stockings of a blue-and-gray diamond pattern. Knickers, voluminous and drooping low. Coat that matched the knickers, bisected by an oblong of white linen shirt. Surmounting this oblong, a soft collar with a neat bow tie. And finally, the sculptured brunette head that made all young women and some old ones catch their breaths a little.

At the foot of the stairs the head ducked forward in an attitude of listening, and Jock stood still. A medley of excited voices drifted to him from the living room.

". . . . If that's not hot I'm crazy!" . . . Yes, and look at the bus, will you? She must be Mrs. Rolls Royce" . . . "Say, they're stopping here!" "Probably got the wrong place, no luck, boys, no luck" . . . "Well, don't tell her if she has. Let's kill the fatted calf and have her in" . . .

Upon entering the room whence emanated these peculiar comments, Jock perceived a group of his mates struggling for points of vantage at the front windows. He joined them.

A monstrous limousine, painted creamy white and agleam with polished nickel, was drawn up at the curb outside. A chauffeur in uniform presided at the wheel, and in the tonneau, like a glittering jewel in a showcase, sat Yvonne. She was leaning forward, looking inquiringly at the house, and she wore garments that matched her equipage . . . a white wrap of ermine, and a white toque against which her hair flamed conspicuous as blood on snow . . .

These things Jock noted in the fraction of a second. Another second, and he was yanking the front door open, taking the porch steps in one jump, crossing the sidewalk. "Yvonne!"

For a while that was all he could say; her name, over and over again. So many words beat at his lips at once, and impeded each other, and locked each other in. "Yvonne!" . . . He took both her white-gloved hands and held them in a grip that must have hurt her. He devoured her with his eyes. "Oh, Yvonne—"

She smiled at him, that remembered smile that carved a long, dreamy dimple deep in one cheek. "You didn't forget me, Jock Hamill?" And presently she laughed aloud and said, "Why don't you say something?"

"I can't," Jock told her. "I'm too crazy-happy. I just want to look at you—"

Then questions came in a swift stream. When had she returned to New York? Why hadn't she let him know? How did she happen to be here? . . .

"Day before yesterday," she retorted. "And I thought, instead of letting you know, I'd drive down here and see for myself whether or not you still cared about knowing—"

"You're finding out, all right!"

"Um-hum. You are glad to see me, aren't you?"

"Well—roughly speaking!" he almost shouted.

Her great gray eyes wandered past him then, to the Zeta Kappa facade. "I don't think I ever beheld quite so many heads," she observed.

Jock turned. The windows were indeed full of heads, still staring with unashamed interest. As he looked, the heads bobbed and grinned, and one youth lifted his right hand, clasped it with his left, and shook it vigorously in token of wholehearted approbation. It came to Jock that they had not shown him such friendly attention for weeks. "Look!" he said. "Right now I'm the most popular man in the fraternity, because I'm the only one who knows you." Pride swelled in him, and he tugged at Yvonne's little hand. "Come on, darling—come in a minute and let me introduce them."

"Mountain to Mohammed?" began Yvonne. But something about Jock's face made her yield. She got out of the limousine and stood, straight and slim and dazzling, on the pavement. "You just want to parade me," she accused, dimpling up at him, "like a little trick puppy on a leash!"

"You bet your sweet life I do!" he admitted joyously. "I want to walk in there with a 'yah-see-what-I-found' look in my eye, and watch you mow 'em down like—say, what are you laughing at, woman?"

"You. You're so adorably naive."

"You mean I'm so idiotically in love—"

Do Your Gums Bleed and Recede from the Teeth?

Tender, sore or bleeding gums, or gums fissured or receding from the teeth, indicate DEADLY PYORRHEA—the teeth's worst enemy. The disease first attacks the gums, later the tooth structure. As the gums recede from the teeth, pus pockets are formed, in which toxic poisons develop to be absorbed by the system and become the possible sources of other dangerous diseases. Don't let Pyorrhea endanger your health. The ravages of this terrible disease can be stopped, the gums healed and the poison the system has been absorbing checked, by the use of VINCENT'S PYORRHEA TREATMENT. For further particulars write,

"THE ARABIAN" IS STAGE HIT

Walker Whiteside and Cast Delight Ceramic Audience.

Walker Whiteside, the inimitable portrayer of Grandee Oriental roles, came and conquered East Liverpool last night in the modern comedy romance, "The Arabian," in which he enacted the dominant character of Abd el Rey, famous bandit of the Egyptian desert.

Capably assisted by Miss Sydney Shields, whose delineation of the character of Diane won the plaudits of her audience, Whiteside was forced to respond to many curtain calls during the three-act presentation at the Ceramic theatre.

A large crowd witnessed the production, and it is a safe wager that a sell-out would have resulted had "The Arabian" remained for a second day. Critics were a unit in declaring it the supreme dramatic event of the season, and it was evident why Whiteside's latest success ran for months at the Studebaker theatre in Chicago.

Coming from Pittsburgh, where "The Arabian" played a week's engagement to crowded houses at the Alvin, the company stopped here on a trans-continental tour that will keep them busy until next May. After a swing through Ohio, Kentucky and the west, Whiteside and his supporting cast will go to the Pacific coast, where engagements have been booked in Los Angeles, San Francisco and other cities.

"The Arabian" is a story of London, Cairo and the Egyptian desert. It is a thrilling one of high adventure, soul-stirring romance and scintillating wit and humor, dealing with the banditry of Abd el Rey, whose brigandage in the Egyptian desert so arouses the London war office that an armed expedition is sent into his lair to kill or capture him.

It is a play superbly handled by Whiteside and Miss Shields and coworkers, and is well worth seeing.

FLAG RIVALS ARE KEPT IDLE

More Rain Forecast as Cards-Yanks, Try to Practice.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — With a steady drizzle falling this morning and "occasional rains" predicted by the weather bureau for this afternoon, early indications were that the Yankees and the Cardinals would be unable to practice today at Yankee stadium. The players were idle yesterday because of rain and cold.

The Cardinals are anxious to take as many workouts as possible before the world series opens here Saturday, as they realize the necessity of familiarizing themselves with the Yankees' playing field.

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cardinals, received a telegram from St. Louis that 150 Mound City rooters will arrive here Saturday on a special train. Meanwhile applications for series tickets continue to pour in at the Yankee offices here. Indications are that the games here will be a "sell-out."

Any chance to break attendance records on the coming series faded with the decision of Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, not to construct temporary bleachers on the playing field at Sportsman's park. This means that the capacity of the St. Louis park will be cut from a possible 40,000 to about 35,000.

WHEN you own any one of the nineteen new Chandler models you can tell the world you've got an automobile—a car you can match against anything on wheels within a mile of the price!

It's smarter. More distinctive—utterly and delightfully different. Stylishly different in design. Briskly different in traffic. Powerfully different on hills. Whisperingly different under the hood.

Different in many other ways, too. Instead of lubricating the car with a grease gun or an oil can, you simply press your heel on the plunger of the car's "One Shot" centralized lubrication system! And instead of changing oil in the crankcase every 500 miles, only a few changes a year are necessary—because of Chandler's inherent engine design, because of an oil purifier, because of an air cleaner!

start too late

Among the people you see today, four out of five past forty (and many younger) are victims of Pyorrhea—simply because they started too late to protect teeth and gums.

Pyorrhea starts with tender, bleeding gums. Unchecked, it undermines youth and health and often results in loss of teeth, neuritis, ulcers, rheumatism or other serious diseases.

But have no fear. If you start in time, you can prevent or check the inroads of Pyorrhea. See your dentist at least twice a year. And start using Forhan's for the Gums.

This dentifrice prevents Pyorrhea or checks it. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S., a recognized specialist in Pyorrhea.

Forhan's firms the gums, keeps them healthy. It protects teeth from decay-breeding acids and keeps them white.

Don't gamble with health! Start the Forhan morning-and-night habit, now. Teach your children to use it, too, as health-insurance. Play safe. Get a tube today. At all druggists', 35c and 60c.

SAFETY FIRST DRIVE OPENS

Railroad Representatives Speak in City Schools.

Co-operating with city and school officials, representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad have launched a safety first campaign among the East Liverpool school children.

A group of speakers includes Captain Worthington, Cleveland, head of the Pennsylvania railroad detective force; Douglas Leyda, Wellsville, railroad detective; Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, Superintendent of Schools C. S. McVay and Probation Officer John McShane.

The East End schools were visited yesterday and today the speakers are completing their rounds in the down town districts. The dangers of riding on freight trains and playing about the railroad right of way are being stressed.

A large poster in colors, entitled "Too Much to Pay for a Little Sport," is being left in each school room. The safety section of the American Railway association by this plan hopes to reduce railroad accidents by at least 35 percent by the end of 1930.

Robber Frustrated In Attempt to Rob Dr. Frost's Home

An unsuccessful attempt to rob the Dr. A. C. Frost home, St. Clair avenue, was made Monday night, it developed today.

Mrs. Frost, who had been on the second floor of the house, came down stairs about 8:30 o'clock, switching on the lights as she reached the bottom of the stairs. She opened the front door and as she did so an unidentified man leaped from the porch roof to the ground. He ran down St. Clair avenue in the direction of Gardendale.

Widow Favors St. Louis

Welch, "is almost unbelievable. Gifts from his friends and scores of others who had profited financially from the Browns' victory poured into Curt's hands and pockets. One sportsman, said Mrs. Welch who had won several thousand dollars on the series, "tipped" Curt to the extent of approximately $900.

Financial gifts from his well wishers in these halcyon days of baseball, however, were no novelty to the East Liverpool man. His daring and genuine ability won him countless purses and gifts of other nature throughout the season.

Curt was employed in those days by Chris Von Der Ahe, received an annual salary that might be considered substantial even in this era of baseball. But Von Der Ahe, says Mrs. Welch, was a considerate manager and always took care of his players.

Von Der Ahe, himself, had been making a living as a butcher before his entry into baseball. He saved his money and eventually bought his way into the ownership of the Browns and amassed a sizeable fortune.

Objected to "High Hat" Role.

It was a hobby of his to keep his team spic and span, whether in uniform or not, and to this end, he personally purchased two suits of civilian clothes each year for every member of his club, all of the suits being alike. To this outfit was added a high silk hat, and in this regalia the Browns usually made the principal streets of the town in which they played before the game.

Curt was a handsome chap and could have enacted the "high hat" role with all the eclat of a Chesterfield, but an innate modesty and a nature that shrank from ostentatious show, made him rebel on every occasion that the silk chapeaus came into use.

Curt was a member of the St. Louis team until 1889, playing along with Tip O'Neill and Nichol in the outgarden, and covering most of the territory of the other two; Latham, third base; Bushong, catcher; Comiskey, first base; Gleason, shortstop; Barclay, second; Robinson, catcher, and Pitchers Foutz, Caruthers and McGinnis.

Leaving St. Louis he went to Philadelphia where he played for four years, going to Baltimore on a five-year contract. He became ill while playing at Baltimore and baseball ultimately lost one of its greatest heroes.

Curt's baseball days may have been shortened somewhat by his daring on the diamond, says Mrs. Welch, who frequently saw him risk life and limb in a slide down the base paths. Welch also was the victim of a "bean ball" in the closing days of his career. He was struck one afternoon in Baltimore below the jaw and he was carried off the field to Johns Hopkins hospital.

Curt lay on a hospital cot for two months or more. He was unable to speak for six weeks as a result of the blow.

But "Irish," as he was sometimes called, even though he was not Irish, left the game with a baseball reputation that probably has not been surpassed.

So Mrs. Welch, with a memory of other baseball days that cannot be erased by time, is pulling for St. Louis to beat those Yanks and win the championship.

Hornsby's Mother Dying

much of what I've done. Her interest in the series was real, not pretended because I am her son, but genuine.

Will Reach Decision Tonight.

After having spent the morning in touch by long distance with his mother's home, Hornsby, through Clarence Lloyd, secretary of the Cardinals, announced that he would reach a decision on his course by 5 o'clock this afternoon.

In the event he decides to go to his mother's bedside, he will take the 6 p. m. train for Austin, arriving there late Saturday. That will make it necessary for him to miss the two opening games of the series here, but in that event he expects to be able to rejoin the team in time for at least two of the games in St. Louis.

If Mrs. Hornsby should die and Hornsby remains for the series, as she has wished, the funeral will not be held until after the series is over and he can go to Austin, Lloyd announced.

The St. Louis club will work out this afternoon at the Yankee stadium, but Hornsby is not expected to take part in the practice. He is remaining close to his room.

Mother Wishes Him to Play.

"This morning my aunt told me that the last thing mother told her was that I must play in the series, come what may. She is five days away. If I thought I could reach her, it would be different. But I am afraid I can't. And even if I did, I know what her first words would be, if she could talk. She would want to know why I hadn't stayed here and played the game out."

The victory of the St. Louis club in that city. It was the climax of the sensational career of Hornsby, one was the first in 38 years of baseball of the greatest players of his time, and marked the culmination of two years of effort as a manager as well as the ambition of his lifetime. For that reason, he attempted to explain today, and because his mother's interest in recent years had been wholly wrapped up in his success, yet was left facing the problem of her wishes and the prompting of his own mind as he approached the apex of his baseball career.

STREET, BRIDGE REPAIR VOTED

Gasoline Tax Will Pay for Gardendale Job.

An emergency ordinance authorizing Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore to repair a bridge on De Bee street leading to Gardendale, was enacted last night at a special meeting of council. The structure was weakened by recent heavy rains.

An ordinance calling for the transfer of $1,500 for the work was tabled after the service-safety director informed the solons that money from the gas tax fund would take care of the cost.

Delegation of property owners from the Oakland section of East End urged that some action be taken relative to the situation caused by water flooding their cellars.

It was pointed out that a sewer in the district was unable to take care of the water in the recent storm which flooded every cellar from Green's store to Dry Run.

Council as a whole will view the premises tonight.

this morning. Our office was not damaged, but we lost our power."

An official railroad message said the tracks in the city along the water front were under five feet of water, and that those in the outskirts of the city were under two feet of water.

The hurricane was reported traveling in a northerly direction.

The storm raged about Vera Cruz City for two hours, the wind reaching a velocity of a hundred miles an hour. Then it swept westward through central Vera Cruz state to the border of the state of Puebla, destroying all buildings of lighter construction. It left the city of Vera Cruz without light or power.

Three solos were rendered by Mrs. Weinhardt, with Miss Weaver at the piano. Miss Weaver then gave three solos, Miss Hall being her accompanist.

Mr. Miller entertained his audience for nearly an hour, his witty stories keeping the crowd in continuous laughter. At the close of his talk, Mrs. Weinhardt and Miss Weaver pleased with three duet numbers, with Miss Hall at the piano.

After the ball room had been cleared the dance program, with Sayre's Premier Syncopators playing, was featured.

Edgar C. Bower, J. Calvin Cope, George M. Crawford, J. R. Elkin, Emmett Edwin, Allen Fisher, G. A. Gescheilder, Guy Jacobs, Joseph Kline, William MacPherson, Earl McFadden, Charles B. McGowan, J. E. omens at present are unfavorable."

He fears the United States would not come to the aid of England in war, "unless Great Britain were invaded by a black army."

As for the "black army"—this country cannot guess where it would come from, or why the United States should be excited about it.

A few flying machines would take care of any army—black, white, yellow or red.

IN Oklahoma they complain that murderers are not convicted, because dead bodies cannot talk. The murderer is there to tell how many children he has, how excited and irresponsible he was when he did the killing. The corpse is silent.

THE real trouble is that the prosecuting attorneys, not the dead bodies, lack the right kind of speech. Caesar's dead body spoke loudly enough. Every wound was an eloquent mouth, with the right man for prosecutor.

COUNTY ATTORNEY KIRKPATRICK of Tulsa will try the Julius Caesar experience the next time there is a murder.

He will bring the dead body into court, make the jury look at it and give the dead man a hearing.

The lawyer for the defense will probably object that such conduct is calculated to injure his client. Murderers are very sensitive.

MR. SMITH, Republican candidate for the senate in Illinois, says the Volstead law has nothing to do with the campaign. And also Mr. Brennan, his Democratic opponent, couldn't do anything about prohibition, if he were elected.

Mr. Smith, who thinks the constitution, not the laws, must be changed, is mistaken. The prohibition amendment is as wide as several barn doors. Should congress decide to drive a light wine and beer wagon through the opening there would be room enough.

Beaver Valley Pictorial Car Goes To Cleveland Exhibit

Passes Through City on Way to American Electric Railway Association Convention.

An specially painted car of the Beaver Valley Traction company, enroute to the American Electric Railway Association convention at Cleveland, passed through East Liverpool at 6:30 o'clock this morning. It was routed over the Y. & O. tracks at the Diamond, to Salem, thence by Stark Electric to Ravenna and the Northern Ohio Traction road to lines of the Cleveland City railway.

The car bears a number of paintings of reproduction of products made in the factories of the Beaver Valley and others symbolic of industry in general. It is to be exhibited next week at Cleveland.

It will be displayed at the city auditorium, and is being sent to the convention at the invitation of Col. J. H. Alexander, of the Cleveland railways and the invitation of Lucius Storrs, managing director of the American Electric Railway association.

The car left the Beaver Valley yesterday. Prior to its departure it was necessary to change the trucks to the local gauge of tracks and it was quartered in the car barns of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company, East End, last night. It is manned by its own crew, but a courtesy crew having the actual operation is to be furnished by each traction line over which it must pass on its way to Cleveland.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Stock prices moved within a narrow radius in early trading today. A better tone was exhibited by railroad and equipment stocks, as also by the coppers and the public utilities; but the prospect of a temporary tightening of the credit situation over the balance of the week put a damper on new forward moves in the market favorites.

Special weakness in Sinclair Oil, which dipped to the year's lowest price of 19⅛, followed announcement that the federal circuit court had reversed the lower courts in the famous Teapot Dome oil lease case. The stock has been under pressure for a week or more and its weakness has been conspicuous. Most of the independent oil shares sold lower on reports of pending slashes in prices of crude oil and gasoline.

A recovery of about a dollar a bale marked the early trading in the cotton market.

MIDLAND MILL WORKER SHOT

Dennis Cadoza in Rochester Hospital; Suspect Held.

Denis Cadoza, 25-year-old Midland mill worker, is in the Rochester General hospital at Rochester, Pa., suffering from wounds alleged by the police to have been received in a shooting affray in Midland yesterday morning. Tony Santos, Midland rooming house proprietor, who is alleged to have done the shooting, is being held upon charges of felonious shooting with intent to kill.

Cadoza and two companions, it is claimed, went to the Santos rooming house in Ohio avenue, where they became engaged in an argument. Santos, it is said, warned them to be quiet or leave the house. The noise, it is reported, continued and Santos, left the house, apparently in disgust.

Cadoza and John Lopez, one of the trio, it is asserted, later quarreled and, in the melee, Lopez was stabbed in the back of the neck with a pair of scissors. Cadoza attempted to flee from the house but when he reached the bottom of the stairs at the street he was met by Santos, who fired two shots, one entering his left breast and the other striking a rib and his left arm.

During the day they reported that the G. shaft had a strong current of air passing through it, although there were obstructions overhead. This rescue party now is about 900 feet below the trapped miners.

Extraordinary selfless efforts have been demonstrated in the work being done in this section of the mine. One man, with a squared piece of wood strapped over his head, slowly works his way upward using a long iron poker to loosen the debris above him. As the loosened earth and rock fall about him fellow workers carry it away. For all this man who is leading the party knows he may loosen tons of debris at any moment and be buried in the shaft. The prospect of such a fate, however, does not stay his efforts.

TEAPOT DOME CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Sinclair Will Carry Fight to High Tribunal.

LEASE BATTLE

E. L. Doheny Already Granted Right to Appeal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The supreme court must now decide the famous naval oil reserve cases.

Attorneys for Harry F. Sinclair are expected to appeal at once to the supreme court for a reversal of the decision of the federal circuit court of appeals which ordered cancellation of the mammoth oil company's lease to Teapot dome. The court already has granted an appeal to E. L. Doheny, whose lease to the Elk Hills naval oil reserve was declared void by federal courts in California.

Besides these civil suits, appeals on criminal indictments against Sinclair, Doheny and ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall are now pending in the District of Columbia court of appeals.

Months, and perhaps years, may elapse before a final determination is made of all the oil cases which grew out of the senate's investigation during the winter and spring of 1923-24.

Arguments in the Doheny case are to be heard by the supreme court on next Monday or Tuesday. The decision in this case, an appeal for a writ of certiorari, is expected to have an important bearing on the final determining of the Sinclair appeal. Both cases are practically identical.

The Sinclair decision was an important victory for the government oil counsel, Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts. The decision went against them in the trial court at Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Pomerene is now the Democratic senatorial nominee in Ohio.

Modern Solomon Contrives Test for Love of Juvenile Newly-Weds

The Kansas City, Mo., juvenile court is hard hearted about young—or "puppy"—love. Two months ago Clifton Humphrey, 17, met Mabel Ousley, 15. And in less than two months they were married. But the Court says that for a year bride and groom must be separated and must not even see each other. If, after that time, the bridegroom makes good in business and his bride still loves him—the court will bless their marriage.

REPORT FILED BY PROSECUTOR

Sentences Suspended in Only Two Cases During Past Year.

That the former rule of the county courts in giving suspended sentences is past, is indicated by the annual report of Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes filed with the county commissioners. More than 95 percent of the sentences in criminal cases handled by this office during the last fiscal year have been put into execution, the report disclosed. In reality only two suspended sentences were announced by the court during the year from Sept. 1, 1925, to Sept. 1, 1926, and bonds were given in two other cases wherein support of children was involved in the charges.

In 42 other cases all sentences pronounced were placed in execution.

The report also shows that out of 76 indictments, there was acquital by juries on only seven cases and giving a record of 69 convictions in criminal court work.

Assistant Prosecutor John E. Bauknecht who handled all work in the court of Judge Lodge Riddle, secured 46 convictions and two acquitals.

The report concludes by saying:

"During the last fiscal year there were 39 convictions by plea to indictments and seven convictions by jury, wherein nine defendants were involved. Ten indictments were nolled in cases where other prosecutions and convictions was had. One indictment was nolled and two other prosecution had, and four defendants were acquitted by jury.

"The case of Michael Payne against the county commissioners was settled out of court.

"Tax foreclosures involving 44 properties were completed, and the property sold for delinquent taxes.

"The following cases are pending against the county commissioners:

"Wallace L. Fogo against the county commissioners; Vincent Miller against the county commissioners; Alex Riley and others against the county commissioners; Griffith against the county commissioners and Fryfogle against the county commissioners.

"The grand jury met in three regular sessions, September, January and April and one special session in October, and were convened for a total of 12 days. They examined more than 275 witnesses, covering 120 cases; returned 52 true bills, ignored 35 and continued five cases."

An analysis of the report shows that the office of the prosecuting attorney has sustained practically every case that was returned by the grand jury, and in the case of pleas of guilty and conviction by jury the court has practically eliminated the "suspended sentence" rule that had prevailed for many years.

Motion Sustained.

A motion to secure the costs has been sustained in common pleas court in the case of Della and Joseph Greno against Ray and Jane A. Moore. This action has been pending since Oct. 12th last.

Livestock Shipments Declined in August; Report Submitted

The Ohio Live Stock Co-Operative association affiliated with the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation in its monthly report for August shows total volume of 8,426,544 pounds of live stock shipped from 35 counties. This is a decrease in volume from the July reports in hogs, cattle and calves, but a material increase in the number of sheep marketed. The loss covered by insurance decreased 40 per cent from the previous month.

Phillip E. Helm, county service manager of Columbiana county reports business for the month, consisting of 1 straight and 2 mixed decks, the same as in July. These shipments represented 17 shippers and were made up of 17 hogs, 33 cattle and 3 calves. The total volume marketed from this county netted $1,260.88. The average expense per hundredweight for all counties reporting was .497 cents.

The association is just closing a pool for bringing in feeder lambs from Montana and Wyoming. Altogether 120,000 of these western lambs were brought into the corn belt. The feeder cattle pool is now under way. The association has its buyers on the range and calves and yearlings will be brought from the Highland Hereford territory in Texas, the hand hills of Nebraska and Colorado.

Heavy feeders from the best range territory of West Virginia are being moved into Ohio. These cattle are coming in good and feeders are well satisfied. County service managers are handling these orders through the County service company and the Livestock association.

WEST POINT COAL MINE RESUMES

Pumps have been started and the production of coal at the mines of the Seger Fuel company at West Point is scheduled to begin not later than Friday, it was announced at West Point today. First crews were put to work Monday evening, and pumps were started Tuesday.

This property has been idle since early in the year, and at the time operations ceased it was announced by the management that no time could be then set for resumption. The mine is capable of producing about 1,000 tons daily.

"State road work is being held up all over the state on account of wet weather," Mr. Fawcett declared, "and the slow progress being made in Columbiana county is not confined to this county alone.

158 Cities in Iowa have concrete streets

Sioux City Heads This Procession

Not many cities in the Union have more concrete street pavement than Sioux City. And in Iowa, Sioux City heads the list.

Sioux City began paving with concrete in 1911. There are now over 2,000,000 square yards in the City, all of which is in excellent condition.

This has been a fine investment. Costly street maintenance has been done away with. Concrete streets have dressed up the whole city.

Sioux City's concrete streets are directly linked with the concrete roads of Woodbury County.

Over these permanently paved highways, no matter what weather conditions may be, farmers truck their stock to market regularly. They come to sell. They come to buy and to trade. They come to put more money in Sioux City banks.

And everybody is more prosperous as a result.

Concrete roads and streets always pave the way to prosperity.

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

TURF CLASSIC AT AMERICAN

Conway Tearle Has Star Role in "Sporting Lover."

With all its thrills, gayety and colorfulness the famous English Derby comes to the screen of the American theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. "The Sporting Lover," starring Conway Tearle. This is an E. M. Asher picture for First National release. Barbara Bedford is featured opposite Tearle.

No horse racing event in Europe—or in the world, for that matter—is so widely known and honored as the historic English Derby, held each year at Epsom Downs, not far from London.

The cream of European and frequently of American turfs are gathered for this racing classic. Even the King and Queen of England usually enter a horse from their private stables in the event. Originally the main racing event was a one miler, but in recent years the race has been run over a course measuring exactly 1 mile, 4 furlongs and 29 yards.

Although the monetary prizes offered to winners of the Derby are modest fortunes, the principal interest in the event is principally because it is considered the grand sweepstakes of Europe and the outstanding social event of the season. The usual time for the running of the Derby is 2 minutes 34 seconds. Only a few horses have eclipsed this time.

In "The Sporting Lover" an unusual situation is brought about by the entrance of twin three-year-olds in the Derby by rivals owners, also because the horses are so alike in appearance that the only difference is that "Bad Luck" has a small white star on the forehead and "Good Luck" none. The competition of the twins is said to add zest to a spirited battle of the turf and to provide some of the most exciting race scenes ever shown on the screen.

Population of Iraq now is estimated at 2,750,000.

Express Train Dependability

Hupmobile Six Built to same High Standards as Costliest Cars

Hupmobile Six a Leader, Also, in Complete, Modern Equipment

What goes into a motor car is vastly more important than what goes on it. You will not buy, of course, on mere externals and non-essentials, but on proven performance, dependability, long life, and low cost of maintenance. To superiority in these fundamentals, however, the Hupmobile Six also joins the latest and most complete equipment to be found on any car in its price-class.

1. Oil filter
2. Gasoline filter—low gasoline consumption
3. Thermostatic heat control
4. Snubbers
5. Vision-ventilating windshield
6. Dash gasoline gauge
7. Clear vision bodies
8. Color options—Mohair upholstery in latest mode
9. Walnut grained panels on instrument board and window ledges
10. 4-wheel brakes
11. Special vibration damper
12. Headlights with tilting beam lensee and double filament bulbs

Sedan, five-passenger, four-door, $1385. Coupe, two-passenger, with rumble seat, $1385. Touring, five-passenger, $1325. Equipment includes 30 x 5.25 balloon tires, four-wheel brakes. All prices f. o. b. Detroit, plus revenue tax.

Certainly no car at its price — or within five hundred dollars of its price — compares with the Hupmobile Six in brilliant, delightful performance.

Its ability to perform and to out-perform, however, is not the most remarkable feature of this great car.

Underlying the public's admiration for this big, beautiful, full-size Hupmobile Six, is the deep seated respect of the average American for Hupmobile's traditional dependability.

Hupmobile pays millions of dollars more each year to make its Six one of the most dependable of all six-cylinder cars.

Owners, however, reap the benefit. The Hupmobile Six owner will tell you that his cost of maintenance is so low as to be almost negligible.

He will tell you that he can set out on a tour of a hundred, or a thousand or ten thousand miles, with the complete assurance that his journey will be unmarred by mechanical trouble or annoyance.

For you can drive this Hupmobile Six at express train speed, from sunrise to sunset, in the comforting knowledge that it is engineered and constructed to give such service easily, smoothly, and without straining.

TAX COMMISSION DELAYS REPORT

It has been definitely determined that the state tax commission, which has made an exhaustive study of the many features of the West Virginia tax system, will make no preliminary report prior to the November election, it has been stated by D. Allan Burt, chairman of the commission.

The tax commission, Chairman Burt said, would meet in October and November to formulate a report for submission to the next session of the state legislature.

Recommendations of the commission for a revision of West Virginia's tax system, will depend in a large degree on the action of the voters in the coming election when they are asked to ratify two constitutional amendments that propose changes in the collection of taxes and the expenditures of the state's revenue, says Robert S. Archer, Huntington banker.

SQUIRREL SEASON OPENED IN STATE

Judge Makes Erroneous Prediction Regarding Lawyer

"About one clean shirt is all I thought he would ever wear. He had fallen away to a mere shadow; was as yellow as saffron and often doubled up with pain. Doctors continually gave him morphine and were about to operate for gall stones. MAYR'S quickly restored him to perfect health again." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Stop a minute and think about this fact. You can ask the Review-Tribune Information Bureau any question of fact and get the answer back in a personal letter. It is a great educational idea introduced into the lives of the most intelligent people in the world—American newspaper readers. It is ap art of that best purpose of a newspaper—service. There is no charge except two cents in stamps for return postage. Get the habit of asking questions. Address your letter to the East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q. Where is the world's largest concert hall? F. O.

A. The Cleveland Auditorium, seating 12,500 is believed to be the largest concert auditorium in the world. It was opened April 15, 1922.

Q. When reference is made nowadays to the "South" just what part of the country is meant? S. N. L.

A. The South is generally understood as including the following States: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia, and the District of Columbia, which have a total area of 969,237 square miles, about one-third of Continental United States. By some Maryland, the District of Columbia, and West Virginia are not included in the "South." By others Missouri also is omitted.

Q. How can wood be treated so that is will not absorb any water? D. J.

A. The property of absorbing water seems to be a property of the wood substance itself and any modification although it might change the amount of absorption does not remove the absorptive property entirely.

Q. What was the Herman Peace Prize? G. R.

A. Ralph Herman, of Washington, offered $25,000 for the best educational plan calculated to maintain world peace. The prize was awarded in 1924 to Dr. David Starr Jordan, Chancellor Emeritus of Leland Stanford university.

Q. Should the season of the year be written with capital letters, as Spring, Fall, etc.? D. G.

A. The capitalization of the names of the seasons of the year is sanctioned by some authorities. Others insist that inasmuch as the names of the seaons are common nouns they should not be written with the initial capital letter.

Q. Will there be an expedition to conquer Mt. Everest this year? W. N. N.

A. Plans to reach the summit of this "top of the world" are at present disarranged owing to the Dalai Lama of Thibet who has issued warnings to American, English, and Swiss expeditions not to set foot in Thibet.

Q. I've seen meats at market that have purple stamps on them. Why have they been stamped? A. B.

A. Little purple stamps are used for marking meats that have passed the inspection of the Federal meat inspectors. It is your assurance that any meat which has that mark came from animals that passed a thorough inspection, given by trained experts.

Q. Was MacMillan's radio successful during his trip into the Arctic during 1923? What were his call letters? S. C.

A. The MacMillan Expedition to the polar regions had radio for its only means of communication. Using low power and short wave-lengths, the Bowdoin communicated with several stations in the United States while the ship was frozen in thousands of miles away. Broadcating concerts from the United States stations were heard during the long dark nights of the Arctic Zone. The call letters were WNP, the slogan Wireless North Pole, and the power was about 500 watts.

Q. Where did St. Peter and St. Paul die? E. C.

that producers may obtain the best market prices.

Cooperative investigation work is also being carried on between the Biological Survey and the Bureau of Soil to ascertain the value of rabbit manure and offal for fertilizer purposes. Rabbit manure has proved particularly valuable for fruit growing and is being used extensively by the large citrus growers of California. Chemical analysis show that rabbit offal—heads, feet, and intestines—is potentially valuable as a source of commercial oil or grease and fertilizer material. The fats extracted from the heads and feet are a mixture of light colored grease and fat. Indications are that an oil similar to neat's foot oil may be derived from the feet alone.

D. Monroe Green, one of the experts of the Biological Survey, says that from the scale on which rabbit production is being undertaken in Florida and other states there is reason to believe that it will soon spread throughout the East. In proximity to the big eastern markets, he says, there should be a profitable outlet for domestic rabbit meat, once eastern people become acquainted with its fine qualities.

The prejudice that some housewives of the East have to rabbit is probably due to the unattractive appearance in which wild rabbits are often placed on the market, with head, feet and pelt on, and often stained with blood.

The western dressers slaughter and skin the animal, cut off the feet and head, remove the entrails, and then put the carcass in ice water over night, which draws out all blood and stains, making the meat firm and white like the breast of chicken.

High Football Squad Loses Services of Fullback Holmes

"Out for Season" Is Edict of Physician As Akron Tilt Looms

Old Injury to Knee is Renewed as Star Pounds Sebring Line on Way to Touchdown Saturday; Absence From Lineup Will Weaken Team's Offense, Temporarily, at Least.

" 'Ducky' Holmes is out for the rest of the season."

This announcement, made this morning by Coach George Kidder, of the Blue and White football squad, marks the loss of high school's outstanding backfield performer and casts a pall of gloom over the local scholastic camp on the eve of the contest with Akron East here, one of the important engagements on the local schedule.

Holmes' loss is caused by a physical injury sustained in last Saturday's contest with Sebring here and, in accordance with orders of his physicians, he must nurse the injury the remainder of the season.

Holmes had reeled off two runs, one for approximately 25 yards and the other for 78 yards and the East Liverpool backfield was pounding the Sebring line for what certainly looked like a third score when the players piled up and Holmes failed to arise.

When they took him off the field, he was unable to walk.

According to Coach Kidder, Holmes had hurt a knee, receiving an injury somewhat in the nature of the one which had kept Schaeffer out of the game, early last fall, and a twist in Saturday's game brought it back again.

Although there was a possibility of Holmes getting into action before the close of the season, it was thought best to permit him to rest in order that he may be right for basketball.

Kidder will have a tough task filling Holmes' shoes, on the face of things, but he has a lot of backfield boys who certainly possess the nerve to try it.

There's Jack Bromby, who played a whale of a game Saturday against Sebring, and who made possible Holmes' long run by breaking up the Sebring secondary defense; Fullerton, a halfback; "Little Joe" Lincoln; "Heimie" Davis, "Franner" McConville, Walt Smith, Van Dyne and possibly several others who have not yet had an opportunity to show their wares.

Kidder had another good fullback in prospect this season, but knee injuries also have kept him out of the game. This is Kirkham, who could have been depended upon as a real asset to the Blue and White.

The Akron East game will be played at Columbian park. Patterson Field still is half-covered with water.

"Don't Sympathize With Me," Plea Ot Ex-Champion; "I Don't Need It"

Dempsey Asked About His Plans; One Fan Even Inquires as to Whether He is Expecting to Commit Suicide.

JACK DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Jack Dempsey today related how he lost the heavyweight championship and Gene Tunney told how he won it.

"I just wasn't there" said Dempsey.

"I won the fight in the first round with a short straight right I had been practicing a year," said Tunney.

Both Dempsey and Tunney, furnishing a striking contrast, are in New York today—not a mile apart. The victor and the vanquished; the new champ and the old champ. Tunney, debonair and polished, happy and proud in the possession of the title, and Dempsey, his face swollen and discolored, trying gamely to be his old jaunty, carefree self, and pretending he isn't completely crushed over the loss of his crown.

"Don't sympathize with me," pleaded Dempsey. "I'm still a big strong man and don't need it."

"What was the matter, Jack—were you sick that night?" he was asked.

Hasn't Any Alibi.

"No," he snapped. "I wasn't. I haven't any alibi. Tunney just beat me. He was the best man. The rain didn't hamper me nor did anything else. I just couldn't deliver—that's all."

Tunney, meanwhile, was graciously yielding verbal tributes to the man he conquered.

"Treat him kindly, boys," he said to newspapermen, "he is a fine sportsman. Think of what Dempsey lost—not only two million dollars, but his title and the acclamation, the glory and the lustre that goes with it."

Dempsey is stopping at a hotel with his wife, the former Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress. He will remain here about a month, attending to business and devoting some of his time to court battles which confront him in connection with suits filed by his former manager, Jack Kearns. He will take in the world series and, if he can, will get a good rest.

The ex-champion indicated he had no thought of retiring from the ring. He said he would confer with Tex Rickard, the promoter, in a day or so regarding his future activities. He did not mention a return match with Tunney, nor did he discuss Harry Wills, the negro contender.

Recovers Cheerful Mood.

Dempsey has somewhat recovered his cheerful mood despite the battered condition of his face. His dark features are still lumpy and discolored in spots. His face looked worse than it ordinarily would because his chin and cheek were covered with zinc ointment for an itch he contracted from one of his sparring partners. The infection has spread, causing him annoyance. He said he might send for a specialist. The cut over his left eye, in which four stitches were taken, is healing, but the flesh under the left eye is swollen and tender. A black line under the left eye testifies to the efficacy of Tunney's right.

Messages galore are coming to Dempsey, all of them wishing him luck and offering sympathy. Apropos of his frame of mind, which is getting better with the passing of each hour, Dempsey said some one called him on the phone at the Ambassador hotel in Atlantic City and asked him if he was going to commit suicide.

"I said," remarked Dempsey, with a smile, "that I was a little bit crazy, but not as crazy as that."

McCarthy Is Greatest Manager In Baseball, Says Owner Bill Wrigley

McCARTHY

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—"I'll stand for anything good you say about Joe McCarthy," said William Wrigley, Jr., today in discussing the manager of the Chicago Cubs, Mr. Wrigley's baseball club.

"McCarthy is one of the best men I know and the greatest manager in baseball — not except John McGraw," said Mr. Wrigley, adding:

"I can't tell you how good it makes me feel to find the Cubs in a first division berth after most of the alleged experts picked them to finish far down the list. And most of the credit goes to Mack.

"What are we going to do next year? Ask McCarthy. All I hope is that the experts pick us to finish last. Then we will be pretty sure to win the pennant."

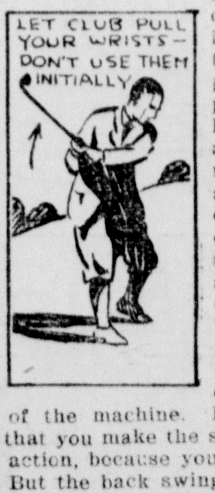
INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Around golf club factories one may see mechanical driving machines, with which golf balls and clubs are tested.



LET CLUB PULL YOUR WRISTS—DON'T USE THEM INITIALLY

A peculiar feature of these mechanical contrivances that should impress the golf player is that they have no wrists at all — the thing is merely a post and a steel arm. The expert golfer becomes much the same thing. He is a driving machine, or wants to be. The goal is to approach as nearly as possible the mechanical reliability of the machine. It does not follow that you make the swing without wrist action, because you do use the wrists. But the back swing action of the mechanical device is a mighty good pattern for the average golfer to follow. That is, take the club back as if you had no wrists. That way your club will pull up your wrists at the right place, near the top, and will take up your slack.

HIT 'EM TO SHORT, CARDS ARE ADVISED

THE FAMOUS ST. LOUIS BROWNS, AMERICAN ASSC., WHO WON THE WORLD'S SERIES, 1885-6, FROM THE CHICAGO WHITE STOCKINGS, NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Long times coming comes at last as the saying goes, and now that pennant time has come for St. Louis again, Mound City fans are wasting none of the precious moments in celebrating the end of St. Louis' world's series famine.

St. Louis has not won a pennant since 1888—38 years ago— when Curt Welch and the Browns of the American Association turned in their last flag for Owner Chris Von Der Ahe, and captured its only world's championship in 1886 in a series with the Chicago White Stockings by copping four to the National League entry's two.

The final game of the series was decided when Curt Welch, who started on the road to baseball fame in East Liverpool, stole home on the pitcher's windup with the winning run, contrary to advices of coaches, who had warned him to play it safe with the count 3 an 3.

Curt Welch played four years with the St. Louis Browns and in each year the Browns won the American Association pennant—there was no American League in those days.

In 1885 the Browns played a six game tie with the Chicago White Stockings, the seventh contest going to a draw; the following year the Browns won a four to two series and the world's championship; in 1887, Von Der Ahe's club won the association bunting again, but lost to Detroit in the series playoff; and in 1888, Welch's final year in St. Louis, the Browns again lost the series, this time to the New York Nationals.

Can't Tell How Mark Koenig Will Play It

Erratic Work of Shortfielder Reason Why Yanks Can't be Given Even Chance With Cards in Coming Series, Say Experts; Does Wrong Thing at the Right Time.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—"When you hit one toward shortstop—be it liner, ground ball or pop fly—start running and never stop; for neither you nor the man at the position will know what he is going to do with it."

This, declared members of the St. Louis Cardinals today, was the advice given them by American leaguers who have watched Mark Koenig through a season of catch-as-can-miss performances and this, according to the writer, is probably the abiding reason why the New York Yankees can not be granted an even chance with the Cardinals in the world series.

A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, according to idle gossip, and by the same token a team is no stronger than its shortstop. Mark Koenig, shortstop of the New York Yankees, always is a great help to somebody but seldom to the Yanks. He may handle nine chances perfectly but when he kicks away the tenth the ball games goes with it. That's his complex; he is a ball player who does the wrong thing at the right time.

Lacks Sureness.

It is a distinct tribute, in fact, to the hitting of the club and to Miller Huggins that the outfit was able to win a pennant in spite of Koenig's indiosyncrasies. The young man is game, he hits fairly well and most of the time he can go and get them. But he is unfortunate in that he apparently neglects to let his left hand know what his right is doing. That is a mistake; hands should have no secrets between them, for if anything demands steadiness and reliability it is the postion of shortstop and Koenig has very little of either.

It would seem that he can get anything and he can miss anything.

Only two other pennant winners have been able to laugh off a man like that and neither won the world's title. Reference is made to the Brooklyn Dodgers of 1915 and 1920 and to Ivan Olson, the terrible Swede. Ivan was game, too, but he was a five thumbed wonder for your life.

All of the others were good. Some of them, indeed, were great. The list, dating back to the stars of the modern series in 1903, includes the only Wagner, Joe Tinker, Bill Dahlen, Art Fletcher, Fred Parent, Monte Cross, George Davis, Charley O'Leary, Donie Bush, Heinie Wagner, Jack Barry, Rabbit Maranville, Dave Bancroft, Everett Scott, Buck Weaver, Charley Hollocher, Swede Risberg, Larry Kopf, Joe Sewell, Roger Peckinpaugh, Travis Jackson and Glenn Wright.

Thevenow May Be Star.

The only doubtful one in that array is Kopf and he had a very good year when the Reds won in 1919. The rest are fool-proof.

Perhaps, you ask, one cannot say the same of the Cards' shortstop. Maybe not, but the writer has a hunch that Tommy Thevenow will be one of the stars of the series. A fine, aggressive fighting fielder. He has helped to hold the pitchers up all season and he is one of the best pinch hitters on the club. I don't think it will be necessary to worry about Thevenow; in fact, no one is. Everybody knows pretty well what he is going to do. They can't say the same for Koenig.

Knowing so little of his inclinations and intentions, at that, it might be that he is due to be the hero of the series. But the odds are dead against him.

CHICAGO CLUBS START SERIES

Will Stage First Battle of Annual Civil War Today.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Annual settlement of an ancient municipal fued will get under way her today when the National league Cubs meet the American league White Sox in the opener of a seven-game series to decide the baseball supremacy of Chicago.

Today's game will be played at Cubs park on the Northside. Tomorrow the scene of battle shifts to Comiskey park on the Southside. Thus the civil war will rage, alternately at the northern and southern parks, until one team has won four games.

Most of the experts pick the White Sox to win.

START PLAY IN TITLE TOURNEY

Announce Pairings for Golf Championship Matches.

HANDICAPPED by the excess of rainfall during the last week or so, match play in the Country club's annual championship tournament gets under way this week with only one division of 16 contenders operating instead of the customary two.

Pairings for the first match which will be played off before Saturday night, were announced by the sports committee today as follows, together with qualifying scores:

J. M. Wells, 79, vs. A. C. Frost, 103.
R. J. Bernard, 90, vs. M. W. Thompson, 97.
A. A. Wells, 92, vs. D. D. Irwin, 96.
J. D. Thompson, 83, vs. G. R. Thomas, 101.
F. F. Grogleda, 84, vs. L. Wasbutzky, 102.
R. G. Smith, 91, vs. G. W. Durkee, 96.
C. W. Ashbaugh, 94, vs. R. W. Harker, 95.
T. E. Lewis, 89, vs. H. A. Smith, 99.

The qualifying round was played without handicap, the rule that will be followed throughout the tournament.

As a result of rains and weather conditions which made playing difficult, qualifying scores were unusually large, and, in some instances, were not turned in at all. With several prospective contenders away, the field, as a result, was cut to such an extent that only one division, instead of two, was possible.

Two matches will be played next week and the final match the following week.

GEORGETOWN NEXT FOR PITT

Meet on Gridiron for First Time Since 1914.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 29. — Georgetown university is the University of Pittsburgh's football opponent in the Pitt stadium here Saturday. Georgetown has not been played by the locals since 1914, the Panthers winning by a score of 21-0. They are one of the outstanding teams of the east and the game will be one of the big attractions of the year in Pittsburgh. Ed Thorp will be referee, Dean Watkeys, umpire; A. W. Palmer, linesman, and G. N. Bankart, field judge.

Coach John B. Sutherland found many problems to solve after the Allegheny game Saturday, when the Panthers nosed out a 9-7 victory. It is agreed that some miracles will have to be performed this week if Georgetown is to be defeated. With seven regulars missing from last year's great machine, it is to be expected that the varsity would not perform at its best against Allegheny, but few expected the close game and the margin of victory by a mere safety. Many changes are expected in the varsity this week, and the lineup will be in doubt until game time. Georgetown is said to be confident of victory, and a big crowd of supporters will come from Washington and eastern points to see the game.

Invite Gene to Grid Game.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 29.—St Xavier college issued invitation today to Gene Tunney to attend the St. X'-Quantico (Va.) Marine school football battle here Oct. 9 as guest of both teams.

Fight Results

AT PORTLAND, Maine — Newport Johnny Brown knocked out Eddie Russell of Montreal in the second round.

LIFTS BAN ON HEAVYWEIGHTS

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—The ban on heavyweights has been lifted by the state boxing commission, it was learned today. The commission took this action, it was said, because so many heavyweights have volunteered their services in the benefit boxing show to be staged here Oct. 15 for the Florida Relief fund.

O. W. Huncke, chairman of the commission, sought the services of Gene Tunney for the benefit show, but to date the new heavyweight king has remained silent about the invitation.

Georges Carpentier and Jimmy Delaney, of St. Paul, will clash in the feature bout, it was announced. Several other all-star matches will support the main event.

LUCKY STRIKE
"IT'S TOASTED"
CIGARETTES

Three Extras

To describe the costly extra process which lifts Luckies out of the ordinary would take a volume of technical description.

But you can get the results instantly because in a Lucky Strike you'll find the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos properly aged, perfectly blended —and something more.

You'll realize that there is something about them which gives them distinction.

All because of an extra process—toasting.

When you smoke Luckies, you'll find:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

Thus the toasting process is an addition. It adds a unique and distinct improvement to a cigarette that has already been made from the finest Turkish and domestic tobacco. It is the reason millions prefer Lucky Strikes.

"It's toasted"

That's Why Luckies Taste So Good

400 Akron Juvenile Police Make Good In Traffic Work

AKRON, O.—The juvenile police force has made good here.

During the past week Chief of Police L. D. Carter has sworn in nearly 400 schoolboys as traffic policemen. His action is the result of a year's trial of the scheme which has resulted in a report that not one child was killed last year near a public school building.

The new "coppers" are all picked "men" who have undergone training and been given a probationary term of duty. They leave their classes a few minutes before recesses and take up their stations at the traffic semaphores.

The youths are trained by a motorcycle sergeant assigned to their command. Great rivalry exists among the boys for heavy posts and the sergeant yet has to receive any report of dereliction of duty.

Only three cases of refusing to obey orders were reported last year. One man slapped a juvenile policeman, spent five days in jail here he could mull over his faux pas. Another "sassed back" and was smeared with a $50 fine by the judge.

Greeks' Philosophy Idealistic.

Greeks as a people have a philosophy of life that is quite different from that of Americans. Their desire is to be rounded out human beings, and having an interest more in beauty and life itself than in material successes. Harshness in personal relations is exceptional and as a rule their habits are temperate. They show a liking for the mere process of thinking.

At the beginning of this year the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace had spent $7,417,498 since its inception in 1911. Nearly half of that sum has been allocated to the division of education and intercourse, and about $1,500,000 to the division of international law.

Wm. Erlanger Company Predicts A Colorful Season This Fall

NOTES

Distinctively Interesting

THE WARDROBE of the late Rudolph Valentino was said to include 40 Suits—Young Count Franz Esterhazy, Jr. is reported to have 3000 Suits. The most of us feel that we could get along very well with three or four suits but usually must be satisfied with less—and far between. The fewer we have the more particular we must be in their selection if we expect them to give us the maximum of service for our hard earned money.

ERLANGER'S New Fall Suits offer ample variety for choosing one or many—fit for kings, yet priced within reach of every man.

INFORMATION gained from reliable sources points to a season in which the turned down brim in men's new Fall Hats will share honors of the season on a fifty-fifty basis with the Fedora or Alpine shape. As for colors, browns, light greys and light tans will be in the foreground.

ERLANGER'S Hat Department is displaying such widely popular makes as the John B. Stetson, Mallory and others—Autumn's most approved shapes and colors—Stetson's at $8.00 and up; Mallory's at $6.00 up; others at $3.45 and up.

HOSIERY for men this Fall is a bit loud. While there is plenty of modest hosiery worn most of the young men go in for gay effects. The young fellows nowadays wear low shoes the year round and want noticeable hosiery.

Erlanger's are showing an unusually large and varied stock of gay patterned hosiery this season as well as the more conservative colors—Beautiful fibre silk plaids at only 50c. Fine quality silk hosiery at $1.00.

PATTERNED SHIRTS are the vogue this season and these as a rule have collars attached or collars to match. Formerly the patterns were usually fine stripes or dots, but this season finds very elaborate stipple treatments of bold stripes with conventional designs or else all-over floral, or geometrical figures — Color arrangements are very beautiful. Of course there's the plain white and plain color tints that are always popular.

Distinctive patterns are being shown at Erlanger's in Manhattan made shirts and others — Priced very moderately at $2.50 and up for Manhattans, others $1.49 and up.

GIRLS' FALL COATS this year are mostly fur trimmed—beautiful fabrics that are lovely in their various shades and rich plain colors or smart sport patterns—Buttons and fancy stitching are noticeable embellishments. The prices are exceptionally low for their quality. They can be bought at Erlanger's as low as $4.98 and upward.

WOMEN AND MISSES will be surprised at the excellent new Silk Dresses that Erlanger's have just received and priced specially at only $4.95—well worth $8.00.

NEW SHIPMENTS of Felt Hats for Women and Misses' that should sell for $4.00 and $5.00 are being featured at Erlanger's at $2.79. Women should see them before purchasing their new Fall hats. They have others at $3.79 to $6.79.

East Liverpool Men Fortunate

In having at their service a store of the Wm. Erlanger calibre to collect vast assortments of clothing and haberdashery for their consideration.

Months ahead this store is carefully selecting clothing for its patrons — Style, quality and workmanship in every garment is painstakingly inspected that they may come up to the Erlanger standard—Every garment must be of good quality regardless of its proposed selling price. Every Suit, Topcoat or Overcoat that goes out of the Erlanger Store carries a guarantee of perfect satisfaction to the customer — Every man should see them.

New Fall Suits and Overcoats

Now on display at Erlanger's at

$29.50 $34.50 $39.50 $49.50

Perhaps the best known make they carry is "Hart Schaffner & Marx," however, "Cortley," "Clothcraft" and others may be just as familiar to most men. One and two pants models are both shown in a great variety of Fall's approved fabrics, in patterns and shadings that men and young fellows so much desire. Diversified styles, patterns and colorings are shown also in the Overcoats. Other Suits shown at $16.50 and $19.75.

Topcoats Mostly Box and Tube Styles

With prices ranging at Erlanger's from

$19.75 up to $34.50

There is not so much difference in the styles of the topcoats and overcoats—The Topcoat as every one knows is of much lighter weight and provides comfort and style when an overcoat is too heavy and bundlesome. Plain backs, tubes and box effects are the most popular models. "Heidknit" Topcoats tailored of a serviceable stylish knit fabric will be more popular than ever in the new Autumn shades.

"Good morning, Mrs. O'Connor, and is Pat at home?"

"Sure, and where are your eyes, Dinty Murphy? Isn't that his shirt hangin' in front o' ye on the line?"—Yale Record.

Customer: "Can I change these pants at this counter?"

Clerk: "Well, I'll tell you, Mister, we have quite a few women shoppers, so maybe you'd better go to the dressing room in the rear."—Lehigh Burr.

"I simply can't understand the combination of my wife's clothes."

"What puzzles you?"

"Well, when she wants to hide anything, she pokes it down her neck, but when she want to get it again, it's always in her stocking."

WHAT HAPPENED 20 YEARS AGO

From the East Liverpool Morning Tribune

Wheat No. 1 was quoted at 70c per bushel. New potatoes at 20c per peck. Dairy butter at 20c and 25c a pound. Fresh country eggs, per dozen, 24c.

The Pittsburgh Nationals broke even on a double header with Brooklyn. Batteries—Brady, Leever and Reitz; Scanlon and Berger.

Preparations are going steadily on in the Laughlin potteries making shapes and designs for the new Wells-Clark Company pottery to be started soon at Newell.

Secretary Taft issued a proclamation declaring Cuba under the control of a provisional United States government.

Men were wearing wide shouldered padded coats and narrow bottom trousers. Women were using two and more hat pins to keep their high, feathered millinery creations balanced on top of their heads. Long hair cleverly done up in a neat knot on top helped to anchor the hats.

Adolph Marks, of Chicago, is credited with being the directing influence in the Thaw case.

CAR FARES REFUNDED DURING FALL DISPLAY DAYS

FALL DISPLAY DAYS

Thursday, Friday and Saturday

A timely occasion for the Public to view and inspect the great stocks of new Fall merchandise WM. ERLANGER COMPANY now have on display

Few cities the size of East Liverpool can boast of a merchandising institution that can compare with the Erlanger Store. Its dependable merchandise, its great variety of stocks and its value giving policies have given it the leadership in merchandising that forty-six years of community service well deserves.

Catering to the clothing and merchandising wants of the "Pottery Center of America" for nearly half a century has given this institution a keen insight into the wants and preferences of the community. This knowledge has again served them well in selecting their vast Fall and Winter stocks. It has been a big factor in their great success—knowing what the public wants and having it when they want it—at the lowest possible price.

Boys' Clothing Styles On a Par With Dad's

Never has boys clothing received so much attention from style designers than the last year or so. Boys are getting as particular as "Dad" about the style of their Suits and Overcoats. Erlanger's have foreseen this development and have immense stocks on display to meet the preference of boys, and parents as well.

Their displays show long pants suits that even "Dad" may envy—Mannish vests seem to be one of the important details with the youngsters—many suits have both a short and a long pair of trousers to match while others have two pair of the long pants. There's single and double breasted styles too —patterns and colors just as beautiful as these offered in the men's models.

Erlanger's Inaugurate A "Lay-By" Club

For the Convenience of Their Customers

This "Lay-By" Service will be welcomed by hundreds of East Liverpool people. It makes it possible for anyone to make selections of merchandise from any department of the store while assortments are at their best. A small deposit being all that is required to have selections laid away until wanted. Heretofore many with small pockets and a large family to clothe were compelled to make purchases when necessity forced them to, taking chances of getting suitable merchandise from picked over stocks.
